WICKERSHAM SAYS EASIER DRY LAW MAY WORK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 18.—[Special]—Modification of the eighteenth amendment or the dry laws "may be found desirable" to secure the maximum abstinence from the use of liquor, Chairman George W. Wickersham of the President's law observance and enforcement commission declared today before the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Although he admitted the possibility that modification may be a remedy for the liquor problem, Mr. Wickersham contended that there is no "inalienable right in the individual to procure and consume intoxicating liquor." The burden of his address was a plea to the editors to exercise their influence in behalf of law observance, although they may believe the particular law is unwise.

Urges "National Temperance."

Leading up to his reference to modification, the commission chairman advocated an educational campaign to convince the people of "the great evils of the liquor traffic and the immeasurable benefit of national temperance."

"To secure the maximum abstinence from the use of liquor it may be found desirable to modify the eighteenth amendment or the national prohibition laws," he said. "I express no opinion on that point. Opinions differ. This is a fair field for discussion.

"But I appeal to you and through you to the press of America to aid in demonstrating that, so long as the law stands as it does, no patriotic American should advocate flouting its provisions or boast of violating its commands.

Appeals to Best People.

"No one can measure the possible injury to our institutions of the spectacle of men of prominence in the community proclaiming the right of citizens to disobey a law they do not like. Such advocacy weakens respect for all law. It tends to undermine the foundations of the state. It breeds anarchy. In helping to bring this thought home to the people, and expressly to that portion of them who used to be called 'the best people,' the press may be a powerful agency for good.

"Will you not choose to exercise your power in behalf, not of unrestricted license, but of observance of the law?"

Mr. Wickersham laid emphasis upon his point that the wet argument for "personal liberty" is a fallacy.

Explains His Viewpoint.

"It is comparatively venial for one to break the law with one's eyes open to possible consequences," he continued, "but to unite with others in openly aiding and abetting the violation of any law, upon the plea that it ought not to have been enacted and cannot be enforced, is inviting revolution and promoting anarchy.

"The excuse offered is that in this particular matter the amendment to the constitution and the laws enacted to carry out its provisions alike constitute an inexcusable invasion of personal liberty. There is no pretense that this so-called liberty is protected in the constitution. The very existence of organized society implies the curtailment of as much individual liberty as is inconsistent with the public weal."

Constitution Is Supreme.

After citing numerous historical references to show that the intent of the forefathers was to make the constitution supreme, but at the same time to reserve the right of the people to change it, Mr. Wickersham said that it has and may be changed to meet such requirements as new and developing social needs and conditions might require.

"Having in mind the necessity of stable and conservative government, the process of amendment was not made too easily available by casual majorities or organized minorities," he said. "Experience, however, has demonstrated that when there is a widespread demand for change in the constitution it is not difficult to secure amendment.

"On the other hand, no minority, however militant and clamorous, can modify or change the fundamental law, except through the supine indifference or apathy of the majority.

Right Open to Change Law.

"If any considerable body of citizens object to any part of the constitution it is their right to organize and work for its change by the methods provided in the constitution itself. If they object to any law it is their

$10,000 ROBBERY IS REVEALED AT WILMETTE HOME

The Wilmette police last night were investigating the burglary of the home of John H. McNamara, 1004 Ashland avenue, Wilmette, chairman of the board of directors of the North American Insurance company, in which oriental rugs, glassware, and furnishings valued at nearly $10,000 were stolen. The robbery was discovered last Saturday when the McNamara family returned from a vacation in Florida.

The burglars entered the house by breaking a window in a second floor bedroom and ransacked the entire house, taking pictures from the walls and looting china closets. Because of the bulk of the loot, the police believe that they had carried it away in a truck. Before leaving the house, the robbers replaced the pane in the window.

"Dead" Man Sits Up in Coffin, Asks 'What's Idea?'

MESSINA, Sicily, April 18.—Tommasso Lasprada, 52 year old farmer, was pronounced dead of pneumonia here two days ago. Today while friends were calling at his home to offer condolences, Tommasso suddenly opened his eyes, slowly looked around, and asked, "What is going on here?" The superstitious declared an Easter miracle had been wrought. To his friends who sent floral offerings, Tommasso expressed his regrets at being unable to accept them under the circumstances, promising, however, to return the favor as soon as a suitable occasion presented itself.

Umbrellas may be in order tomorrow, according to the weather man, who forecasts possible showers.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Now that spring is here and birds are piping away in the parks, now that the grass is riotously green and it is common enough to hear a bus conductor burst into a little light opera air of an evening, or bump into a motorist who is staring absently at a sunset—well, about the only thing that a normal man or woman can do to get rid of that spring fervor is to don new clothes.

With Easter but a day away women, of course, have been making a great fuss over their spring wardrobes. On the other hand, there are many men Chicagoans who are leaders in business and who, in addition, are well dressed.

Chicago Men Well Dressed.

It has become a characteristic of Chicago that its business men include only a few who pride themselves on their baggy trousers, or on wearing hats too small for them.

In the present age there seems to be no one part of a man's wearing apparel that reveals instantly his station in life. For instance, a few representative Chicagoans, known for their business acumen, their sportsmanship, and their manner of being well dressed at club or office, were photographed by a TRIBUNE photographer.

Affects No Extremes.

Nelson Pelouze, president of the Pelouze Manufacturing company, for instance, always is well dressed, whether among his felow clubmen at the Chicago Athletic association, or in his office, or in his home at 3400 Sheridan road. But he affects no extremes of style.

Harold A. Howard has chosen the fashionable double-breasted suit to wear this spring. It is "correctly" rolled to the second button. Mr. Howard, who is a manager of estates, is a golf enthusiast.

Burt Massee, vice president of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company, known as a sportsman, is another Chicagoan who, whether on his yacht in Bermuda or in his office, dresses fashionably. Yet his double breasted suit, small figured tie, and slightly pointed shoes, which are in fashion this spring—borrowed from England—are little different from the corresponding articles worn by Aldis J. Browne, real estate man. Mr. Browne, who is known as one of the best dressed members of the Racquet club, also chooses the double breasted suit.

Weymouth Kirkland, attorney, who is also active in the Racquet club, achieves variety of a sort by choosing the single breasted suit.

SMELL OF GAS KEEPS EVANSTON FOLKS AWAKE

Several hundred worried householders in Rogers Park and the southern end of Evanston stayed up until midnight last night seeking leaks in their plumbing as a persistent odor of gas pervaded their homes. As each harassed citizen concluded his explorations of his premises without finding the source of the odor, telephones at the Rogers Park and Evanston police stations and the Evanston Public Service company offices began to jingle, hundreds calling to learn the cause of the odor and to ask whether it would be safe to retire for the night.

With the first calls engineers of the Public Service company began an examination of pipe lines without finding a leak and finally traced the odor to a valve leakage of fuel oil waste at the gas plant at McCormick boulevard and Oakton street, according to J. R. Pershall, publicity manager of the Evanston plant. While the stench raised by the oil was harmless, it was sufficiently annoying to keep many citizens within two miles of the station from sleeping.

Pershall said that the low hanging clouds and a brisk wind were responsible for the wide area which the odor covered. Telephone calls were received from points as far south as Devon avenue and north to Dempster street in Evanston.

CANDIDATE FINED FOR SLANDERING RIVAL BY RADIO

In the first case of its kind ever tried in Illinois Frank Broucek, defeated Democratic candidate for police magistrate of Berwyn, was fined $10 on each of two charges of "slander over the radio" yesterday by Justice of the Peace Harry Leviton of Berwyn. The charges were made by John H. Ehardt, victor in the police magistrate's race, who charged that Broucek twice attacked his reputation in campaign speeches broadcast from a Cicero radio station.

Broucek offered no defense at the trial after John Fiala, president of the Berwyn board of education, and James Tebourek, assistant attorney general of Illinois, testified that they heard him refer to Ehardt as a "murderer" in a speech on March 18 and as an "ex-convict" in a radio speech on March 30. Leonard Grossman, Ehardt's attorney, brought out that Ehardt had never been convicted of any crime and that Broucek's charges were false.

Steer Into Power Cable in Fog.

Jersey City, N. J., April 18.—(AP)—Count Henri de la Vaulx of Paris, president of the International Aeronautical federation, and three other occupants of a Canadian Colonial Airways, four passenger biplane flying from Albany, N. Y., to Newark, N. J., were electrocuted 300 feet above the ground today. Their plane, seeking a landing place, struck a high tension wire. The craft, enveloped in flames, crashed to the ground with its cargo of dead and was burned.

The bodies, badly charred, were removed from the wreckage and identified from an official list as Count de la Vaulx; Mrs. Marie E. Williams, Providence, R. I.; A. V. Conklin, New York, and the pilot, John Salway, 37, and married, of Albany.

The accident occurred at 5:30 p. m., just 11 minutes before the plane was due at Newark airport. The plane had left Albany at 3 p. m.

Groping Blindly in Fog.

According to Harry Lehman, a watchman employed by the Public Service power station, into whose wires the plane crashed, the air liner was noticed flying at a low altitude, the pilot evidently searching for a landing place. It was raining and a heavy mist hung over the city.

Faltering as it flew over Journal square, in the heart of the city, the plane barely missed a water tower atop a high building and, after circling several times above the housetops, it dropped lower, struck a wire carrying 132,000 volts, burst into flame and with all passengers in the cabin crashed 300 feet to the ground.

Cut Off County's Power.

All power in Bergen county was cut off. Telephone calls were made for medical aid and the fire department was summoned. The flames died out after consuming the fuselage and the bodies were discovered in the wreckage.

The engine of the ship, a Pratt & Whitney wasp motor, was found 20 feet from the wreckage. John Underwood, chief of detectives, supervised the removal of the bodies to a morgue and expressed the belief all were dead from electrocution before the ship became prey to the flames. This later was borne out in an official statement.

The pilot, though married, leaves no children. During the war he was in the royal air force and had 2,000 flying hours to his credit in all types of planes.

Count an Air Notable.

New York, April 18.—(AP)—Count Henri de la Vaulx had been prominent as an aeronaut since the beginning of the century.

He was the head of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale of France, the world governing body in the matter of air contests, records and other matters pertaining to aviation. The National Aeronautic association, with headquarters in Washington, is the affiliate of the federation in this country.

Count de la Vaulx had been touring the United States in the interests of the federation. Last month he announced plans for a flight in May from Brazil to Africa. He recently made an air tour of South America.

Had Planned an Air Trip Today.

He had planned to leave by airplane tomorrow for Miami, Havana, San Domingo, and Venezuela.

He was about 63 years old. His last previous visit to the United States was in 1904, when he was entertained here by a number of aviation enthusiasts, among them James Gordon Bennett. During his present visit he was received by President Hoover at the White House.

The count was a member of the Legion of Honor and holder of the Croix de Guerre. He was the author of "Sixteen Thousand Kilometers in a Balloon," "A Voyage in Patagonia," and "One Hundred Thousand Leagues in the Air."

144 Die; Fire and Panic End Easter Mass

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 18.—Trapped by flames which quickly enveloped the little Orthodox church in the town of Choesti, near Pitesti, 65 miles northwest of Bucharest, where they had gathered to celebrate Good Friday mass, 144 persons were burned to death and many more were seriously injured.

The majority of the dead are reported to be children. The total population of the town is only 500.

One father reported losing five children, another six, while another man said his whole family had been wiped out.

Fire Started by Candles.

Only twice a year, at Christmas and at Easter, do the peasantry and the gentry drop all work and gather in the little church for worship. Today it was filled to overflowing, with peasants in their picturesque garbs. The burgomaster of the town and its officials were there, too, as well as the local tradesmen.

The Good Friday mass is one of the most elaborate of the orthodox ritual. Hundreds of candles were burned before the altar, and each worshiper held a candle while kneeling in prayer. Choir boys, it is believed, tipped over a row of candles on the altar, setting fire to the huge silk and lace draperies which hung from the ceiling.

The curtain being old and dry went up in flames in a fraction of a minute, and before the awed worshipers had time to regain their feet the whole church was blazing.

Panic Jams Doors.

Then the stampede began. But even then most of the lives might have been saved if the church doors had not opened inward. As the fear maddened peasants struggled en masse toward the doors they were crushed against them, shutting off their own escape. Soon the building was a vast furnace, and the worshipers were literally roasted to death.

Scores of old pictures of the Virgin and the wooden statues of Christ, which adorned the walls of the church, fed the flames and helped in the rapid spread of the fire. Both of the priests and the town's burgomaster are reported to have burned to death.

GUNMAN ROBS DAUGHTER OF GOVERNOR'S AID

Miss Jane Abbey of Springfield, 16 year old daughter of F. L. Abbey, secretary to Gov. Emmerson, was held up last night with her hostess, Mrs. Adele Smith, 1117 Hyde Park boulevard. As they entered the vestibule of Mrs. Smith's apartment a well dressed young man who had followed them from the street shoved a pistol at Miss Abbey. From her he took a purse containing $10 and from Mrs. Smith's fingers he stripped two rings valued at $1,700. He also took her purse, containing $100, and a $200 bracelet. Minadele Sherman, 2 years old, granddaughter of Mrs. Smith, was with the robber's two victims in the vestibule. Miss Abbey arrived here yesterday to visit Mrs. Smith.

Early this morning Elmer Polan, 30 years old, who gave his address as 5231 Cornell avenue, was arrested on complaints that he had threatened tenants of a building at 1367 East 53d street with a pistol. In Polan's pockets were found a bracelet and two rings corresponding to the description of Mrs. Smith's jewelry, and he was locked up as the robber. He denied the charge. Police said he was intoxicated.

CAPONE TURNS TO CITY HALL FOR NEW POWER

Plot for Political Job Raid Is Revealed.

The corridors of the city hall are a-flutter with the news that Al Capone, seeking new realms of authority, is quietly extending his lines of communication into political jobs, public contracts, control of budgets, and the power that attends it all.

Aldermen, who will not be quoted, speak of demands they have received and of threats made. Officials have revealed the plans of Capone and his band to seize control of whole city departments. But they have spoken only after mentioning their homes and families, and after exacting a promise that they will not be quoted.

Therefore, the chronicling of Capone's present plans for new domain is not done by the customary method of setting down the statements and charges of the principals, but by relating the facts secretly imparted.

Finds Chicago Changed.

Capone, it is told, discovered upon his return from a Philadelphia prison that the beer and booze business was no longer such a prospering concern and that "crime and politics" had been disrupted. The liquor trade, he learned, has been going the way of earlier pursuits of Chicago gangs, the labor racket, vice and gambling, business racketeering, and the like.

Capone decided to bid for political power, and the means to his end, found close by, is the voting strength of labor unions. There have been changes in control of several unions, and there is angling for control of others. In this activity there are: first, the wealth of dues and fees collected from the union members, then the tribute exacted from builders and contractors, and finally the political power exerted through the strength of the union men at the polls.

Politics in itself is not a new field for Capone, but in the past, it is noted, his dealings in politics were not for financial gain but for protection against prosecution for his gang activities.

Serritella Slated for Job.

Daniel Serritella, city sealer, president of the newsboys' union, friend of Mayor Thompson and close henchman of Capone, was selected by the latter, according to the word from the city hall, to become city superintendent of streets and alleys, with control over an annual budget of $7,000,000, and over 3,000 jobs and with supervision also over $5,000,000 spent every year to repair the city streets.

Another phase of this new activity was the passage of an ordinance to create a bureau of plumbing. This ordinance has been advocated strongly—how strongly has been told by several aldermen—by the plumbers' union, of which William (Billygoat) Taglia, another lieutenant of Capone, is the dominant head.

The plan, as it has been described, has been to have a Capone man appointed commissioner of the bureau of plumbing, with power to hire and fire the city plumbers, to create restrictions and rules for building installations, resulting in a czardom over all plumbing work, and therefore all building, in the city. It has been commonly reported that Frank J. Ward was slated to be commissioner of plumbing.

Builders Fear Gang Sabotage.

Builders and contractors and manufacturers have declared, not without fear of exposure to gang reprisal, that the building trades are threatened with a worse reign of gang sabotage than in the days of Mossy Enright and Big Tim Murphy.

It appeared last night that the pressure for the appointment of Serritella as superintendent of streets and alleys had been lifted. The glare of publicity had forced abandonment of the plan, it was reported.

Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works, who is to appoint the superintendent, and who has been noticed by aldermen and others in frequent conferences with Serritella of late, asserted that there is no basis for the report that Serritella will be named. Mr. Wolfe also denied that the Capone element is behind the plumbing ordinance, but he declined to express favor or disapproval of the ordinance.

Capone Lineup Outlined.

In the Capone lineup for the political campaign should be mentioned also the city hall reports that Danny Stanton, gunman in taxi wars, beer runner, and Capone vassal, has usurped power over the city hall clerks' union and that in the recent primary Stanton, with a crew of hoodlums saw to serving the political interests of candidates favored by the Capone-Serritella entente.

Capone also has control, through Mike Carrozza, of the street sweepers' unions, and in this manner he has been able to name the laborers hired to clean the city's streets. It was to enlarge this activity, and to gain direct control of the entire department, that Capone is reported to have sought to force the appointment of Serritella.

In this manner the gang would dictate in what wards the streets should be repaired. This has always been regarded as a powerful influence over an alderman. If he challenges the administration of the street department, the streets of his ward go to pieces, and his constituents send another man to the council.

Appropriation Battle First.

The finance committee was to have been the battleground for the Serritella appointment. The council, in adopting the budget last January, failed to appropriate for the job of superintendent of streets. It had not been filled since the death of Thomas H. Byrne.

Before Commissioner Wolfe could appoint a man, it would be necessary for the council, in a supplementary budget, to appropriate for the position. Therefore the word had gone to many of the aldermen that Serritella was to be named, and that they would be compelled, in one way or another, to vote for restoration of the job in the budget.

The methods used by the Capone heads of the plumbers' union to obtain aldermanic support for the plumbing bureau ordinance have contributed to the unrest of the council chamber. One alderman told with evident trepidation how a business agent had approached him in a dark corridor.

Alderman Tells of Threat.

"I was told to be for the ordinance, and then by way of showing me the consequences of a vote against it, a pair of hands gripped my throat while the agent told me it'd be too bad if I didn't vote right," the alderman said.

In another case an alderman said the agent had stood with his hand significantly on his hip while he lobbied for the ordinance. Other aldermen told of receiving direct threats over the telephone.

"It's a new kind of lobbying to us," said one councilman, "but please don't quote me—I have a family."

The plumbers' union representatives, according to the reports, have found a new way to cut through the secretarial breastworks which have always kept intruders out of Commissioner Wolfe's office. It has been noticeable to many of the employés of the office that when these men call they brush the secretaries aside and rattle on Wolfe's door until they get in. Their entrance at one time was marked with pounding on the glass top of the door to the commissioner's inner office.

Plumbing Ordinance Condemned.

The Civic federation of Chicago has condemned the plumbing ordinance on the ground that it would only create a number of new political jobs. The present system of placing city plumbers under the control of the water bureau and of the health department, to which a number are assigned, is satisfactory, the federation believes.

The ordinance's provision for control over the plumbing code also has aroused opposition. One expert pointed out that the plumbing commissioner could have the code revised so that many existing plumbing installations would not conform to the new code, and the commissioner or his assistants could then go to owners of large buildings and say: "You will have to pay us or change all your plumbing installations."

In case of a slump in the plumbing trade, another observer said, the code could be changed to require much new work to be done on old buildings, providing work for plumbers at the expense of citizens.

Nelson Introduces Measure.

The ordinance has been shunted about the city hall since it was first introduced by Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th] at a meeting of the finance committee. Ald. Nelson in introducing the measure went no farther than to say: "This was handed to me and I am introducing it here." After a few meetings with no discussion the ordinance was referred to Commissioner Wolfe.

From Mr. Wolfe it moved along to Bernard W. Cullen, then superintendent of the bureau of water pipe extension. Cullen, a union plumber, expressed disapproval of the ordinance, telling Wolfe it would be a bad thing for the city. In a few days Cullen was named in charges before the civil service board and was suspended by Commissioner Wolfe.

The charges, which accused Cullen of certifying an employé on the pay roll who had not worked for the time given, were presented to Wolfe by John P. Allen, a division superintendent under Cullen, in the presence of Charles Mulcahey, William O'Brien, and B. L. Cruise, who are business agents and officials of the plumbers' union. Wolfe denied the union men had any hand in Cullen's ouster.

Ward and the Test Suit.

Frank J. Ward, who is reported to have been slated for the post of commissioner of plumbing, is said to be the same Ward who as a taxpayer filed a test suit for an injunction to restrain the city from selling $12,000,000 of city water bonds. In that suit Ward was represented by Nash & Ahern, legal counsel for Capone, and reports in the city hall were that the suit was really intended to pave the way for the sale of the bonds.

The plumbing ordinance is believed to be the outcome of a casual beginning, an incident of gangland.

William Curran, for many years business agent of the plumbers union, was ousted by a gang led by Dapper Dan McCarthy. Curran, so the reports say, rounded up some followers of his own, and prepared to regain his post.

McCarthy appealed to Capone for help, and all the gang chief had to do was to send word to Curran that Curran had best give up his job peacefully. Curran did. Then Capone, realizing the profits to be had from operating the prosperous plumbers union, put Billygoat Taglia in full control.

Battle for the Ordinance.

Then came the scheme for the bureau of plumbing, with its promise of political patronage, contracts, and tribute.

Union officials with good reputations have been pushed aside in the gang's struggle for the ordinance, it is reported to the city hall. It was announced that the Chicago Building Trades council would consider the ordinance, and at the same time the word was broadcast that "Capone wants this ordinance okayed."

When the meeting was held, two weeks ago, there was no one to preside. Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the council, was absent. So was Martin Durkin, vice president. Finally Joseph Corr, a new business agent for the ironworkers' union, was induced to take the chair. Mulcahy, the mouthpiece for Billygoat Taglia, presented the resolution calling for approval of the plumbing ordinance.

It was passed, and the sharp ears of Mulcahy never caught a dissenting voice.

Moore Denies Capone Influence.

Edward F. Moore, deputy commissioner of public works, who had been a strong contender for the post as superintendent of streets, denied last night that he had been "ordered by Capone" to withdraw a bid for the job.

"I have never directly or indirectly talked with Al Capone on any subject in my life," Moore said. He added that at one time, after the death of Superintendent Byrne, he had been urged to try for the place, but that he had preferred to remain in his present place. Mr. Moore left last night with his wife and daughter for an out of town vacation

Jarecki Tells Swanson to Do Own Vote Fraud Prosecuting

County Judge Jarecki yesterday refused to prosecute alleged pre-primary election frauds referred to him by State's Attorney Swanson. In a letter telling his ideas of the functions of his office and that of the state's attorney, Judge Jarecki declares that he cannot act as both prosecutor and judge, but offers the experience he has acquired in eight years of service to aid Swanson.

Mr. Swanson sent a letter to Judge Jarecki a week ago suggesting that the judge assume prosecution of registration day frauds. He advanced the theory that the offenders could be dealt with more efficiently in contempt of court proceedings than under election laws, which provide a small penalty for the violations. At that time the judge, who was first informed of the letter through newspapers, remarked that it seemed to him that some one was trying to pass the buck.

Tells Reasons for Stand.

In his reply yesterday the judge amplified his reasons for having the state's attorney finish the job he started. The judge traced a history of previous prosecutions by the state's attorney's office in which convictions were secured both by Mr. Swanson's aids and the special assistant state's attorney appointed in 1926 for the prosecution of vote frauds. He pointed out that a special grand jury returned a number of indictments for similar offenses early in 1928 and expressed the hope that the pending indictments will be presented to juries in due course.

"During the eight years that I have been county judge I devoted a great deal of time and study to constructive measures designed to insure honestly conducted elections," the letter reads. "I want to assure you of my readiness, on your request, to have detailed to your office trusted and experienced employés with any and all records or other information which will assist you in these and your other pending prosecutions.

Not Proper Procedure.

"I assume from the fact that indictments were returned that you have evidence in hand sufficient to warrant their prompt prosecution and to justify a reasonable hope of conviction. As to prosecutions before the County court for contempt, the evident care of the legislature to prescribe punishments indicates the right to a trial by jury. I have always felt reluctant as a judge to deprive the accused of this right and will only assert contempt powers when the occasion clearly warrants or necessity compels me to do so in order to uphold the dignity of the court.

"However, in any case where the facts indicate and the law warrants a contempt of court I will give immediate consideration to petitions. Obviously, these petitions must be presented to me by you as the proper prosecuting officer. I cannot legally or ethically act as both prosecutor and judge."

Couple Killed When Auto Runs Into Path of Train

Mr. and Mrs. George O. Jackson of Canton, O., were killed yesterday when their automobile was struck by a Grand Trunk railroad train at the Broadway crossing in Gary. The automobile was demolished. Jackson drove from behind a truck into the path of the train. The Jacksons were bound for Kansas City, Mo., to visit Jackson's father.

Two deaths yesterday raised the 1930 Cook county motor toll to 258. The victims:

Arthur H. Lamotte, 63 years old, 1714 Granville avenue. Fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile driven by Miss Florence Green, 17 years old, 3019 North Clark street, at Devon and Clark streets. Miss Green was held.

Mrs. Frances Speilman, 63 years old, 615 East 71st street. Died of injuries incurred on Wednesday when she was struck by an automobile driven by Edward Krause, 7917 Dante avenue, at 71st street and South Chicago avenue.

Probe Chicagoans' Deaths.

The inquest into the death of two Chicagoans who were killed in a grade crossing crash at the Belvidere street crossing of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee electric railroad in Waukegan early yesterday morning was continued by Acting Coroner M. D. Penny. The dead were Louis J. Koppel, 38 years old, 4843 North Troy street, and Harold R. Gresky, 25 years old, 4719 North Lawndale avenue.

Mrs. Grace Lund of Zion, Ill., and Mrs. Anna Koppel, wife of Louis, were seriously injured in the crash. They are reported to be in a critical condition at St. Therese hospital, Waukegan. A fifth member of the party, Bernard Reinschreiber, 2859 Palmer street, was slightly injured. Mrs. Lund had been visiting the Koppels in Chicago and was being taken back to Zion when the auto skidded on the wet pavement and ran into the path of the train.

Waukegan Woman Dies.

Mrs. Selma Hermanson, 49 years old, of 623 Lincoln avenue, Waukegan, died in the Lake County General hospital yesterday of injuries received in an auto accident on April 4. She had been a resident of Waukegan for 27 years.

BOY, 11, SAVED AFTER WET RIDE IN SAILING BOAT

Eleven year old Billy Seymour of North Chicago was playing around the North Chicago water works on the lake front yesterday when William Shirling, 16 years old, came ashore after a sail in his skiff. Billy looked longingly at the skiff and, when the other boy turned his back, hopped in and shoved off.

"I'm just going for a little ride," he called.

For three hours William stood on the wharf as his skiff bobbed away towards the horizon. At last, when the boat was beyond sight, he notified North Chicago police. A plea was sent to the Great Lakes Naval Training station, but the station had no power boats available.

Finally at 5 p. m., when young Shirling and the police had given Billy up for lost, Capt. Richard Smith put out from Waukegan in his fishing tug, My Sweetheart. Capt. Smith and his crew came upon Billy about dusk, five miles off shore, drenched with spray and trying to bail the skiff which seemed about to founder. The tug crew brought him home to his parents' apartment at 16th street and Sheridan road, North Chicago.

Oil Covers Chicago River; Blame Underground Pipe

Pedestrians who glanced downward over the Michigan avenue bridge railing yesterday saw a patch of oil which spread from the mouth of the river to the bridge. City Engineer Gayton stated that the oil apparently had come from a boat or from an underground oil line. He thought the latter suggestion more likely, as the oil was present all day.

SON OF A BISHOP HELD SUSPECT IN OLD MAN'S DEATH

New York, April 18.—[Special.]—James Matthew Maxon Jr., 21, son of the Rt. Rev. Dr. James Matthew Maxon, Episcopal bishop coadjutor of Chattanooga, Tenn., was held tonight for the murder of David Paynter, 73, following a brawl early today in a rooming house in West End avenue. The row started when the student, who had been drinking, apparently went into a frenzy.

The young man, once a journalist student, denied he had struck Paynter, elderly man at the house, on the head with a chair. Two witnesses, however, said Maxon had punched the elderly man and knocked him down before grabbing the chair.

Attacks Three Other Lodgers.

Maxon's efforts to beat three other lodgers and the landlady, Miss Rose Hickey, began at 2:45 a. m.. Through a series of struggles the dingy old house, once a rectory, was in darkness. With a single blow Maxon sent two men headlong through a heavy stone balustrade on the front stoop.

Detectives found Maxon had been engaged in writing a murder mystery thriller. The uncompleted manuscript was found in his room. It was called "The Deadline," and opened with the discovery of a murdered man in his luxuriously furnished apartment."

Miss Hickey said that at 2:45 a. m. she was awakened by a noise in her room on the basement floor. She switched on the light and found Maxon bending over her. The student grasped her arm and she screamed.

Edward Scully and Joseph McGarry, lodgers, and Paynter occupied the adjoining room. Shortly before the scream, however, McGarry had been disturbed by a noise on the second floor. He went to the floor and found the gas fixture in the bathroom had been torn away. Gas was pouring from the open pipe, but Maxon had ignited it.

McGarry hurried into another room and aroused Samuel Ecclesine. Both men, who are 55, pondered on what to do to control the hissing flame. Finally McGarry went to the cellar and tried to turn off the gas. He failed, and Ecclesine telephoned to the gas company. As he hung up and McGarry was climbing the stairs, Miss Hickey screamed.

Tell of Seeing Killing.

Scully and McGarry said when they and Paynter opened the door Maxon was twisting Miss Hickey's arm. They shouted and he turned. Maxon, a college wrestler and football player, moved toward the men. They retreated. Maxon punched Scully, who fell backward into the kitchen. Scully got up and ran into the back yard.

McGary, Ecclesine and Paynter started down the hall. Maxon overtook Paynter. Scully, in the yard looking through a window, and Miss Hickey in the hall, said they saw Maxon kill Paynter with a chair.

Maxon at first refused to talk. Later he spoke freely to the detectives, but insisted he had not struck Paynter, though he might have pushed him.

Bishop Maxon has retained Martin W. Littleton as attorney for his son. The bishop was detained in Chattanooga at the bedside of Mrs. Maxon, who was made ill by her son's plight, but he is expected to arrive tomorrow

GREEKS PARADE TO OBSERVE GOOD FRIDAY

March in Streets

Members of the Greek Orthodox church marched through the west side streets last night in their annual procession in observance of Good Friday. The procession started at the headquarters of the Association of the Greek community at 1101 South Peoria street and ended there after making a circuit of the west side Greek community. The orthodox church has adopted the western calendar and now observes Lent and Easter at the same time as other churches.

Fifty thousand Greeks are expected to attend the Easter services in their churches tomorrow, which will be featured by the annual Easter ceremony of lighting the candles after the lights in the churches are extinguished. Celebrations in the homes of church members will follow.

HEIR WHO WED DOMESTIC SUED BY ANOTHER ONE

New York, April 18.—[Special.]—Marrying a chambermaid when you are a young man of twenty-two and heir to about $120,000,000 is unusual Any one will admit that, even William Willock Jr., who took for his wife last November the pretty Norwegian servant who worked for his mother and elevated her to a place in the social register.

But marrying one maid and, five months later, being sued for breach of promise by another maid, who also worked for your parents, that's breath-taking, But it, too, has happened to young Willock.

Willock is being asked for $250,000 for not having married Catherine McCormick, who two years ago was a servant on the Willocks' Syosset, L. I., estate, admitted Yorke Allen, Willock's lawyer. Mr. Allen declared the young heir will fight the suit every inch of the way, and that he has his parents' support in his stand.

Child Picks Twin Rulers of Tiny Republic of San Marino

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 18.—Presidential elections have just taken place in the secular republic of San Marino, a fiery although minute refuge of independent republicanism in the very heart of the monarchical Italy. San Marino is some 2,500 feet above the Adriatic sea, and only ten miles away from the popular bathing resort of Rimini.

So great is the fear of one man's tyranny that ever since the days of Marinus, the Dalmatian and Christian stone mason who founded the republic of Saint Marinus after his flight from Diocletian's persecution at the beginning of the fourth century, the 13,000 inhabitants of his rock of freedom have voted for two presidents or captain regents as they are called, baffling all attempts popes, kings, and even the mighty Napoleon made to dissolve or incorporate the 22 square mile republic in their respective dominions.

Employ Ancient Ballot.

The presidents or captain regents are elected for six months terms and they hail, one from the nobility, the other from the people. The mode of election is an ancient one. The council of sixty chooses six townsmen and six countrymen from its own members and these are then reduced by election to six. The latter are then divided into three couples, each representing one class, and the names of the three couples are placed in a ballot box on the altar of the cathedral. A child is then called upon to draw out two ballots. Those drawn are the newly elected captain regents.

Pomp and ceremony mark the installation of the new executives who are escorted through the capital by members of the militia and the republican band, clad in the presidential uniforms of black velvet lined with blue silk and adorned with gold lace. These uniforms are the property of the republic and the captains are not allowed to modify their dimensions for better suiting. The captains receive no fixed stipend but they are endowed with the proceeds from the sale of salt which is a state monopoly in San Marino.

Promising forecasts of the new administration's activities are being supported by the completion of San Marino's first railway, to which, however, the Italian State Railways have contributed to a great extent. Premier Mussolini's personal affections are said to be turned very much toward the tiny republic under whose shadow the Duce himself was born at Predappio in Romagna. Costs of the construction within the boundaries have been endorsed by the San Marino Council of Sixty.

Has Own Postage Stamps.

San Marino has adopted Italian coinage for convenience but the republic supports its own judges and police force, issues its own postage stamps and possesses a national army of a few hundred men. The republic is also famous for its noble guard which for lineage and glamorous costumes recalls the noble guard of the Roman pontiff.

The republic suffers from no unemployment nor public debt problems. It has no traffic problem either, since ordinary traffic is impracticable to such an extent that the railway station is being constructed outside the gate of the main town.

BOY DISCOVERS $7,000 IN A BANK SAFE LEFT OPEN

New York, April 18.—[Special.]—Harry Restel, 12, was playing in front of the Century branch of the Interstate Trust company tonight when he brushed against the front door and it flew open. Harry looked inside. No one was there. He saw a big safe with the door open. It was filled with silver.

Harry summoned a policeman, who got in touch with company officials. They hurried to the scene and checked up. Most of the bank's funds, they explained, were shut up in the big vault. But the safe contained $7,367.17. Nothing was missing, they said. The only way they could explain the door being open was that some employé working late in the bank had gone home and forgotten to lock it.

2 PARTIES HOLD BRIEF AND DULL STATE RALLIES

Create Nary a Ripple at Springfield.

-BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 18.—[Special.]—Attendance at the two state conventions, Republican and Democratic, today broke all records—for the minimum.

Gov. Emmerson presided at the Republican family table and Bruce Campbell, who, except for the wet determination of Chicago, would have been the Democratic choice for United States senator, wielded the gavel at his party's pow-wow, which regulars said was a bit short of wow.

Going through the minimum of activity required by the statute, the two conventions came to order, passed the required motions, and took a recess. The Republican delegates will assemble again on June 19 and the Democrats will rally around the wet standard in full force on Aug. 20, the day of their party at the state fair unless the Republican administration changes the date on them.

A Dull, Dead Day.

It was a disappointment to Springfield. There was no buttonholing of delegates. There was no strategy concerning the selection of doorkeepers who might slip friends into select seats, and there were no speeches. The hotels complained that they might have expected more from the state debating society of the plumbers' union.

Some Party Differences.

Gossip was not so much concerned with the candidates as with the questions of party organization. There is Democratic discontent over the fact that Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet continues to hold both his "temporary" post as state chairman and the national committeemanship. His place as national committeeman is assured until 1932, but the Chicago element here believes that Donovan should be replaced as state head by someone who would be of more assistance in Chicago fights. Their whole inclination is to disregard downstate.

Gov. Emmerson has the deciding, practically the only voice, in the selection of a chairman of the Republican state central committee. Two years ago, in his own campaign, he selected Perry B. McCullough of Lawrenceville, the closest friend he had on the committee, as state chairman. Now there is seemingly purposeful pressure behind the report that Cornelius J. "Tip" Doyle, of this congressional district, is considered the most able, all around man on the state central committee and a logical choice for chairman.

MUSSOLINI PUTS O. K. ON WORK OF HIS NAVY ENVOYS

Italy Sees Japan, Britain as Only Winners.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 18.—Complete approval of their work at the London naval conference was extended by Premier Mussolini to Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, Admiral Sirianni, Admiral Acton, and other members of the Italian delegation today. Il duce received the delegates at the Plazzo Venezia. Sig. Grandi and Admiral Sirianni will leave Rome for London Sunday noon to sign the treaty on Tuesday.

Expressions of disappointed rancor about the treaty and the whole London parley, which Premier Mussolini calls the "conference of paradoxes," are growing. The Japanese and the British reaped the only success out of the three power pact, and Uncle Sam got robbed, according to the Italians.

See Turning Point in History.

And this, they add, marks an important turning point in world history. The Italians look at the probable outcome of the treaty which is to be signed next Tuesday, as it affects England, the United States, and Japan, in this way:

England and the United States at first opposed the Japanese demands for a higher proportion of light cruisers and submarines than was granted Japan at the Washington treaty. England did so in response to the dominions and the United States in response to the western states. Prime Minister MacDonald and President Hoover, however, rather than face the eventuality of the conference accomplishing nothing, which would have aroused pacifist opposition, gave in to the Japanese demands and handed over a big and undisputable success to Japan.

U. S. Gives Most.

The United States gave the most, it is said. Japan, it is believed here, actually wins parity with the United States by the treaty, for she has naval bases which will enable her to handle her forces with elasticity in confrontation to the American forces which, while more numerous, are tied down to distant bases, which diminishes their radius of action in the seas which would be the theater of any clash with Japan.

Great Britain has been more shrewd, the Italians point out. She keeps her superiority over Japan with her bases at Singapore and Hongkong.

The Italians are speculating on what will happen to the three power accord when it reaches the United States senate.

Naval Pact Ready to Sign; U.S. Envoys to Sail Tuesday

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 18.—The drafting of the naval limitation agreement by the committee of which American Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow is chairman was completed tonight and the London conference leaders are now confident that the treaty will be signed Tuesday forenoon. The fact that Admiral Takarabe is booked to leave London Wednesday morning is accepted as an indication that the Japanese delegation, which is awaiting approval of the proposed treaty from Tokio, expects to sign it on Tuesday.

The American delegation is packing and expects to sail on the Leviathan Tuesday night.

Dispute Over Preamble.

The wording of the preamble to the treaty provoked considerable dispute. The Americans wanted the preamble to state that the great step toward world disarmament represented by the treaty was made possible by the outlawry of war by the Kellogg pact. The British and French wanted to give the credit to both the Kellogg pact and the league of nations. The Americans refused to subscribe to the tribute to the league.

The deadlock was broken by an agreement not to mention either the league or the Kellogg pact in the preamble, although this was done over the protest of the French.

The length of the proposed treaty is about the same as the Washington naval limitation treaty of 1922.

Provisions Show U. S. Loser.

Provisions of the treaty, which leaked out today, disclose that while under the three power agreement the superiority of the American to the Japanese navy will be decreased 10 per cent, the inferiority of the American to the British navy will be prolonged indefinitely. The net effect of the treaty is that America reduce its building program to approximately the limits which the British sought to impose on it at the Geneva conference of 1927.

Although battleships will be reduced to fifteen each for America and Great Britain, the British capital ship fleet will remain superior to the American fleet by virtue of the possession of the superdreadnaughts Rodney and Nelson, which England was allowed to lay down after the Washington treaty.

To establish parity in battleships the American delegation demanded the right to build a ship similar to the Rodney, but failed to press the demand in face of the British admiralty's opposition.

According to American Secretary of State Stimson, parity in cruisers has been established by the Anglo-American agreement giving Great Britain 339,000 tons, including fifteen 2 inch gun ships, and America 327,000 tons, including eighteen 8 inch gun ships.

President Hoover previously had pronounced twenty-one 8 inch gun ships to Great Britain's fifteen as essential to parity. Under the proposed treaty, however, America agrees not to complete, during the life of the agreement, more than fifteen big cruisers, the exact limit Great Britain proposed for each nation at Geneva.

Four Additional British Ships.

But in addition to the fifteen big cruisers Great Britain possesses she has four 7.5 inch gun cruisers of approximately 10,000 tons each, which the American navy general board regards as nearly equal in power to 8 inch gun ships.

When this conference opened the British gave assurances that these four cruisers would be scrapped so that there would be no question of America having a preponderance of big cruisers to offset Great Britain's preponderance of small cruisers. Under the proposed treaty, however, Great Britain is not required to scrap more than two of these ships—one in 1933 and the other in 1934.

The other two, the treaty says, Great Britain "may," not "shall," scrap in 1935. The British say they will not do this unless France agrees eventually to a great reduction in her cruiser and submarine building program.

Britain Wins Cruiser Edge.

Thus it comes out that Great Britain is to have no less than 17 big cruisers during the life of the treaty, while America is obligated not to complete more than 15. Therefore, during the life of the treaty, America concedes Great Britain a preponderance in big cruisers, instead of gaining an American preponderance, on which conception cruiser parity was based.

Outside of the 18 eight inch gun cruisers America is allowed and the ten six inch gun cruisers she already possesses, the United States may build as many big cruisers as it likes within the limit of aggregate cruiser tonnage allowed her. She could build eight 9,000 ton cruisers. But she could equip these ships only with six inch guns under the terms of the treaty.

SERIOUS RIOTS IN INDIA; TELEGRAPH WIRES ARE CUT

Gandhi Amazed as British Fail to Arrest Him.

BULLETIN.

CALCUTTA, Bengal, India, April 19 (Saturday).—(AP)—Serious rioting was reported this forenoon from Chittagong, in Bengal province. Telegraph wires were cut and the only information available came in sparse radio notices.

Unexplained police activity has existed here since 4 a. m. Armed police and armored cars were posted at all strategic points in the city.

BOMBAY, India, April 18. — (AP) — India as a whole remained comparatively quiet today, both as regards demonstrations and arrests, but there were some signs tonight of restlessness.

At Calyan, a suburb of Bombay, the police arrested Jamnadas Mehta, formerly a prominent member of the legislative assembly who recently joined the civil disoberience movement.

Plans Move to Bardoli.

Mahatma Gandhi remained in the Navsari district today, but made plans to leave for Bardoli tomorrow.

Mr. Gandhi, addressing 500 followers during the afternoon, again expressed surprise that he was still at liberty while many of those whom he "instigated to break the salt laws have been cast into jail."

Reaffirming his civil disobedience doctrine in another speech, he said: "We must be prepared to sacrifice men of pure character. If swaraj [independence] is built on their ashes it will be a glorious structure. I would dance for joy if you received bullet wounds in your bare chest, but if you were guilty of violence tears of blood would come to my eyes."

20,000 Take Liquor Pledge.

One of the day's developments was the action of a band of women headed by Mrs. Gandhi in opening a campaign of picketing the liquor shops in Jalalpur and other places in the Surat district. Miss Mithuben Petet, one of the leaders of the campaign, said that women had achieved what the men were unable to do, since already 20,00 men had pledged themselves to give up liquor.

The viceroy's executive council met at Simla today and reviewed the situation in India.

Mr. Darrow will visit Buffalo, N. Y., on April 28 following a debate on the prohibition question in Schenectady, and there he will decide whether to undertake the defense of Lila Jimerson, the "Red Lilac" of the Seneca Indians, who has pleaded guilty to second degree murder in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand.

MANHOLE COVER BLAST SCARES NEW YORKERS

New York, April 18.—[Special.]—A manhole cover over a gas main at Madison avenue and 46th street, in front of the Hotel Roosevelt, was hurled twenty feet in the air by an explosion this afternoon.

Many persons afoot there, fearing explosions in five other manholes, scattered into neighboring buildings.

The cover, two and a half by three feet and weighing about 300 pounds, was broken to bits. A number of pedestrians narrowly escaped being struck.

All manhole covers in the neighborhood were taken off by firemen to prevent any other explosions.

The cover which blew up was one set on what is called a gas main pocket. The main runs a few feet below the surface, and in case of a leak or other trouble the pocket permits attention to be given to it without delay. It was said the explosion had been caused by gasoline and oil leaking into the pocket. No leak in the main was discovered.

TEACHER SUES TO END 'MARRIAGE ON PROBATION'

Miss Edna Earl McCormick, 23 years old, 32 West 15th street, Chicago Heights, a school teacher, yesterday appeared before Circuit Judge Lynch to demand the annulment of her marriage to Clarence Molyneaux, also of Chicago Heights. She testified that she was the victim of a strange post-nuptial pact which was entered into when she became hungry after her wedding.

She was secretly married May 16, 1929, she said, because if her marriage were made known she would lose her position. After the ceremony she asked her husband to get her something to eat. He refused and proposed a probation marriage under which she was to maintain silence for three years. At the end of that period, she said, he promised to furnish her an apartment if he still loved her. She said that she had not seen him since that date.

The judge took the case under advisement.

BOLSHEVIK WAR ON EASTER FAILS TO WIN RUSSIANS

Good Friday Observed in Traditional Manner.

MOSCOW, April 18.—(AP)—Despite recent onslaughts upon religion by the atheist societies and prohibition of the public sale of Easter eggs, cakes, candles, and other paschal articles, the Easter holidays are being celebrated by Russia's Christians with only slight variations over those of previous years.

In most cases Russian housewives overcame the government's objection to the public sale of paschal tokens by making these articles at home themselves. As Easter is the biggest holiday in the Orthodox calendar, many families even borrowed money to enable them to entertain their friends at home with true Russian hospitality.

Observe Good Friday.

Good Friday was observed today throughout the country in the traditional Orthodox manner, without molestation by soviet authorities or the atheistic organization.

In accordance with the usual ritual of the Greek Orthodox church, figures representing Christ interred in coffins were borne by priests with great solemnity around the churches, while thousands of worshipers followed in procession.

Many parishes were so impoverished, however, that they could not afford to adopt the usual black draperise which adorn the churches on Good Friday.

Atheist Activities Mild.

The Anti-God societies confined their activities to atheistic lectures, films and unobtrusive indoor manifestations.

Considerable surprise was caused today by the announcement that trade union authorities had decided to recognize as holidays April 19, 20, and 21, which are the Easter days; May 30, Ascension day; Aug. 6, Transfiguration day, and Dec. 25 and 26, at Christmas time.

This applies to all workers in factories, state cooperative enterprises and other institutions where the five day week has not been instituted.

As all these holidays were previously considered as ordinary working days by the authorities, the decision is regarded as a distinct concession to the religious liberty of the individual.

Try to Lure Workers.

But on the other hand, anti-religious societies took active steps to discourage workers from attending Easter services tomorrow night and Sunday. To divert their attention from purely spiritual matters workers will be sold tickets to amusement houses at greatly reduced rates, and the performances will purposely begin two hours later than usual and will last until 2 o'clock in the morning, so that the workers will miss the midnight mass tomorrow.

As a further diversion the performances will be followed with dancing until 5 o'clock in the morning.

BROOKHART GETS REBUKE FOR HIS TILSON CHARGE

Washington, D. C., April 18.—[Special.]—Senator Smith W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.] evoked a reprimand from Vice President Curtis today when he described Representative John Q. Tilson [Rep., Conn.], majority floor leader in the house, as a "water carrier" for the "Wall street" Republican national committee.

Brookhart read to the senate and caustically criticized a statement by Tilson attacking the export debenture plan, which was released by the Republican national committee press service last Monday. He said he did not propose to criticize Tilson personally except in so far as he acted as a "water carrier" for the committee.

Pounding with his gavel, the Vice President warned the Iowa senator that his reference to a member of congress was improper. Brookhart replied that he would confine his remarks to the statement.

"This statement says that if the export debenture plan on wheat is adopted there will be retaliation by foreign countries," Brookhart continued. "This is only another fallacy being cooked up to injure Republican senators who represent agriculture but who refuse to submit to this Wall street committee."

POLICE GET CLEW TO VON BUELOW JEWEL ROBBERS

Mrs. Lottie Brenner von Buelow, whose home on Michigan avenue was raided by gunmen and robbed of $50,000 jewelry on March 31, informed Lieut. Andrew Barry of the detective bureau yesterday that she had received a letter, postmarked Hammond, Ind., instructing her to leave $5,000 near the municipal asphalt plant at 9038 South State street if she wished her gems returned. A decoy package was left there and the spot placed under police surveillance.

Yesterday the police arrested Edwin Benson, an unemployed bricklayer, 411 South Homan avenue, who, they said, seemed to be loitering near the decoy. Benson, who seemed bewildered by his arrest, explained he was passing the spot on a job hunting expedition. The police said he had made no attempt to disturb the bucket under which the packet had been placed.

Specimens of Benson's handwriting bore no resemblance to the script in the letter, and Benson declared he had never heard of Mrs. Von Buelow.

ROBBED OF $975 BY GUNMEN.

Shortly after opening his meat market at 1218 South Kedzie avenue yesterday, Morris Lubman, 1237 South Turner avenue, was robbed of $975 by two gunmen, who locked him in a garage in the rear.

ADVISE AUTOISTS TO DODGE EASTER CAR BLOCKADES

Week-End Drivers to Face Several Detours.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Easter week-end, with an outlook for fair weather, will find the highways crowded with holiday motorists. The Chicago Motor club suggests that drivers map their excursions to dodge as many as possible of the blockades of cars at intersections of important pavements. Motorists will encounter several detours in the metropolitan area as well as the familiar bottle necks.

The outer drive between 39th and 51st streets and the inner drive between 16th and 23d streets will be closed for another week for paving. Traffic is directed east on 39th street to Lake Park avenue, south to Hyde Park boulevard and thence east to Jackson park.

Start North Side Paving.

On the north side, the Lincoln park authorities have started repaving the outer drive, which was broken by a storm last winter. One way traffic will continue to use the route during rush hours.

On the west side, work has been started on the paving and widening of Washington boulevard between Thatcher and Lathrop avenues. Traffic will continue over its accustomed route, south on Thatcher, east on Madison street and north on Lathrop.

Other reports on the highways follow:

MANNHEIM ROAD—Closed between Lake street and St. Charles road from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. on week days and from 8 a. m. to 12 p. m. on Saturdays. The viaduct over the C. & N. W. railroad tracks is being repaved. Traffic directed east on Lake street to 25th avenue south on 25th avenue to St. Charles road, then west on St. Charles road to Mannheim road.

22D STREET BRIDGE—Over the Des Plaines river in poor condition. Traffic advised to turn south on 1st avenue to 31st street, east on 21st street to Des Plaines avenue, then north on Des Plaines avenue to 22d street.

U. S. ROUTE 20 AND 12—Closed between Forsythe avenue, in Whiting, and Guthrie avenue, in Gary. Traffic is directed not to turn east on 119th street in Whiting, but to continue south on Forsyth avenue in East Chicago, five miles to Michigan avenue in Hammond, east on Michigan avenue to Fifth avenue in Gary, thence east on 5th avenue to the Dunes highway.

96TH AVENUE—Closed to traffic between 183d street and Lincoln highway. Traffic directed west on 143d street to Wolf road, south on Wolf road to Lincoln highway, then east on Lincoln highway to 96th avenue.

HARLEM AVENUE—Closed to traffic between Grand avenue and North avenue. Traffic directed east on Grand avenue to Sayre street, south on Sayre street to North avenue, then west on North avenue to Harlem avenue.

123D STREET—Closed between Kean avenue and Harlem avenue. Traffic directed south on Kean avenue to 131st street, east on 131st street to Harlem avenue, and then north on Harlem avenue to 123d street.

The summary of road conditions was prepared by the central traffic bureau.

Supreme Court Upholds Extradition for Neimoth

The prosecuting authorities of Baltimore can have Willie Neimoth, reputed member of the Saltis gang of beer runners, if he can be found. The Illinois Supreme court yesterday decided that Neimoth should go to Baltimore to stand trial for a robbery committed in that city nearly four years ago. He is at liberty on a $10,000 bond pending appeal on an adverse ruling of a lower court in his fight against extradition.

Neimoth is charged with being one of a gang of bandits who committed the Baltimore robbery on Oct. 1, 1926. The robbers escaped with a $47,500 pay roll of Sonneborn & Co., clothing manufacturers. One of the bandits was killed accidentally when the automobile in which they were fleeing collided with another car, causing the discharge of a sawed off shotgun.

Arrested and Set Free.

About six weeks after the robbery Neimoth was arrested in Chicago. The Baltimore authorities sent witnesses to prove that Neimoth was one of the bandits. He won his discharge, however, on a writ of habeas corpus.

Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chott and Chief of Detectives Stege, then a captain, took an interest in the case and said at the time that they would see that Neimoth some day would be sent to Baltimore to face a jury.

Neimoth was arrested again early last year, and attorneys promptly filed a new petition for a habeas corpus writ to prevent his extradition.

The case was transferred from one court to another until it finally appeared before the late Judge Frank Comerford. Judge Comerford planned to speed the case to a decision, but the gangster failed to show up, allowing a $20,000 bond to be forfeited.

Appeals Extradition Ruling.

Later Neimoth surrendered and the bond forfeiture was set aside. Prosecutor Chott pressed the matter and Judge Otto Kerner ordered the extradition despite the ruling in the previous habeas corpus case.

Neimoth appealed to the Supreme court under a newly enacted statute allowing such procedure. In the meantime he has been at liberty under a $10,000 bond signed by George and Agnes Gohne, 1280 West 73d street.

DIXIE SHERIFF MISSING; FOUL PLAY IS FEARED

His Blood Stained Auto Found in Swamp.

Tallahassee, Fla., April 18.—(AP)—Mystery surrounding the disappearance of Sheriff I. K. Horn of Seminole county, Georgia, whose blood stained automobile was found in an Ocklocknee river swamp near here deepened tonight.

Sheriff's officers of adjoining Georgia and Florida counties conducted a search in the belief that Horn had met with foul play while en route from Donalsonville, Ga., to Arcadia, La., for a prisoner. He has not been seen since he left Donalsonville Tuesday.

Seek Finder of Car.

Meanwhile, officers said they were endeavoring to locate the man who first announced discovery of the car. Sheriff Scott Gregory said he did not know the name of the man who said at the time he knew the car belonged to Sheriff Horn.

A pair of handcuffs were locked to the steering wheel of the car. Inside were a bloodstained blanket and brick. Sheriff Gregory said he believed the car had been parked in the swamp for two or three days.

Warrant Received.

At Arcadia, officers said a warrant was received from Horn on April 3 asking them to arrest and hold Amos Harlowe for alleged liquor law violation in Seminole county, Georgia. They had been unable to locate Harlowe, who was recently employed on a near-by farm and did not know that Horn had started to Arcadia for the man.

CAPONE LAWYER ASKS DIRECTED INCOME VERDICT

Says Limitation Statute Enters Into Case.

Defense counsel yesterday began arguments for a directed verdict after the government had rested its income tax fraud case against Ralph J. Capone, and Federal Judge Wilkerson sent the jury home for the second week-end since the trial began.

Dennis M. Kelleher, chief counsel for Capone, pleaded the statute of limitations on four indictments charging willful failure to pay income taxes for the years 1922, 1923, 1924, and 1925. With respect to an indictment charging false statements and concealment of assets in connection with the $1,000 compromise offer which Capone made in October, 1927, Attorney Kelleher argued that the revenue act making this offense a misdemeanor was not passed until 1928.

Argues Other Points.

Two other indictments, each with four counts, charge Capone with "attempts to cheat, swindle, and defraud" the United States in connection with the same offer in compromise. Attorney Kelleher argued that defrauding the government necessarily entailed obtaining money from its coffers, and that concealing funds before they were in possession of the government could not come under the fraud statute.

Assistant Prosecutor Jacob Grossman replied that Capone had signed a consent agreement and the government's assessment of $4,065 on his own deficiency tax returns amounted to a lien or a judgment for that amount. With the offer in compromise, Capone represented himself as insolvent, and the government has introduced testimony showing he had $25,000 on deposit at the time.

Penalty Is Ten Years.

The offense known as attempting to "cheat, swindle and defraud" the government is a felony, and the penalty is a maximum of $10,000 fine and ten years in prison.

The government will resume arguments on Mr. Kelleher's motion on Monday. Additional government testimony yesterday purported to show that $1,851,840 was deposited in Capone's several accounts at the Pinkert State bank, Cicero, during the years 1925, 1926, 1927, and 1928, when the defense contends he was "a poor race horse man."

CULTISTS ADMIT KILLING; GIVEN PRISON TERMS

CRIMINAL COURT.

Ira Johnson El, murder, sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary; Mose Jackson and Eugene Jackson, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years each in the penitentiary, by Judge Walter P. Steffen.

Theodore Sadkowski, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Harry Fisher.

Three colored cultists gave up their fight yesterday for freedom and pleaded guilty to the charge of murdering Policeman William Gallagher of the East Chicago station on Sept. 25, 1929. Ira Johnson El, 50 years old, who claims to be the leader of a so-called Moorish cult, was given a sentence of life imprisonment, while Mose Jackson Bey, 30 years old, and his father, Eugene Jackson Bey, 57 years old, were given sentences of one to fourteen years each on charges of manslaughter.

The killing of Policeman Gallagher, and also of Sergt. Jesse Hults, occurred at 4139 South Park way. The police were searching for Kirkman Bey, deposed leader of the cult, who had been kidnaped.

The state had nearly finished presenting its evidence when the defendants told Judge Walter P. Steffen they wanted to throw themselves on the mercy of the court. They were started to trial several months ago, but one of the jurors became ill and the case had to be postponed.

SINGER TAKES DRUG CURE.

SEES HOOVER CHANGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 18.—[Special.]—President Hoover, in the opinion of W. H. Stayton, chairman of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, expressed in a letter bared by the senate lobby committee today, "is beginning to doubt whether prohibition can be enforced."

Writing on Feb. 15 to Charles S. Wood, Philadelphia, Pa., a vice president of the wet organization, Stayton asserted his opinion of the President's changing attitude was based on discussion with members of both houses and other high public officials, and added that Mr. Hoover "wants to take plenty of time to consider it, but he is being abused too much."

Introduction of Stayton's letter came in the midst of testimony from H. H. Curran, president of the association, who, on the committee grill for the third successive day, declared the "swing of the pendulum" is reflected in the refusal of congress to enact harsher enforcement measures and the failure of the government to invoke the Jones 5 and 10 law penalties against violators.

Wants Atterbury on Stand.

In his letter Stayton advised Wood of plans for the presentation of wet evidence to the house judiciary committee during the recent prohibition hearings and of the hope of Representative George Graham [Rep., Pa.] the judiciary committee chairman, that W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad; Pierre du Pont, and former Senator James Wadsworth of New York could be induced to testify.

"My own feeling," continued Stayton, "as I talk with senators, members of congress, and public officials here, is that Mr. Hoover is beginning to doubt whether prohibition can be enforced. He wants to take plenty of time to consider it, but he is being abused a little too much, and I believe that if Gen. Atterbury should take the stand it would cause a great many people to be more generous as to Mr. Hoover's attitude.

"I think there are thousands of people—and especially prominent people here—who would at once say that if Gen. Atterbury, with his strong convictions on this subject, is willing to wait for Mr. Hoover's calm consideration, then the rest of us ought equally to be willing to wait—and I believe that a real service would thereby be done to the Republican party."

Seized Letters Tab Raskob.

Evidence in the form of letters seized by the committee's investigators from the association's files indicating that notwithstanding his testimony that he never mixed his wet views with his duties as chairman of the Democratic national committee, John J. Raskob did canvas Democrats for contributions to the association, was read into the record by Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.].

According to the letters produced by Robinson, the appeal last December to 494 of the largest contributors to the Democratic national committee treasury netted the association 12 contributions aggregating $875, while a similar appeal to Republicans by Lammot du Pont, also a director of the association, resulted in five responses totaling $2,125.

"Evidently," said Robinson as he flashed the letters in Curran's face, "the three-fourths of the people you say oppose prohibition did not come rushing up with the funds for the great revolt."

Sees Revolt at Ballot Box.

"The revolt," Curran retorted, "is at the ballot box."

"I do not know," asserted Curran, "that they are so opposed to prohibition within, by, and for the states. I think it is none of my business if Alabama desires prohibition, but when Alabama tries to put it over on New York, my state, through the agency not only of the federal government, but even in the constitution, I deeply resent that, and I am sure it is a form of legalized tyranny that can never succeed or prevail, nor continue."

"Members of congress are here for many years and it is a great nation," continued Curran, "and the pendulum has a long wide swing before the nation shows a change, and in this case, it is coming, senator, certainly and surely. There is a tide of opinion that cannot be stopped. It is on the way."

Curran Argues with Walsh.

Curran argued good naturedly with Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.] over the "poor showing made by the association's congressional candidates in a number of states in the 1928 election until the Montana senator reached the name of Representative M. A Michaelson [Rep., Ill.] in the list of candidates supposedly indorsed by the wets.

"Indorsed Michaelson?" asked Curran in an amazed tone. "We did not support Michaelson, I hope.

Michaelson, who was acquitted of charges of smuggling liquor into the country under a "freedom of the port" order, actually was indorsed by the Anti-Saloon league and the inclusion of his name in the wet association's list of candidates was an error on the part of the clerk who prepared the report, it was disclosed today.

"Why, my goodness," declared Curran, as the hearing room crowd roared with laughter, "Michaelson is the 'dry' congressman who was arrested by dry agents. He bought crockery in Panama, or somewhere, which turned out to be whisky when it landed in the United States. O, we never supported him."

CHICAGO HEIGHTS BLAZE CAUSES $150,000 DAMAGE

Damage of $150,000 was caused yesterday by a fire which started in a garage in the rear of the Rau & Co. department store at 16th street and Otto boulevard, Chicago Heights, and swept through the Rau store and five other shops on the first floor of the building. The Rau store is operated by Marshall Field & Co.

The fire started with an explosion in an oil burning stove in the office of the garage and burned through the ceiling to the furniture department of the Rau store on the second floor. Fire equipment from Matteson, Homewood, South Chicago Heights, and Harvey was called to assist the Chicago Heights department, which was handicapped by small water mains. Two trucks and three automobiles in the Dixie Highway garage were destroyed.

RUSH WORK ON APPROACH TO NEW LINK SPAN

Work on the north approach to the new outer drive link bridge to be built at the mouth of the Chicago river is being pushed by Lincoln park officials. The removal of a section of the warehouse on Ogden slip is nearly complete. This was made necessary to allow the extension of Lake Shore drive south from Ohio street.

Workmen also are busy constructing the drive extension between the slip and Ohio street. The roadway will be elevated and will cross over Grand avenue, which is to be depressed at that point. Two bridges are to be built, one across the slip and the other across the river. Contracts for the Lincoln park board's share of the work will be let soon, Warren Wright, president of the board, said.

Effort to Get Action Is Defeated.

Washington, D. C., April 18.—[Special.] — A resolution adopted today barred prohibition, politics, and religion as topics of discussion at future sessions of the Daughters of the American revolution. A resolution to this effect offered today by Mrs. Robert J. Johnston, acting chairman of the resolutions committee was approved by the delegates attending the thirty-ninth continental congress of the D. A. R.

The action of the congress came as a surprise to most delegates and was prompted by the attempt of certain dry delegates to have the D. A. R. go on record in favor of the dry law enforcement.

Resents Stand; Resigns.

New York, April 18.—[Special.]—The opposition of the Daughters of the American Revolution to reduction of armament and to the world court has resulted, it was disclosed today, in the resignation from that organization of Mrs. William Thayer Brown, who has contributed large sums to the support of the D. A. R. through the Essex chapter of New Jersey, of which she is an influential member.

Mrs. Brown revealed at her home in West Orange, N. J., that she had telegraphed her resignation to the president general of the D. A. R. at Washington, where the organization is in convention.

"As a member of the daughters' organization almost from its inception," her telegram read, "I wish to record my emphatic protest against the position taken respecting the rejection of disarmament and the world court."

Wets Continue to Keep Lead in Poll of Literary Digest

New York, April 18.—[Special.]—Repeal of the eighteenth amendment has cornered 41 per cent of the votes in the Literary Digest's poll, it was announced in the weekly tabulation today.

Ballots now are in from every state in the Union, with Arizona, Wyoming, Nevada, and New Mexico as the latest comers. The vote in these most recent states to be tabulated has changed the proportional standing scarcely at all, the Digest announced.

So far 3,175,972 ballots have been cast, with 1,308,816 for repeal, 951,475 for modification and 915,681 for enforcement. Dr. William Seaver Woods, editor in chief of the magazine, declared today that 2,000,000 more ballots are expected to be in before the poll closes.

Editorially the Digest this week discusses the modification vote, which is claimed enthusiastically as an argument by both the wets and drys.

"The drys," says the Digest, "argue that many sincere prohibitionists, disgusted with the scandals of enforcement and anxious for reform, have marked the modification square as a compromise rather than vote either for repeal or for a continuation of present conditions.

"On the other hand, the wets consider that they have a clear title to the modification vote, which specifies light wines and beer, and have no hesitation in lumping it with the repeal total as the anti-prohibition vote."

BOAT CAPSIZES; BOY DROWNS.

Duluth, Minn., April 18.— (AP) —George Jurick, 17, a high school pupil, was drowned when his sailboat capsized near the entrance to the Duluth ship canal today. Four boy companions clung to the overturned boat bottom in the icy lake water for 20 minutes until rescue by a coast guard cutter.

RAILWAY HEAD TO HELP RUSSIA REVAMP LINES

Ralph Budd Accepts Soviet Invitation.

President Ralph Budd of the Great Northern railroad confirmed a report yesterday that he will act as adviser to the Russian soviet government on the rebuilding of its railroad system along the lines of American railroad standards and practices.

He was in Chicago, en route for St. Paul, when word of the invitation made to him by Russia was received here. He announced that he had accepted and will sail for Europe June 1. He said he understood he was wanted to advise on the reconstruction and rehabilitation of Russian railroads.

Climatic Conditions Similar.

"I expect to spend three months there," he said, "as a combination of vacation and work. I believe I was asked to go there because climatic and topographical conditions of the Great Northern railroad are similar to conditions in Russia."

Mr. Budd said the invitation was general in its terms and he had been considering it for some time. He will make any survey and give any advice requested, he declared.

President Budd's home is in St. Paul. His first railroad job was as rodman with the Chicago Great Western railway in 1899. He advanced to assistant engineer in 1902 when he joined the engineering department of the Rock Island lines as roadmaster. During the next four years he became general roadmaster, general superintendent of construction and division engineer.

Three Years in Panama.

Mr. Budd went to the Panama canal as chief engineer of the Panama railroad in 1906, remaining there until 1909 when he returned and became chief engineer of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle railway and affiliated lines. In 1913 he went to the Great Northern as assistant to the president and was appointed chief engineer the same year. In 1918 he was made executive vice president and on Oct. 9, 1919, he was elected president.

His departure for Russia will have no effect on the proposed merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads, Mr. Budd said. The merger plan recently was conditionally approved by the interstate commerce commission and its status is unchanged, Mr. Budd declared.

HUNT FOR MISSING HUSBAND.

The police yesterday began a search for Emery C. Tamblyn, 29 years old, of Maplewood, Minn., after receiving a letter from his wife enclosing a photograph of his 1 year old daughter, Kathleen. Mrs. Tamblyn said she last heard from her husband in Chicago on Feb. 19.

EVANSTON GIRL TELLS POLICE OF KIDNAP ROBBERY

Miss Natalie Kosak, 24 years old, 1118 North Hoyne avenue, reported to the Evanston police yesterday that a bandit forced her into his automobile in the 1100 block on Davis street and after driving her two miles away robbed her of $720 which she was taking to the City National bank for the Hudson Motor Sales company, 1820 Ridge avenue, Evanston. She is employed as a bookkeeper by the motor company.

Miss Kosak said that the man stopped his car at the curb and alighted, keeping his hand in his pocket, as though carrying a gun. He stepped up behind her, she said, and threatened to "blow her head off" if she made any outcry. The bandit then drove her to Brummel street and Clyde avenue, where he put her out, after taking the envelope containing the money, she said.

The police were unable to find any witnesses of the holdup, although Davis street is crowded in the early afternoon.

BRUSSELS, April 18.—(AP)—The Belgian government today conferred the Grand Cross of the Crown order upon Owen D. A. OF C. SEEKS TO WIDEN SCOPE OF TAX SESSION

Wants Assembly Action to Solve All Problems.

The Chicago Association of Commerce joined yesterday in urging Gov. Emmerson to permit wider latitude to the general assembly in its proposed special session, so that the taxation problems of Cook county may be solved to the satisfaction of the people.

The association also urged the governor to have the legislature consider a program for revision of the assessing and reviewing methods in use in the county.

What Governor Proposes.

Gov. Emmerson has expressed the view that the special session will be called to consider only such emergency measures as will permit the county governments to function through the year. He has held that permanent remedies, such as the establishment of budgetary restrictions on the tax spending bodies, should await the action of the regular session of the assembly in January.

While the governor has been offering support to such temporary plans for Cook county, he has been seeking support for a revenue amendment to the constitution which will lower the tax burden upon real estate, fixing the burden elsewhere.

Keep Plan Secret.

Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the citizens' committee which is preparing a plan of legislative relief for Cook county, has indicated that the plan would set forth a comprehensive and permanent legislative program, including restrictions which would prevent further extravagances by public officials.

The plan was to be made public today, but Mr. Strawn, when interviewed yesterday, stated that he had been in communication with Gov. Emmerson, and that the governor had asked that the plan be not published until another conference can be had between them. This will be some time next week, Mr. Strawn thought.

Cafe Operator Is Arrested When Gun Is Found in Car

Morris Waldman, 30 years old, 3727 Pine Grove avenue, part owner of the Wigwam café at 3750 Broadway, was arrested yesterday by Sergt. Edward Allman's detective squad when he was found in an automobile at Roscoe street and Broadway with a loaded revolver on the seat beside him. Waldman was taken to the detective bureau, where he was charged with carrying concealed weapons and released on bonds of $1,000.

Defeated Foe to Support Williston in 49th Ward

United States Marshal Henry C. W. Laubenheimer, who sponsored the candidacy of George A. Williston for alderman of the 49th ward, announced yesterday that Frederick Atkinson, who had been an opponent of Williston, is now supporting him. Williston and Daniel Dever, son of former Mayor Dever, are pitted against each other in the run-off election to be held May 6 to fill the council vacancy caused by the election of Ald. E. I. Frankhouser to the Circuit bench.

Realty Dealer Found Dead in Lagoon; Heart Fails

Patrick H. Dawson, 68 years old, 133 North Menard avenue, Austin real estate dealer since his retirement from the police department in 1912, was found dead yesterday in five feet of water in a lagoon in Columbus park, where he had gone for a morning walk. It is believed that he fell into the lagoon during a heart attack, to which, according to his sister, Mrs. Margaret Ryan, he has been subject in recent years.

The Style Story for Spring

THESE Four Famous Master Craftsmen were never before assembled in one room to give an American maufacturer the benefit of their life's experience and judgment in selecting the best styles of All England to be reproduced for All America.

The friendships formed in previous trips made it possible to secure their combined co-operation on our last visit, although these men represent four competitive English Bootmakers—Bartley and Sons, G. W. Bunting, Ltd., Allen and Bridge, and Manfield and Sons—all competing for the finest trade in England and Europe. They have made boots for the Royal Family of England, the Princes of Europe and even the Rajahs of India.

Their knowledge of the innermost secrets of custom boot-making was invaluable to us in reproducing in our factory the masterpieces they made by hand.

We suggested this London Style Conference because London is recognized as the source of Men's Styles, just as Paris is for Women's Styles. We thought if any one in England would know what the best dressed men in London were wearing, these four men should be able to tell us, because they are making them every day.

We spread on the table all the newest models, lasts, leathers, patterns and the latest designs suggested by the customers of these four English firms, and through a process of elimination there was a unanimous approval of the Styles finally selected for the purposes intended—Street, Dress and Sport.

We are showing in our Easter windows today these 6 original English hand made models, costing from $20.16 to $32.76, which we believe include the greatest Golf Shoe ever made, the finest Dress Shoe worn in England, and your choice of formal and informal patterns in different leathers for street wear.

We are going to put the ($6.60) Regal Reproductions to the acid test by showing one of our shoes immediately beside each of the six original English models, and let you decide for yourself whether or not we have faithfully Reproduced these expensive and exclusive hand-made English shoes.

We don't know of any more severe test to convince you of the unusual value in the Regal Reproductions and we don't know of any better way to tell you our Style Story for Spring.

THE CALL FOR THE SPECIAL SESSION.

The governor is preparing to call a special session of the legislature primarily to relieve Chicago's immediate financial distress. The question that is troubling him and a good many others in Illinois is just what else should be included in the program. The governor himself wants, in addition, a constitutional amendment which will permit the legislature to make fundamental changes in the state's tax laws. Some of his advisers are urging him to stop at that point. Budgetary control and other measures to prevent the repetition of the present situation, he is being told, can wait until the regular session of the legislature which convenes in January.

Mr. Silas Strawn, as chairman of the citizens' committee, has taken a different view. He fears that if measures are not taken at the special session to control the extravagance of the tax spenders any relief granted by the legislature will have only the most fleeting value. In a few months, at most, Chicago will again be broke, unable to pay its bills, unable to pay its employés, and forced to appeal once more to the legislature to drag it out of the pit.

Mr. Strawn is right and we hope the governor recognizes the soundness of Mr. Strawn's advice. If the matter of budgetary control is held over until the regular session there is much reason to fear that little or nothing will be accomplished. The spenders do not want drastic limitations placed upon their freedom to appropriate beyond income. They prefer extravagance. No law required them to overappropriate, and every consideration of honor and integrity commanded them to spend within income. Since they drove Chicago into financial difficulties there has been no change of heart among the office holders. They will accept rigid budgetary control and personal liability for excessive expenditure only if they are forced to do so as the price of relief from the present emergency. If they get relief now, they will use their powerful influence in the legislature to kill or emasculate any measures of control presented at the regular session and we are far from sure that even the great influence of the governor could prevail against the combined strength of the spenders of all factions and parties.

Some of the governor's advisers are saying that budgetary control can be postponed because it is less urgent than immediate relief. The answer is that it may be less urgent, but it is vastly more important, and unless it is obtained at the special session it will, in all probability, not be obtained at all.

Similarly, the politicians may now be brought to accept measures for the improvement of the assessment and reviewing machinery intended to take these functions out of the field of political spoils. This is the moment, for example, to constitute the board of review as a truly judicial body, whose members must divorce themselves from any business or professional connections through which they might be influenced.

The special session should be devoted to curing, and not merely palliating, Chicago's financial ills. Those ills were caused by reckless expenditure in excess of income and by a real estate assessment so unfair that it had to be done over at great expense and with much loss of time. The taxpayers expect the governor to do all he can to rescue them as well as the spenders. He will relieve only the spenders if he confines legislative activity at the special session to measures for meeting the deficits.

EASIER AND BETTER JURY SERVICE.

It is to be hoped the crime commission recommendations will have the openminded consideration of the judges. They are well founded in continual observation of the actual working of our method of dealing with jurors and the conditions of jury service, which all the judges know are seriously faulty. Legal conservatism or official laissez faire should no longer paralyze intelligent amendment. We have had altogether too much of both. While we read and hear a good deal of superficial criticism of jury trial and proposals to abolish it, we would better correct the conditions which are responsible for inefficiencies. Jury service can be rid of a great many of its unnecessary penalties and by making it, through more reasonable rules and methods, less of a sacrifice and inconvenience we can raise the level of personnel and thus cure the most serious shortcomings of jury trial.

The crime commission's suggestions, apart from their intrinsic value, are a reminder that while comprehensive and fundamental reform in the administration of justice may require some legislative action, the judiciary now has power to make greatly needed and substantial betterments. If judges will make full use of their present authority they will not only correct many existing weaknesses in administration but demonstrate that they will make good use of broader power if granted. THE TRIBUNE believes and has urged that the rule-making authority and management of the courts should be vested in the courts. Judges will support this doctrine by showing initiative and enterprise in making every betterment within their admitted authority.

UP GOES LAKE ERIE.

Lake Erie is a yard higher than it normally is at this time of year. Householders at Point Place, near Toledo, have been driven from their homes. No doubt as they fled they continued to execrate the drainage canal in Chicago, which, as all Ohioans well know, is responsible for the lowering of the lakes. No doubt.

PROHIBITION IN THE NORTHWEST.

While the Massachusetts legislature has refused to submit the question of a repeal of the state prohibition enforcement act to the people, a North Dakota Democratic state platform just adopted calls for the repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act, recommending the return to the states of the right to regulate and calling the attention of the people to the methods of control in Sweden, Norway and Canada. The Democratic leaders are convinced the party opportunity lies in fixing responsibility for prohibition evils upon the Republican party, and developments in the state will be watched with interest from coast to coast. North Dakota Republicanism is not a stable quantity and the prohibition issue will have a pretty clear field for an uncomplicated decision. The people of the state are of the social character from which prohibitionism springs and the professional dry leaders will make a hard fight to prevent them from backsliding. A strong vote for modification in such a community, even if it fell short of a majority, would be a defeat for dry politics.

THEY LIKE BLOSSOMS.

Blossoms are out in Washington. To the cherry trees that Japan gave to America came a hundred thousand visitors a Sunday or so ago, and the congestion, say the police officials, was the greatest for this season in the history of the town. Mr. Hoover may come and go, the senate may roar and gesture, but the Japanese cherry trees put on their quiet festival of spring regardless. On the banks of the Potomac they flare against the sunlit sky in annually recurring fervor.

Why, asks the New York World, do not the booster towns of this broad land learn the lesson? To Washington on Sunday came 75,000 people in their motor cars, ten excursion trains brought other people in, and extra cars were coupled to the regulars, all to see cherry blossoms. The trees were set for no economic purpose. Only their simple beauty justified their planting. But one hundred thousand came to see them.

Our smaller towns might have this loveliness along their streets and hillsides. They might have cherry trees, or, more originally, find other natural beauties fully as impressive. They might be charming places where folks would like to live or visit. Some of them are.

But the countryside surrounding the greater number of our towns is plastered with signs and billboards. It is run down and shiftless, and the highways thereabouts are lined with shacks and the unkempt wrecks of nature.

With taste and a few intelligent ideas the towns of America could find beauty and distinction at no great cost. But taste and good ideas, it seems, usually are lacking.

BELLOWING AIRPLANES.

The use of the airplane for the purpose of bellowing advertisements at a defenseless public ought to be stopped by the police as a nuisance. Amplifiers installed in the plane magnify the announcer's voice so that it can be heard on the streets a thousand feet below. Chicago is cursed with noise in its congested districts and the residential areas are none too quiet. There can be no justification for this wholly unnecessary and distracting din from overhead to add to the existing discomfort.

Editorial of the Day

A VICTORY FOR CHEAPER TAXIS

[New York Herald-Tribune.]

While great questions are hanging in the balance at London, Washington, and other centers, it is gratifying to note a victory for plain justice, public convenience, and sound economy right here in New York. This victory took place when Justice John Ford, in the state Supreme court, rendered a decision in favor of lower rates for taxicabs.

As has been pointed out on this page, the adoption of lower rates for small taxicabs would not only give the taxi using public a considerable saving but would relieve traffic congestion, for the smaller taxis could turn more easily and work their way through traffic more quickly. But when a certain Eugene Piantoni applied for a hack license for a cab equipped with a lower rate meter the police department turned him down. The taxicab companies already in the field, presumably afraid of the competition of lower rates, favored the stand of the police department.

The police commissioner let it be known that the lower rates would bring about a bitter war among the cabmen in which the public might suffer greatly. There may be some truth in this. Undoubtedly some drivers would be tempted to resort to Chicago tactics and ram the cheaper taxis when they got a chance. To allow one's self to be terrorized into accepting the present rates, however, is something which will not appeal to most citizens, nor does the fear of such a rate war speak well for the valor of the police.

Justice Ford granted Piantoni's mandamus to compel the police department to license his cab, pointing out that it does not lie with the police commissioner to fix minimum rates. The commissioner, however, may appeal this decision. Moreover, a bill has been introduced into the board of aldermen establishing the present rate as the minimum. Several obstacles placed in the path of economy and convenience by the city authorities have thus to be overcome before the public can be certain of paying far less for taxi fare than they do now. Justice Ford's action is, however, a commendable step in the right direction.

HOSPITALS AND POPULATION.

To serve the more than a hundred million people in the United States there are more than eight hundred and fifty thousand hospital beds available. Almost one-half of these are for people who are mentally sick. Of the remaining nearly four hundred and eighty thousand beds three-fourths are in general hospitals, and about one-fourth in special hospitals. The hospitals for consumptives supply more than sixty thousand beds. Since most sick people prefer to stay at home and most homes are fairly well equipped it would seem that every sick person who needed the use of a hospital bed could get one. And so he could if we were run by a Mussolini, who would see to it that no one who needed a hospital bed should go without, at least so long as there were empty ones.

The fact is that with the exception of institutions for mental cases hospitals are always in the position of having empty beds and waiting lists at the same time. No method of using hospital beds one hundred per cent has been devised.

There are almost one and a half million people engaged in taking care of the sick. Of those, 550,000 are working in hospitals, 200,000 are trained nurses, 152,000 are practical nurses, 143,000 are physicians, 84,000 are drug clerks, 100,000 are pharmacists, 67,000 are dentists, 55,000 are midwives, 24,000 are physicians' attendants, 18,000 are opticians and optometrists, 12,000 are dentists' assistants, 10,000 are dental technicians, 15,000 are chiropractors, 7,500 are Christian Science practitioners, 7,600 are osteopaths. The remaining 42,000 are variously classified.

In comparison with the increase of population during the last thirty years the increase of physicians has been small, that of dentists has been large, and likewise that of hospitals and, incidentally, of hospital beds. The increase of registered nurses and of clinics has been out of all proportion to the increase in population. Stating it differently, the proportionate supply of physicians is decreasing slightly while that of dentists and hospitals is increasing. The crop of registered nurses and clinics is springing up like a crop of plants after a warm spring rain. As to both physicians and registered nurses there are too many in the cities and too few in the country. A Mussolini might bring about a more even distribution, but no lesser power could hope to do so.

The facts quoted are among those in the third publication of the Committee on the Cost of Medical Care.

MILK MIGHT BE CAUSE.

Mrs. S. E. writes: Will cream or very rich milk cause hives? I have been troubled with hives lately. At a former time citrus fruits were the cause, but I have omitted them from my diet for some months. Lately I went on a four day milk diet, and on the fourth day I had a bad attack of hives, which have cleared up since not taking any milk.

REPLY.

Hives, nettlerash, and cradlecap are caused by milk. Fat is sometimes the worst offending element in the compound. People taking an exclusive milk diet occasionally develop disorders which pass when the diet is changed. Some people do not tolerate butter or cream well. I expect you are right in your surmise.

AFFECTS BODY AND MIND.

T. M. writes: Since prohibition I have heard a score of people talk about chronic alcoholics. I am curious to know what this is. Does it affect the mind or body?

REPLY.

The common name for alcoholism is "drunk"; for chronic alcoholism, "drunk all the time." Other terms in common use are "tanked all the time," "always lit," "chronic drunk."

Chronic alcoholism causes degeneration of both mind and body.

IT IS NOT TRUE.

Mrs. L. A. S. writes: Is it true that oranges, bananas, grapefruit, peaches, and strawberries should not be eaten with milk, sugar, and ice cream, as they do not combine harmoniously in the process of digestion?

REPLY.

It is not true.

HOLES IN KENNETH AVENUE.

Chicago, April 12. — [Friend of the People.]—What can you do to get repairs for three large holes in the pavement between 2219 and 2225 North Kenneth avenue? When the heavy loaded trucks speeding through this block bump into these holes the shocks jar and crack the plaster in adjoining houses.

A. J. W.

Depressions in pavement in front of 2219-2225 North Kenneth avenue will be repaired when our vehicle tax repair forces are operating in the 36th ward in this vicinity.

J. J. BUTLER,
Deputy Superintendent of Streets.

HOME MADE WILLS.

Chicago, April 16. [Legal Friend of the People.]—I had a will drawn up in a local bank, amount involved less than $4,000. Am told I can rewrite it, making some changes, and when signed by two witnesses, sealed by notary public, it will be considered a new will, canceling the first one. 1. Is that information correct? 2. Would bank still be entitled to a fee in case of death? 3. Must all wills be probated? J. P. K.

1. It is correct in the sense that the statute does not require that you employ a lawyer or that you employ a bank, but we advise against experimenting with home made wills. The notary public is not necessary. 2. No. 3. Probate can be dispensed with in some cases.

JUDGMENTS IN MINNESOTA.

Chicago, April 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We have a judgment for a large sum against a person living in Minneapolis, Minn., who is in a bad financial situation. For how many years is such judgment good so that it can be executed? B. A. F.

The Minnesota limitation period on judgments is six years in courts not of record and ten years in courts of record.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

and put 'em on and fall in for the grand annual Easter parade. Fashion hints from New York (which sets the pace for us out here in the boundless middle west) rule that this year the paraders will be clad in white and black. Maybe it's mourning for the London naval peace parley or something else; we don't know. But that's your marching orders.

Tomorrow is the time when the rabbits lay eggs. Believe it or not. If you don't believe the rabbits lay eggs then you can keep out of the Easter parade; you don't belong.

Tomorrow you're reasonably safe in wearing your silk topper in daylight. Out here in the middle of the great fields of corn and wheat (it's been sagging lately; maybe that's why the paraders will wear black and white tomorrow, out of respect to the Farm Board) we don't usually wear silk hats around in daylight unless it's for a funeral or a wedding, but it's all right tomorrow. If anybody shies anything at your silk hat tomorrow you can have him arrested. It's the closed season for silk hats all day.

Anyhow, tomorrow's the day if you've got the right uniform. Us, we won't be with you. Our terrier ate up our other spat. Anyhow, the darned thing was dark blue and the grand marshal of the parade would have ruled us out for not wearing white or black. And why do people parade at Easter? We can't tell you; there's some sort of law about it, probably. But, anyhow, go ahead and enjoy yourself. It's a nice, innocent custom, and hurts nobody.

HYMN OF HATE FROM GERTIE.

(Reprinted from the Line.)

Wherever you are this Easter, egg,
I hope you're in trouble—trouble a pile,
An' you're so busted you have to beg
Or maybe steal (that's more your style).
You bet I mean it! If you was a man
Instead of kind of a household pest,
You wouldn't a done what you done to me,
That gave you her trust an' all the rest.

I can see you now in your twelve-buck hat,
An' a mignonette in your coat lapel;
Yeh! Many's the girl you've copped at that—
But leave me tell you, you ain't so swell!
If you was to crawl back—hear me—crawl!
An' say you're sorry an' plead and beg
Fer me to forgive (you'd have the gall!)
I'd flatten you cold this Easter, egg.

It ain't that I miss the money you took
For the Easter suit that had made me sigh;
It ain't that I loved a false alarm,
But, honey, why didn't you say "good-by"?
It wouldn't a hurt. If you was a man
You'd done it. But no! You're just a yegg.
So luck—the worst—you understan',
Wherever you are this Easter, egg.

THESE UNITED STATES, Great Britain, and Japan agree on the "IF" clause, and Secretary Stimson explains it. Well, IF Secretary Stimson satisfies the senate, and IF there is not a large objection from the American hinterland, and IF the G. O. P. is not convinced that the "IF" will make serious trouble in the election next fall, and IF—IF—IF—oh, when you start IFfing there's simply no end to the darned thing.

HALT! You go-getter and high pressure auto salesmen! We've never said we were going to buy a car. What we said was that we were thinking about a car; and so we were; we've been taking lessons from a College of Theoretical and Applied Motor Driveology. That is all true, but it doesn't mean that we intend to buy a car. We're just trying to find out if it's possible for us to get motor minded. Up to the hour of going to press driving an automobile bores us deaf and dumb and stiff. If we suddenly discover a mad and compelling joy in making pedestrians jump for their life, then we may buy a car. But right now we feel sorry for them and always want to stop the machine and hand 'em a dime. Which is not the stuff the hard boiled demon driver is made of.

MR. GANDHI out in India is said to be much surprised, as well as a little peeved, that the British don't arrest him. Maybe the British think he's salted down.

"JUST REMEMBER the old time saloon——," writes X. X. X., and she goes on a whole lot more, but we can't read it for the scalding tears that come unbidden when we remember that the old time saloon meekly asked only fifteen cents for a drink, and good, honest stuff it was at that, while the new time speakeasy soaks you six bits, or even a buck, for a lone drink, and it tastes likell. And the old time saloon charged only two bits for two drinks, and if you only had a dime you could hang around until somebody came in for a single drink and laid down his fifteen cents. Then you could slide up and put your dime by the side of his fifteen cents, and that made a quarter; good for two drinks. The old time saloon! Tck! Tck! Tck!

YOU MUST WAKE and call me early; call me early, mother dear; Tomorrow's when I go to church, first (and last) time of the year. There'll probably be a lot of rain, it's like that Easter Day, but I'll parade if I ride in a dray, mother; I'll parade if I ride in a dray.

KO. Z. is indignant and likewise mocking because the headline in THE TRIB yesterday over a story about the new head of the pediatrics department of the University of Chicago said: "Dr. F. W. "CAN PROHIBITION be enforced?" was declared by all the afternoon papers yesterday to be the question the administration at Washington is asking. All right, we'll bite. Can it?

APRIL 19, 1865.

THE NEWS.—It is shown in the investigation now proceeding at Washington that Gens. Grant and Butler were included in the assassination plot. Nothing can show more clearly the brutality and fiendishness of Booth than the fact that almost the last act of President Lincoln before entering the theater was to bestow recognition and a kind word upon him as he stood upon the pavement. Mrs. Lincoln is very ill. The official bulletin from Secretary Stanton confirms the capture of Mobile. The latest intelligence from Gen. Sherman locates him at Smithfield, N. C., at which place on the 18th he announced the capture of Lee to his army. Raleigh was captured after a spiritless resistance. President Johnson's policy, as indicated to several delegations, is pretty well settled. To the common people of the south he will extend clemency, but the unrepentant leaders of the rebellion he is determined to punish. The President clinches the argument with this remark: "Mercy to the individual is not always mercy to the state."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The remains of the President will probably be conveyed from Washington on the 20th to Illinois, by way of Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Buffalo, Cleveland, and Toledo. About one week will be occupied in reaching Illinois. Every train which arrived here today from the north was densely packed with people to witness the imposing funeral obsequies tomorrow. An immense throng passed through the White House to take a final look at the body of the late President.

NEW YORK.—The Herald's Washington special says: "It is reported that the assassin who entered Secretary Seward's house has been arrested. It is certain one of the assassins—probably Surratt—has been arrested. Samuel Mattam of Hookstown, Md., the one who wrote the letter found in Booth's trunk, signed 'Sam,' has been arrested."

30 YEARS AGO TODAY.

APRIL 19, 1900.

CHICAGO.—Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews, superintendent of schools, resigned to accept the chancellorship of the University of Nebraska. He announced his decision to the board of education and he will take the new position on Aug. 1.

CHICAGO.—J. Stanley Goldsmith, secretary of the defunct Western Security company, is said to have disappeared with S. George D'Essauer. Mrs. D'Essauer has left Evanston and her whereabouts is unknown. It is now thought that D'Essauer profited much more than $100,000 through his dealings with Chicago business men. Efforts are being made to find the place where the plates were made from which the forged bonds were printed.

NEW YORK.—It was admitted that an engagement existed between Miss Helen Bertram of the Bostonians and S. George D'Essauer, who is wanted in Chicago in connection with a bogus bond deal. She was prostrated when she learned of the Chicago charges.

APRIL 19, 1920.

NEW YORK.—Dr. James Wright Marcoe, a well known surgeon and personal physician of J. Pierpont Morgan, was shot and killed while taking up the offering at the Sunday morning service in the fashionable St. George's Protestant Episcopal church, 15th street and Stuyvesant place, in the old aristocratic district of New York. Dr. George E. Brewer, a lieutenant colonel in the medical corps during the war, was slightly wounded in pursuing the assassin. The assailant was captured by a group of parishioners headed by William Fellowes Morgan, president of the Merchants' association of New York; Herbert L. Satterlee, brother-in-law of J. Pierpont Morgan; Dr. Brewer and J. Morgan Jones. He gave his name as Thomas W. Simpkin and said he had just been discharged from an insane asylum at Williamsburg, Va. The church was crowded when the killing took place, among those present being George W. Wickersham, former United States attorney general.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.

Chicago, April 17.—I think the following account, extracted from the Chicago Daily Democratic Press of June 28, 1855, and entitled "The Anti-Prohibition Celebration," may interest your readers:

"The opponents of the prohibitory liquor law were favored with a fine afternoon for their celebration. The procession numbered about 4,000 persons with bands of music and banners, and proceeded through several principal streets to Dearborn park, where the speeches were made.

"S. A. Douglas had been announced, but his friend, Isaac Cook, excused him upon some plea and assured the multitude that he was with them in spirit and sentiment.

"S. S. Hays was announced and made a brief argumentative speech against the Illinois liquor law, both as to its principles and tendencies. The novel principle sought to be introduced by this law he declared to be dangerous and subversive to genuine liberty, viz.: That it did not provide for the punishment of a wrong committed, but took away from many the liberty of doing what is wrong.

"At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Hays read the following resolutions, which he stated he had prepared at the request of the committee of arrangements. They were adopted by acclamation:

"'Resolved, That the overwhelming defeat of the act known as the prohibitory act recently voted upon by the people of this state affords cause for congratulation and rejoicing to all who love the principles of freedom or desire the perpetuity of republican institutions.

"'Resolved, That we recognize in the defeat of that measure not the success of a party or a faction but the triumph of a great principle, submitted for vindication to the untrammeled action of a free and intelligent people.

"'Resolved, That we condemn the prohibitory act and rejoice at its defeat, not because it was aimed at intemperance, an evil which all good citizens and good men deprecate, but because it was founded on a mistaken view of the powers and duties of government, and would have resulted in evils incalculably greater than those sought to be prevented.

"'Resolved, That it is not within the legitimate province of government to take away rational liberty in order to prevent a crime or a vice which may result from its abuse, or to authorize search or forcible seizures of private property, or to establish a band of spies or a sumptuary police for the overthrow of the security and privacy of our homes.

"'Resolved, That intemperance in legislation is an evil more dangerous and deadly by far than intemperance in eating and drinking, and we most solemnly and earnestly declare our opposition to those fanatical ideas and schemes which have originated in prejudice and mistaken zeal and are calculated to destroy those well established principles of personal freedom and equal rights which were prevalent in this country from the foundation of our government to the present time, and which we hope shall ever be perpetuated.

"'Resolved, That we will hold ourselves in readiness to meet the same issues whenever they shall be again presented and we urge the friends of constitutional liberty everywhere to renewed energy and vigilance in the cause of freedom, using those means of bold and manly discussion and argument which are all powerful in a free government.'

"E. R. Hooper, Esq., addressed the audience in English and Francis A. Hoffman in German, after which the meeting broke up."

Our grandfathers, it appears, were not wholly lacking in spirit or in political wisdom. Can we say as much for ourselves? K.

THE SLOVAKS.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 22.—We Slovaks are grateful for the articles of Mr. Robert Sage that have recently appeared in your highly respected paper, depicting the sad plight and bitter sufferings of the Slovak inhabitants of Czecho-Slovakia.

We who, driven from our beautiful native land, have found a warm welcome and a new home in the mutilated Hungary of today, are overflowing with fervent joy at the thought that a person quite disinterested—and therefore the less likely to be biased by preconception—has brought to the attention of the world at large the painful trials and atrocities which have fallen to the lot of our thousands of Slovak brethren for the last ten years at the hands of their new Czech rulers. In vain do our Slovak brethren of the highlands supplicate and complain. In vain do they appeal for justice to the competent international courts. To this day their cries have fallen upon deaf ears.

We hope that the articles will open the eyes and ears of those in authority so that they may clearly perceive the miserable and intolerable situation for which the shameful peace treaty of Trianon is responsible, and that it may be borne in upon their minds how, when the entente powers thought they were liberating an oppressed nationality, they merely thrust it down into the most abject slavery.

Signed for and on behalf of the Slovak emigrants driven out of Slovensko.

SEX IN POLITICS.

Chicago, April 14.—Had Mrs. McCormick been a man, she might not have been nominated. Voters who knew and cared nothing about the world court voted for and against her simply because she was a woman. Next November the same kind of voting will be repeated. We will know who is elected, but not the voters' wishes as to the political issues. The election officials should be authorized to place the campaign issues in the form of propositions on the ballots for an advisory vote. In politics sex is as bad as religion. An election should be more than a beauty contest. M. D.

BUILDING FOR PROSPERITY.

Oak Park, Ill., April 16.—From every elevated platform and from every car on the elevated I see that inspiring slogan, "Build for Prosperity—Now."

Right here is an opportunity for Mr. Insull to carry out his own motto. The plans have been made and construction is expected to be started in the near future upon that additional track for the Garfield division of the Metropolitan Elevated. Now is the best time to build that additional track.

U. S. FARM CO-OP CHIEFS REPLY TO ATTACK ON BOARD

Legge Is Not Disturbed, He Indicates.

BY PAUL POTTER

Chairman Alexander Legge of the federal farm board and leaders of the two grain corporations sponsored by the board seemed little perturbed yesterday over reports from Minneapolis that a campaign of grain exchanges and business interests was under way to condemn the farm board and ask for repeal of the act under which it operates.

"We have had reports of this sort for some time, and expected them from the start," said Legge before he began a day of conferences in Chicago on co-operative grain and live stock marketing. "The only answer we have is to wish 'em luck."

"Strength in Some Places."

Mr. Legge indicated his belief that the opposition might have "strength in some localities." He said that the newest "outbreak" was not surprising, coming from the grain trade, which had earlier predicted failure of the farm board's efforts.

C. E. Huff, newly elected president of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, with whom Mr. Legge spent most of the day, also indicated his belief in the ultimate success of the federal program of agricultural marketing. Repeal of the act creating the board and subsequent abolishing of the board would not stop the activities of the farmer owned sales agency, he declared.

George S. Milnor, president of the Grain Stabilization corporation, operating under farm board auspices, said that he regarded its operations "highly satisfactory" and that no consideration was being given to reports of possible attacks by grain exchanges.

Board of Trade Silent.

The campaign against the farm board was revealed on Thursday when it was learned that the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce had asked grain exchanges of the nation to support a resolution to be presented at the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington, D. C., on April 28. The resolution condemns the farm board on the ground that its agencies are competing with private business and asks repeal of the federal marketing act under which the board operates.

A letter asking support of the resolution was received by the Chicago Board of Trade on Wednesday from C. F. Stevens, vice president of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, according to John A. Bunnell, president of the Board of Trade. It will be acted on next Tuesday by the directors, Mr. Bunnell said.

Name Four for Convention.

Four Chicago Board of Trade members were appointed to attend the Washington convention of the national chamber of commerce, which Mr. Bunnell characterized as "very important." They are Robert McDougal, counselor of the chamber of commerce; S. C. Harris, Arthur F. Lindley, and Fred H. Clutton, secretary. Mr. Bunnell indicated that other Chicago grain men might attend, and that he hoped to be able to go.

Held for Shooting Her Husband; Charges Abuse

Mrs. Nina Roselli, 45 years old, mother of three sons, 19, 18 and 9 years old, was held by the Marquette police yesterday for shooting her husband, Frank, beneath the right eye while he lay sleeping. At the county hospital it was said his wound probably was not serious. The woman said her husband had abused her during their 21 years of married life. Her story was corroborated by her sons, who accused their father of laziness and cruelty toward his family.

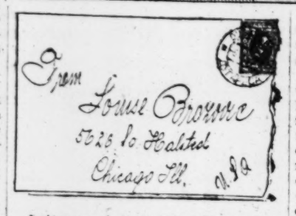
FROM DUGORESA, JUGO SLAVIA



Letter received by Miss Louise Brozovich, 5626 South Halsted street, Chicago.

The writer of this letter is a bookkeeper in a textile mill in Dugoresa, Croatia, now a part of Jugo-Slavia, about 130 miles south of Zagreb, the second largest city in the kingdom and one of its chief industrial centers. Zagreb (Agram) was the old capital of Croatia and Slavonia.

Dress goods, table cloths, bedspreads, towels, embroideries, and other novelties, all of distinctive coloring and design, are produced in the district.

Dugoresa has a population of upward of 5,000, and of its occupations Miss Brozovich writes: "The majority of the younger generation work in the factories, making about 85 dinars ($1.50) weekly. Their hours are from 7 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Bookkeepers average from 300 to 400 dinars ($6 to $7.50) weekly. Machinists and electricians are the highest paid employés, averaging 450 to 600 dinars, according to length of service."

Croatia, Slavonia and Bosnia were a part of Austro-Hungary before the great war, but are now a part of the Serb, Croat, and Slovene state. Their assimilation by the power centered at Belgrade has met with difficulties since the adoption of the new national constitution in 1921. The king abolished the constitution last year and established a dictatorship.

IRON WORKERS DROP DEMANDS FOR PAY BOOSTS

Builders Seek Deals with Other Unions.

Following a series of meetings of joint arbitration boards, the officers of the Chicago Structural and Architectural Iron Workers' unions yesterday acceded to the request of the Building Construction Employers' association to withdraw their demands for a wage increase. The workers had asked that on June 1 their wages be increased from $1.62½ to $1.70 an hour.

The action of the iron workers was hailed by E. M. Craig, the builders' secretary, as an important move to stimulate construction activities and relieve some of the unemployment among the building trades. The iron workers, under the agrement, will retain their present $13 a day scale until June 1, 1931.

Seek Other Wage Deals.

It was announced that the builders intend to request other building trade unions to coöperate in programs to stimulate construction by retaining present wage rates, which are the highest in the history of the building industry, according to the employers.

Several weeks ago Mr. Craig sent a communication to the Building Trades council which said in part:

"We are doing everything possible to relieve not only the present depression, but to stabilize Chicago conditions continuously up to and through the 1933 World's Fair. The stimulation of construction must come from within the building industry, and we believe labor will do its part. It is at such times that we must have concerted action—complete coöperation."

At Arbitration Meetings.

Among those attending the joint meetings yesterday were William J. Lynch, builder; Oscar W. Rosenthal, head of the Builders' Association of Chicago; E. M. Craig; Martin Durkin, vice president of Building Trades council; A. C. Preble, secretary of the Iron league; E. M. Rundgren, builder; E. Wennagel, builder; George W. Griffiths, builder; Nils Johnson and Edward Ryan, iron workers; A. Anderson, William Gunther, and James Tennison, labor representatives.

Jurisdictional trouble is reported to be the cause of a strike of 100 electricians on the Board of Trade building.

THIEVES ENTER APARTMENT; GET $10,150 JEWELS

Mrs. Frank F. Loeffler, wife of a wealthy wholesale meat dealer at 3727 South Halsted street, reported to Hyde Park police yesterday that jewelry valued at $10,150 had been taken from her apartment in the Windermere East hotel, 1642 East 56th street, on Thursday afternoon. The jewelry, she said, was insured. A police investigation indicated the apartment had been entered with a key. Mrs. Loeffler recalled having lost her key a month ago and having it replaced by another without the lock being changed.

WIFE HELD TO GRAND JURY IN KILLING OF MATE

Mrs. Belle Chenoweth of 3238 North Oketo avenue was held to the grand jury yesterday on a charge of murder by a coroner's jury investigating the death of her husband, Claude. The body of the latter was found in the home on Thursday, after Mrs. Chenoweth had confessed to her attorney, Frank Zalinski. He believed her to be suffering from a delusion.

At the inquest yesterday at 6453 Irving Park boulevard, the widow stood on her constitutional rights and refused to testify, at the advice of the lawyer. If she is brought to trial, Zalinski is expected to plead insanity for her defense.

MEXICAN UNION DECLARES WAR ON NEWS SERVICE

Strike Cuts Papers Off from Outside World.

BY JOHN CORNYN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, April 18.—Mexico City and the republic in general is without news of the outside world today as a result of a strike of editors handling foreign news on the Excelsior and the Universal. Last night the labor union presented a demand to these papers that they break all connection with the Associated Press and in the future cease to use its service.

The papers refused and the editors went out, and with them the editors of the English sections of the two papers, among them Alexander Glyka of the Universal. In the Excelsior and the Universal not a line of foreign news appeared today.

Papers Oppose Union.

It was reported here that the Associated Press has taken the matter up through the foreign relations department at Washington, with the Mexican government. Apparently the newspapers here are inclined to fight the union demands and have appealed against them to the Mexican government. The attitude of the Excelsior and the Universal is that they have no quarrel with the Associated Press, whose service has been satisfactory.

On the front pages of the Excelsior and the Universal this morning were double column statements raking over the coals those responsible for the faked story of the revolution in Spain which was worked off on both papers yesterday.

John Lloyd, head of the Associated Press bureau in Mexico City, called attention in both papers to the faked telegrams and published disownment from the cable office here and from the Associated Press office in New York that the telegrams had been sent or received in Mexico.

Probe Faked Wires.

In commenting on Mr. Lloyd's statement the Excelsior, after declaring that it had already begun an investigation to ascertain who had worked off the fake telegrams on the paper, said:

"We would inform our readers and the public in general that the union editors in the federal district have declared a strike on the Associated Press office in Mexico City. We would also call the attention of the president of the republic, the head of the federal district, and the central council of arbitration to the connection that may very well exist between the strike movement and the faked telegrams which were worked off on the Excelsior. If such notices were directed against Spain yesterday they may well be against Mexico and her own public authorities tomorrow."

PORT COURTESY WILL CONTINUE IN TARIFF BILL

Washington, D. C., April 18.—[Special.]—Elimination of the Harrison amendment in the senate tariff bill prohibiting the granting of the courtesy of the port to incoming travelers was agreed to today by the senate and house conferees.

The amendment, sponsored by Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], provided that "no courtesy of the port, free entry, or special privileges or preferences in the examination of merchandise or baggage shall hereafter be extended to any person whomsoever is subject to the payment of customs duties." The effect of the amendment was to limit port courtesies to officials of the United States other than members of congress and to foreign diplomats, who are entitled to free entry of articles brought in with them.

Senator Harrison's amendment was designed to prevent a repetition of abuses such as have occurred in connection with the importation of liquor by members of congress and others granted the courtesy of the port.

BOOKS

Love of Woods Makes Home for Wandering Boy

"Adventures of Mario" Wins Critic's Praise.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

"The Adventures of Mario," by Waldemar Bonsels. [A. & C. Boni.]
"Every Which Way in Ireland," by Alison B. Murphy. [Putnams.]
"Teatime Tales," by Rose Fyleman. [Doubleday-Doran.]
"Pal," by Alexandra Jenkins. [Appleton.]
"Featherland," by Etta C. Garson. [McBride.]

Older boys and girls who enjoy the unusual in their stories will find that in theme and background in Waldemar Bonsel's "The Adventures of Mario." This is a story of the forest and of the solace and joy it brought to the heart of 12 year old Mario when, disconsolate at the death of his mother, he fled to it for solitude. It and its creatures accepted him as did the wise old herb woman, and it was not long before he was at home in the wild.

Loving its gentle creatures, but fighting to the death those that would have destroyed him, he made himself its master and its friend. In its depths he found peace, and in the heart of the strange old woman love and understanding, which he was loath to leave when duty called him back to a more conventional life. There is a touch of the mystical in the boy's consciousness of his mother's spirit directing him, but this will but add to the beauty of the story for the boy or girl who reads it understandingly. It is one of those occasional, finely written books which must fall into the hands of the right person to be fully appreciated.

In Alison B. Murphy's "Every Which Way in Ireland" we have an addition to the Putnam juvenile author series. The author, a Girl Scout, tells the story of her travels through Ireland, of her contacts with the famous and the humble, and of the superstitions and customs of the people.

Younger children who liked Rose Fyleman's "Forty Good Morning Tales" will also enjoy her new collection entitled "Tea Time Tales," in which she tells of "The Pink Rabbit," "The Fairy Cobbler," "The Goblin Who Turned Into a Door Knocker," and many other fanciful and funny tales which Miss Fyleman knows so well how to tell. It is a very good collection for parents who are running short of bedtime stories.

"Pal," by Alexandra Jenkins, and "Featherland," by Etta C. Garson, are contributions of Chicago authors. Pal is an Airedale whose humility and affection win him a home, and the tale is of his adventures and misadventures during a vacation at the lake.

"Featherland" is the story of a personified birdland in which we find Mr. Robin managing a real estate office, Judge Owl conducting a meeting and the birds holding a county fair. Information about birds and their habits is woven into the story, and the book would have been, in this reviewer's opinion, a far better one had the facts been presented as such and the story element entirely omitted.

Authors Chat of the World at Tea Fight

C. A. Beard Makes Modern Problems Lively.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—There was a sweeping upward trend of literati on Thursday afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Mills' spacious eyrie overlooking the East river.

CHARLES A. BEARD.

Charles A. and Mary Beard were guests of honor, authors singly and in collaboration of many works on government, politics, and labor. Dr. Beard's name appears most recently as editor of "Toward Civilization," that valuable symposium published by Longmans, Green & Co., which sets forth our status to date in articles by Ralph T. Walker, the skyscraper architect, by Roy V. Wright, railroad expert; by Thomas D. Campbell, farmer in a big way, whose 80,000 acre tract is operated by power machinery.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Beard are natives of Indiana . . . though now, by right of many years' residence, old time New Yorkers. He was a notable storm center at Columbia university for some ten years . . . and afterward a director of the public service training school in New York. In Tokio, Japan, at the time of the earthquake, he served as assistant to the Japanese minister of home affairs, writing afterward the treatise, "Administrations and Policies of Tokio." Lean, white haired, scholarly in aspect, his tea party chat is rich in kindly humor.

Artists, writers, and a sprinkling of theatrical luminaries made merry Saturday night in the Plaza ballroom, where the Society of Illustrators held its annual costume dance. Charles Dana Gibson, we saw, and James Montgomery Flagg . . . Irvin Cobb dressed as a shepherd (or was it a pirate?) . . . Laura La Plante in hoop skirts . . . Wallace Morgan in silken knee breeches and lace ruffled shirt.

Rockwell Kent is seeking information as to the whereabouts of his early paintings. It seems that Random House is to publish a complete catalog of his works, profusely illustrated. Many of Mr. Kent's first canvases never had their photographs taken . . . so if you know persons or institutions owning the originals you'll be doing him a favor by sharing your knowledge.

Katherine Keith, author of "The Crystal Icicle," started to motor back from Florida to Chicago, struck that recent downfall of crystallized moisture in the vicinity of Indianapolis, and made a detour to New York. Here we are boasting Grade A spring sunshine.

Capturing a novel from the realm of the imagination is a task considerably lightened by dictating the first draft, according to Inez Haynes Irwin. She's using this method on her new novel, "Family" . . . and she learned it from her husband, Wallace Irwin, whose latest, "The Days of Her Life," is a feature of Houghton-Mifflin's spring list. "Rewriting is sheer pleasure," says Mrs. Irwin. "The first fifty thousand words are the hardest. And I find that they come with more spontaneity when spoken."

First Novel by Marion Strobel Full of Humor

Including Supposed Suicide of Its Heroine.

"Saturday Afternoon," by Marion Strobel. [Farrar & Rinehart.]

"Saturday Afternoon" is the first novel of our fellow Chicagoan, Marion Strobel [Mrs. James Herbert Mitchell]. For years Marion Strobel has been accepted as one of our best known Chicago poets; for so many years, in fact, that she gives strangers a shock when they meet an extremely attractive young woman. But this is a young city!

It is about the leading literary figure in this young city of ours, a woman who has devoted her life to helping young poets and young novelists, that Marion Strobel has written in "Saturday Afternoon." The entire action of the book takes place in one afternoon, and it spans the life of Susannah Pease. It tells of a tea party at Susannah's—where satellites gathered to give their minds, or their tummies, nourishment, and to make either gentle or malicious fun of their absent hostess, thus setting the stage for the drama of the Saturday afternoon which offered Susannah life and gave her death. It skillfully makes of those satellites self-seeking little neurasthenics but without making understandable Susannah's love for one of them.

Susannah's eager girlishness [at the age of forty] as she prepared for a picnic with the boy she loved lasted through the preparation of sandwiches and through a jolty bus ride, and through clamberings over rocks on the lake front in the park. Stephen's dazedness at the unusual attention was mingled with his usual polite respect for his patroness and it took only a floating hat on the surface of the lake to make him lose his head completely, and to rush about all over town telling the world [and much worse the newspapers] that Susannah Pease had committed suicide. Poor Susannah waited and waited behind a rock for her young man to return and then sedately went back to her office. There she did a good hard day's work for literature and came out of that most pleasant trance in the world [the trance of being lost in the job at hand] to find herself, according to the papers, a suicide. Being a philosophic person, she did [for her] the obvious thing about it. And that thing we think it would be more amusing for you to find out yourself.

The young man who rushes off with babblings about suicide, because he sees a hat floating on the water, is a little too hurried in his conclusions, it seems to me. Even a young poet of his parts would have made some gestures toward making certain that the woman whom he had left in an unusually gay mood had actually hurled herself into the water. But there wouldn't have been any story, if Stephen had used his head normally.

Considering the position which Susannah Pease occupied in Chicago literature, it was inevitable that much should have been written about her suicide and about her influence on Chicago arts. Marion Strobel made her such a personality that the publishers decided that her death would have been the cause of a special edition of "The Chicago Evening Star" literary supplement. So they asked a few literary editors to contribute to such a memorial.

There is, therefore, in the back of each copy of "Saturday Afternoon" a tabloid "Books and Literature," devoted to the life and work of Susannah Pease, with a picture of her, strangely like a well known writer, a poem by the Stephen Canby whom she loved, but who never knew of her love, articles by John Farrar, Kenneth Horan, Llewellyn Jones, Harriet Monroe, Howard Vincent O'Brien, Harry Hansen and myself, and an article by the editor of "Books and Literature" containing telegrams of sympathy from Floyd Dell, Burton Rascoe, and Alta May Coleman. It is a very amusing little paper, in tone with the author's gay attitude toward her characters and their incomprehensible actions. F. B.

Critic Views Books as Tools and Keys to the Restful Realms

"How to Read Books," by Llewellyn Jones [Norton], is intended as a provocation to reading, not as a philosophical treatise on the business of reading. It is, so the author says in a prefatory note, "addressed simply to the reader of books. And its aim is to help him enjoy them—not to improve his mind or to urge him to change or purify his tastes. That process, if necessary, should be spontaneous. And I have purposely refrained from giving any of those lists of 'the hundred best books.' That sort of thing has been done, and overdone, and besides I have no idea which hundred books really are the best. I do not even know which are the hundred best books for me and I have more than once flunked that simple examination which consists of the question, 'Who is your favorite author?'"

From that the potential reader of "How to Read Books" will see that its author has an open mind and an honest pen. He submits that every intelligent person should have not one library, but two, "first a professional library having to do with the job he holds: What his work is about, how it is done, how it has been done in the past, and how it may conceivably be done—or, in this changing age, done away with—in the future; and the second, the books he reads for pleasure—a library to make him free of the world and of time."

It is with the latter books that Mr. Jones deals, the different sorts that exist—fiction, biography, history, etc.—and with poetry, the machinery of which he skillfully takes apart showing how it ticks for his reader's enlightenment. F. B.

Montesquieu's "Persian Letters" in New Edition

"The Persian Letters of Montesquieu" has been added to "The Library of Living Classics," published by the Dial Press. It was an amusing and satiric book, indeed, about a Persian nobleman who decides to travel abroad, because he is disgusted with the way his own country is run, and what happened on his journeying. He had just decided that the Europeans didn't know how to treat their women when he found that his wives had rebelled.

The letters are theirs and the eunuchs to teach us how little the Persians, any more than the Europeans, understand women. They were published in 1721, and won him his fame.

Parisian Dress Seems Turned to Ishtar's Veil

Hergesheimer Puts Town in Babylon Mood.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Party Dress," by Joseph Hergesheimer. [Knopf.]

If "The Party Dress" had been published anonymously I would be willing to take odds that for every reader who guessed it was written by Joseph Hergesheimer there would have been three who said that it was written by Samuel Hopkins Adams in his more caloric incarnation of "Warner Fabian."

"The Party Dress" is the story of a woman of forty-two, pleasantly sunk in luxury [though not great riches], the mother of two children who have never given her much trouble, the wife of a man who is in love with another woman in the same set—the other woman the kind of "good" woman who is left a widow and hasn't enough to live on with grace, and who has no real taste in either her clothes or her life, but who adores her daughter and is to the community a "brave little woman."

The heroine of "The Party Dress" herself is mildly in love with the most eligible young man in town, who adores her and wants her to elope with him. Into such a calm, accomplished life, one that seems completely fulfilled, there is thrust a dress made by a French house by the name of Ishtarre. What that dress does to the heroine, to the community, to the innocent bystander is something that no French dress that ever swam into or out of the ken of this observer ever accomplished. The heroine becomes, through it, a reincarnation of the Ishtar of old. [The relation between the name of the dress-maker and the spirit of voluptuous love seems stretched slightly tightly, it seems to this reader.] Men who had danced with her at country club dances all of her life suddenly become crazed with her and tear the shoulder straps of her dress, or gurgle words of pleading that the cocktails of a lifetime have not previously provoked. The scenes have all of the photographic fire of "Flaming Youth." If that book shocked parents, "The Party Dress" certainly will shock their children. That mama and papa, aetat. 42 and over, have affairs which rend their souls quite as deeply as those first soul-shatterings of love at seventeen will be news to a good many of the younger generation. The difference between "The Party Dress" or "The Flaming Forties" and "Flaming Youth" is only in the sophistication and ennui of the characters. There was a certain sense of eagerness and experimentation about the naughtiness of the flaming youths. There is a deeper intensity and a sense of inevitability about the affairs of the adults. But they are the same affairs mostly.

Against that background, which seems pretty cheap, the author has painted a terrific and wrecking love. And in that foreground, it seems to me, and there only, is there anything of the old Joseph Hergesheimer. The background is all a sort of reworked "Cytherea." But the feeling that the strange, idealistic, rum-drinking, apparently disillusioned Chalke had for the heroine there is inherent that quality of "Domnei," of woman worship which characterized all of Mr. Hergesheimer's early work, as it did James Branch Cabell's, who gave the word to the literary language.

I remember Mr. Hergesheimer writing me at one time about "Mr. Cabell's and my special and peculiar preoccupation with what, I would suppose, would be today called an impracticable passion . . . beginning with 'The Lay Anthony' dreams and visions of loveliness have rewarded or destroyed the men in my books."

In the relation of the most important male character in his latest book to the heroine, there is inherent that old Hergesheimer. The Hergesheimer that wrote such a beautiful, terrifically five-sensed prose is not in "The Party Dress." The author of "The Party Dress" is only a gifted writer, not a genius.

'Author's Annual 1930' Gives Good Advice to Those Who Write

"The Author's Annual, 1930," edited by Josiah Titzell [Brewer & Warren], is a volume which should be in the possession of all young authors. It answers every one of the questions about how to prepare manuscripts, how to copyright, etc. Besides it has a remarkable section on "Book Vices Current," which lists the right and wrong spellings of words and names, and the use of words. Also it has lists of all of the prize awards of the year. Also other fascinating data [about best sellers, for instance], and besides, some essays on the business of writing by Frank Swinnerton, et al, that are delightful just to read, especially one by Guy Holt—a very amusing one on "The Care and Feeding of Authors."

Two Books on Sleep Present Views of Experts

Two books on that most successful of all repairers of the human body, the force that "knits up the raveled sleave of care," are off the presses of late. They are "Sleep: Why We Need It and How to Get It," by Donald A. Laird, Ph. D., Sc. D., and Charles G. Muller (the result of years of research and experiment in the psychological laboratory at Colgate university), and "Insomnia: How to Combat It," by Joseph Collins, M. D., author of the assorted "The Doctor Looks at . . ." books. With "Sleep" a special little lamp to be clamped on to the book is given as a boon and an allurement from sleeplessness, which does, according to the authors, take a real pound of flesh.

They are both fascinating books for their contents, but it isn't exactly fair to call them literary.

Four More of Pierre Loti's Books Added in Translation

Four volumes have been added to the collected works of Pierre Loti which Stokes are publishing in this country in translation. The additions are "Tahiti," which is the "Rarahu" which Frederick O'Brien talked of in his "White Shadows of the South Seas"; "Siam" ("Un Pelerin d'Angkor"), "Morocco" ("Au Maroc") and "Jerusalem."

It is the second of a series of small volumes on American foreign policies published by the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations.

British Public to Read More of Lawrence

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Within a couple of days of the news of D. H. Lawrence's death, a London publisher announced that a biography of Lawrence was in preparation; and there were other announcements of posthumous works. Thus quickly does the machine grind a man's bones when he is dead! But I am informed that all such announcements are by way of being premature—or at least misleading.

D. H. LAWRENCE.

For one thing, it is said that a new novel is to be published in a limited edition by a London bookseller. This work is not really a novel, but a short story. It is called "The Man Who Died." It was written some time ago, for publication in a limited edition, by Crosby Gaige, but the arrangements for publication fell through. A volume of short stories by Lawrence has been in type for some time. If has been held up because objections have been raised to one of the tales which the author wished to include.

This tale contained a satirical portrait of another English writer. It has been published in America, and I presume that it will be republished there. In addition to the book of stories, there is to be a small collection of 24 new poems, the general title of which is "Nettles." And as Lawrence, for the year or so preceding his death, had contributed to various newspapers articles upon such subjects as "Dull London," "Do Women Change?", "Sex Versus Loveliness," and "Human Destiny," there will be a book of these collected papers. It was in type before the death of the author, and indeed Lawrence's last work was to correct the proofs of the book and return them to his English publisher.

VERA CASPARY NOVEL GOES ON THE STAGE WITH HELEN HAYES

"Music in the Streets," by Vera Caspary, made into a play is going to be Helen Hayes' next starring vehicle. "Music in the Streets" was published by Sears in January, and is the story of a girl who worked in a drug store and fell in love with a boy who married a rich girl.

The boy was unhappy, and they resumed their affair. The boy's wife made a great scene and begged the girl to give him up, and she did, after she had been assured that the child which she suspected she was going to have would not be born. She married the owner of the drug store in desperation, and then found that she was after all, going to become a mother.

I suppose it's for the big scene when she tells her husband the truth and he makes the grand gesture of knowing what he wants that the play was chosen. It's a poor novel, I think, not to be compared with Vera Caspary's really good "White Girl." F. B.

THE DUTTON PRIZE BOOK FOR APRIL

CONTACT
By Elliott White Springs

This novel by the Chronicler of the "War Birds" and author of "Leave Me With a Smile," "Above the Bright Blue Sky," etc., is a story of a young American aviator.

In it Mr. Springs has drawn from his experience as an Ace a vivid, at times brutal, picture of a flying man's psychology—the fever that gets into his brain and changes his whole nature when the war proceeds; the constant prospect of death; the recklessness of his hours on the ground; his loss of perspective, his drinking, his women, his songs and laughter and tears.

When he returns to America after the war, he feels that he is unworthy of his fiancee on account of his lapses in Paris, but she takes the reins in her own hands and proves to him that no woman fit to be called a woman should ever be set on an unattainable pedestal. Her method of climbing down may horrify some readers, but it is very human.

By reason of the sheer brilliancy of its writing and the startling realism of numerous of its scenes, places this remarkable novel among the most important books of the year.

Mothers Tell of Their Children's Response to Radio

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A "Sex Education Booklet," by Mrs. Bevans, will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The letters on children and the radio which have been printed in this column were chosen because they give viewpoints of people who have been observing and thinking on the subject. The aim of presenting these opinions was not to offer final conclusions but to stimulate thinking and to perhaps guide those who had not learned how to combine child and radio to the benefit and happiness of the former.

Today I have chosen short extracts from a number of letters, showing how children vary in their response to the radio, depending on how it has been given to them, and upon their individuality.

"If any mother hopes to create a lasting appreciation of music in her child by use of the radio, she must see to it that the radio is used in a different manner than most of them are. My husband usues ours constantly in his home hours. It is not to be expected that such use cultivates either attention or appreciation."

"I may be fortunate in my selection of children, but I have never observed any ill effects in their behavior directly traceable to the radio noise, both being able to sleep well when it's going. I imagine the effect on a highly nervous child would be none too good, though no worse than telephones jangling, doors slamming and vacuum cleaners rasping."

"I remember when we got the radio I was excited, and picked up the oldest, who was two and a half, out of her crib to take her in to hear it. She immediately began to talk loud and was sh-sh-sh'd. She did not show any particular liking for it and I was disappointed, but laid it to the fact that she is a child who is constantly talking, and every time we turned it on we asked her to be quiet. There are children for whom taking the center of the stage away naturally creates a dislike for the object that does it.

"I do think having it turned on constantly irritates the nerves of older people and they in turn reflect the condition on the children. I could feel myself getting that way in Chicago when we had it turned on a great deal."

"The children are all ready for bed at 8 and ask me to please turn on the radio and open the door so they can go to sleep. I find by turning on some quiet music or solo singing they go to sleep in about five or ten minutes. Then we close the door and play whatever pleases us.

"If the music is too loud or lively the children get noisy and quarrelsome, instead of going to sleep. If we want to listen on a Sunday the children stay in the play room and don't pay any attention to the radio."

Some Types Can Wear Earrings; Others Should Avoid 'Em

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There are some women who should wear earrings with their house dresses, so much a part of them are they. There are some women who should wear earrings when they are bathed, rouged, dressed and ready for the afternoon descent upon their tea hostess. And there are some who should never go without earrings when they put on formal gowns. BUT—there are others whose earrings at any hour of the day, under any frock circumstances, do no good by them, whatsoever, unless they are neatly attached and unobstrusive pearls.

There are women who just aren't earring gals, just as there are women who aren't short-vamp shoe types or large floppy hat types, or no-make-up types. They are prettier, softer, more alluring without the ear trimmings. They look younger, too. Of course, I suppose a great deal depends on the earrings chosen, but there are women who add ten years with ear pendants, especially if the latter are of the hard, brilliant diamond school or their imitation.

On the other hand, I haven't a doubt that more than one girl's success with the other sex dated from the moment she lent herself a Cleopatra glamour with an unusual earring arrangement. Certainly jewels and perfume do more to intrigue the male than a waffle iron or the smell of fried bacon about a lady, emotions being the unrighteous things that they are.

Anyway, when you are shopping for earrings first think of the costume you are going to wear them with and govern your control accordingly. Insist upon their fitting in harmoniously with the dress color scheme, with your necklace, with your bracelets and with your rings. You don't want to look like a cheap jewelry window. Then remember that there is going to be a face close to them and that earrings of the hanging variety creat a definite line, as do the lobe ones, too, if they are of any proportion to speak of.

An attractive woman I know whose ears, face, skull outline and neck are beautifully proportioned discards every other jewel when she wears earrings. Hers are always striking in design. She is, too, when she wears them.

Lucile Paray Drapes Taffeta Successfully

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The bouffant evening dress is conspicuously absent from Paris spring fashions. It may not be dead, but merely sleeping. However, it has disappeared from the haunts of style. Even Lanvin has abandoned it in favor of the newer draped lines that look so beautiful and new. This breaks up the association of bouffant frock and taffeta, a combination of many years' standing, and gives to the latter a chance to appear in new effects, proving that women have done wrong to this really beautiful material by keeping it restricted to one solitary silhouette.

With the demise of the second empire frock and the expenditure of some creative talent on taffeta, we find taffeta moire, taffeta faille, brocaded taffeta and the old time changeable taffeta taking a new lease on style life. There are taffeta blouses, taffeta suits, taffeta coats, and taffeta day and evening dresses parading around in the Paris precincts consecrated to the haute mode.

Lucile Paray has proved that taffeta may be draped quite as successfully and with just as charming results as any of the softer materials, as the evening frock in our sketch attests. This dress is made of pale pink taffeta having a silvery sheen, and the original way in which the fitted front merges into the draped and surpliced back makes this one of the most successful Paris frocks of the season.

Puffs of taffeta are placed at the sides of this dress and tucked as they reach the bodice proper. The long tube of the upper silhouette is broken by three horizontal bands, and the full skirt is tucked for two inches below this tube. It reaches almost to the insteps and is even around the hem.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Here is a dignified lightweight woolen in the smart black and white tones, showing a snugly fitted hipline. This coat frock is made with a flaring circular skirt, dipping at the back. The plain black collar is rolled with the wide revers of the bodice, and the vestee of white crêpe has the becoming Vionnet neckline. The black also appears in the flared sleeve flounces.

The pattern, 3380, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 27 inch light material and ¾ yard of 39 inch dark contrasting and 4 yards of braid.

Cave Man Husband Not So Pleasant as Cave Man Sweetheart

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She married a man because he was the only one she ever met who could dominate her. She was thrilled at marrying a cave man and did not resent it when he threatened to beat her one evening before marriage when he caught her lying to him. BUT——

The other day, from a bridge party, she called up her cave man at his office and told him she would not be home and for him to get his own supper. When she arrived at 10 o'clock, triumphantly bearing the bridge prize loot, and he started in putting a few of his cave man tactics into execution she rebelled; not, however, before he extracted a promise from her that she would not repeat that absent wife treatment on him again.

Now, I ask you between paragraphs if that isn't exactly what the world of bridge playing, supper neglecting wives need? Just a few more husbands who'd assert their rights to a hot dinner when they get home and a lot of bridge debt complications and domestic irritations would be saved.

To continue the story, she, the one who loved to be dominated, nursed her grievance and the arm that figured in the cave man tactics until morning, when she donned her bonnet and rushed over to mother's to tell her all about it. Her idea was to get a good lawyer's telephone number from mamma, apparently. But mother and father chased her back to the man who knew what he wanted for supper.

So now, signing herself an "Abused Wife," after relating how wonderful her cave man is about giving her money, clothes, and everything she wants, she still would like to know if she should give him another chance.

And another and another, is our reply, for of nothing are we so thoroughly convinced as that what marriage needs is just a little more of that strong arm stuff from papa just to show his authority. Women love it. And the reason a lot of them are leaving their husbands is because they are searching for a mate who can tell them where to get off.

As witness the confession of one of the nicest wives I know, married to one of the most indulgent husbands. "If he only wouldn't fumble around so apologetically when he wants me to entertain a client or do anything like that for him—but ask me to do it. If it were my job, I'd like it a million times better."

"I. L. H."

You should have confidence in your ability to hold her against competition. It's natural she should want to go out with different boys while still young.

You would do well to forget a young man who fails to keep appointments.

The Spring Horseradish.

If we want to fairly rub in the idea of what horseradish is, we must emphasize its extreme and violent pungency. Anybody who has tried to grate horse-radish knows how vigorous this pungency is and how the vapors from the root assault the eyes even worse than do those from an onion being chopped or cut fine.

A food catalogue, speaking of the roots being left in the garden until needed, says that, "When grated they have a strong, pungent flavor which makes an appetizing relish to all meat dishes; also horse-radish is considered an excellent spring tonic." Again we will find some one saying that horse-radish is appreciated as an accompaniment to all cold meats, and equally acceptable with broiled mackerel and broiled fish. A man writing on the subject of horse-radish culture put it thus: "A table relish or condiment for every form of meat from herring to frankfurters."

But to mention its pungency again, we find Samuel Butler, in his "Erewhon," saying: "Some are so clever as to overreach themselves, like the horse-radish, which gets pulled up and eaten for the sake of the pungency with which it protects itself against underground enemies." But from an article prepared by the United States department of agriculture, with the heading, "Pungent horse-radish fails to repel insect enemies," we find that the Samuel Butler statement needs modifying.

At any rate, horse-radish has a mighty strong flavor, which can, however, be modified by combining it with butter for a horse-radish butter. Exceedingly acceptable with beefsteak and even with beef, it can be modified by combining it with cream, which conbination, with the cream whipped, is excellent with fish. It can be modified by putting it into some form of bread or cream sauce. To modify it with vinegar is more or less reprehensible, although it is often done.

A German recipe for horse-radish sauce is this: "Wash, grate, and scrape a horse-radish root, add to the grated root half its measure of bread crumbs, cover with water or milk, smear gently for fifteen minutes. If it gets too thick add a little milk. After fifteen minutes season with butter, salt, and fold in a beaten egg white."

BEAUTY ANSWERS

"I. G.: THOSE WHO USE THEIR eyes a great deal should have them examined at least once every two years. Eyes need tonic waters to preserve their youth. An excellent eye wash is made of one teaspoonful of refined salt to a pint of boiled water. With an eyecup, first rinse with this solution, then dash with cold water.

MISS E.: BRUSHING THE HAIR morning and night for five minutes and massaging the scalp with the fingertips is excellent for a dry scalp. Stimulate the roots of the hair to keep the scalp from becoming tight and drawn. You may have a tonic, if you send along a stamped, addressed envelope.

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

With ideal lawn making time at hand for Chicagoans and suburbanites eligible for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S $5,000 home lawn contest, entries close May 12. The simple rules listed in tomorrow's metropolitan section should be read by all those interested who have not entered.

In addition there is a story telling about some of the inquiries which have been pouring in to the contest department, and the answers which are being given. Readers also will find entry blanks.

New seedings this spring need not be mowed for some time, even though the weeds seem to be getting a good start, but when the grass has made a uniform stand and is of sufficient height, then frequent mowings give the grass advantages over its enemies. As a precaution against damage from the summer heat in dry periods, many expert lawn owners do not rake their grass even after mowing. They use rakes strenuously only in the early spring to remove tree leaves and other débris.

"Sick" lawns may be caused by a number of conditions, but usually are found by diagnosis to be from five general ailments. The first of these is lack of sufficient nourishment which can be remedied according to what plant food or feed is lacking. Another is growth of weeds such as dandelion and plantain. Thin and underfed lawns seem to harbor weeds best, but heavily nourished lawns grow fast and permit cutting often enough to curb the weeds.

Earth worms, underground inhabitants which come to the surface at night and during rainy weather, are valuable in aerating the soil, but sometimes become too numerous. Various treatments are described in "Better Lawns for Chicagoland," a booklet which is being sent free to every entrant in the contest. Ant hills are similarly discussed as a problem and for treatment.

Knock Before Entering!

The office managers of the company with which I am employed were holding an important meeting one morning with about thirty to forty men present in a study room set aside for such surposes.

I was asked to deliver an important letter to my office manager at the meeting. Thinking that there was an ante-room with some one to take any messages, I walked in without knocking.

Embarrassed? Don't ask! Instead of an ante-room, I had walked into the meeting, interrupting it and causing the speaker to stop while I asked for my manager, and had to walk across the room to give him the letter, with all eyes on me.

Hereafter my policy is—knock before you enter. R. A.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam in the Havre to Paris train. Macadam is an Englishman who lives in Paris. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is a little apprehensive about the coming visit because she had received just before sailing a letter from Hermione Cushing who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer, and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs but he doesn't know the widow very well. He had heard that she was ill. Arrived in Paris, Catherine is a little disappointed when her cousin's chauffeur is not at the station to meet her. Geoffrey sees her into a taxi, giving her his address and telephone number. He tells her that he will be anxious to know how things are at the Bender apartment, and she promises to call him. Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, the concierge tells her that madame is very ill. Catherine waits at the door for some time before her ring is answered. Finally Eduardo, the butler, responds to the ring. She is treated coldly by the servants, and Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, suggests that she go to a hotel. Catherine insists on staying in the apartment, as she is suspicious of the servants. Jeanne tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine Bender, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake and Catherine believes her. Geoffrey calls up Catherine and invites her to dine with him. She accepts his invitation and she tries to explain her uneasiness to him.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

AN UNFORGETTABLE SCENE.

Geoffrey was indulging in a brief battle with his usual scruples. When he spoke it was awkwardly, with a conscious effort at naturalness.

"By the way," he said, "I don't want to prejudice you, and I am pretty sure it's hardly worth mentioning, but a few weeks ago Miss Cushing came to see me about Mme. Bender."

"She came to see you?" echoed the girl in amazed eagerness.

So that was it! At last he was going to tell her what he had so studiously kept back.

"She complained bitterly about being prevented on many occasions from seeing her friend. She said she could scarcely ever get a word alone with her, and sometimes was denied admittance altogether."

"Ah!" cried Catherine, "that bears out Jeanne's story!"

"There was something else, too, though I'm not sure I ought to speak of it. I must rely on you not to give me away. She displayed an extraordinary concern in the disposition of Mme. Bender's property, inquired if a will had been made, and seemed very worried as to whether or not she was in danger of losing a legacy she had reason to hope would come to her when Mme. Bender died. Don't, for heaven's sake," he hurriedly supplemented seeing the girl's gesture of startled interest, "run away with any wrong ideas on the subject. I don't attach any importance to this myself, I assure you."

"But I'm not sure that I don't," murmured his companion, her eyes dark with excitement. "I can't help thinking——"

"Don't think," he cautioned, lightly. "Not at least till you've seen Mme. alone. I gathered," he went on, "that a more or less open warfare was going on between the lady in question and this Jeanne. Each no doubt thinks the worst of the other. I dare say there's a considerable amount of jealousy mixed up in it, for which reason I decline to take it seriously."

She considered this doubtfully, and he could see that her brain was busy with speculation.

"Shall you stay on there?" he ventured after a pause. "Or is it going to be rather too disagreeable?"

"I shall stay for the present anyhow," she replied slowly. "You see, whatever her mental state is, Mme. Bender seems so really happy to have me there. I couldn't hurt her by going away, not at once, that is. Later in the spring I am leaving for Italy, so it couldn't be for long in any case."

His face fell.

"O! So you don't mean to stay long in Paris?"

"Not this time. I'm thinking of joining some people who are in England now, but my plans will depend somewhat on their movements."

She was powdering her nose, so did not see the blank disappointment in his face, rather like the expression of a thirsty dog from whom a basin of water has been callously snatched away.

"But meantime," she remarked with determination, "I am going to do my best to find out what, if anything, is causing these fits of depression with my cousin. I can't help thinking there may be some definite, outside reason."

He shook his head disparagingly. The vagaries of a hopeless neurotic were generally impossible to probe. If the case proved to be actually mental there was little chance of improvement, but he said nothing and gave his attention to the bill just presented to him.

The evening being young, Catherine gladly agreed to his suggestion of a cinema, in her heart unwilling to return at once to the solitude of the gloomy apartment. Accordingly they presently found themselves seated in the warm darkness of a palatial building where shifting streamers of light played like the Aurora Borealis and an orchestra en masse rose as from the sea, shining pure gold against a violet curtain. In an instant they had entered a realm of fantasy.

He told her that each member of the orchestra was a premier prix de Conservatoire, the conductor a well known figure in Paris.

As he spoke there was a hush, and the first violin, an elegant youth with sleek hair swept off his forehead, stepped forward with an air and raised his bow. Simultaneously the curtain parted, and a pair of Spanish dancers moved on to the stage. The man, bullet headed and lithe, wore trousers of white cloth ornamented in silver, while his narrow body was tightly encased in a silver braided jacket. His partner, sumptuous in snowy lace, stiffened at the hips, was draped in a magnificent mantilla, pendant above her glossy black coiffure from a towering comb of red coral. Against the black velvet back drop the two figures poised, sheer, flashing white, and there were only four accents of carmine—the woman's comb, her immense earrings, her lips, and the heels of her shoes.

Then the music began, slow, deliriously exquisite, with a heavy sweetness, like the perfume of honeysuckle under a midnight sky. Catherine drew in her breath ecstatically.

"That heavenly tune! I've heard it before. Of course, it's the Albeniz Tango that Kriesler plays! It is too, too lovely!"

In a spell of enchantment she watched the swaying pair, while the violin with steady rhythm dripped notes that were like globules of clear ambrosia. Never afterwards was she to forget the sensuous rapture of those moments. Always whenever she heard the Albeniz Tango, no matter in what surroundings, she had but to shut her eyes to feel about her the enveloping darkness, see the opening heart of brilliant light in which moved the dancers. There was something else she was to recall, though at the time she was only dimly aware of it. That was the right hand of Geoffrey Macadam as it rested on the arm of the seat dividing her from him, brown, muscular, a little oversize for his slight, wiry build.

Returning home, the neighborhood was deserted, the buildings had a blind look with all the massive doors closed for the night.

After a short delay a ghostly click sounded and one of the doors swung heavily ajar. Catherine stepped within the entrance and held out her hand, but her companion after a slight hesitation followed her in.

"I think I'd like to see you actually into the apartment, if you don't mind," he said. "You may have trouble with the key."

Their steps echoed across the paved way to the foyer where a dim light shone in a suspended glass cage. Silently the elevator crept up to the entresol.

"I say, there's something odd about this lock. It's a good thing I didn't leave you to wrestle with it alone," remarked Geoffrey a moment later, after several fruitless attempts to open the door.

He struck a match and examined the key, an ordinary Yale one. There seemed nothing wrong with it.

"Let me have a go," suggested Catherine, taking it from him.

"Curious, that. Here, give it to me again."

Good Morning!

J. P. McEvoy, responsible for the story "Show Girl in Hollywood," which appeared in Liberty, is a successful author for a lot of reasons. The first one is, he writes about what he knows about. The second—he's funny as the dickens. For others, read him and find out. "Show Girl in Hollywood" is a clever yarn; the dialogue is always good—if not always well delivered—and, as adapted to the screen, the piece constitutes pleasing entertainment.

Alice White, as Dixie Dugan, does better work than is her wont. She's not an actress and probably never will be one, but there are several scenes in this film when she is reasonably convincing. If they can ever teach her not to bat her eyes and talk like a doll that is worked by strings; if she will ever learn to concentrate on the character she's supposed to portray instead of on the camera, she won't be so hard to take. She does try.

Dixie Dugan is a feather brained show girl who goes to Hollywood and "goes Hollywood"—the latter phrase meaning that she lets a bit of good luck make a fool out of her. The picture, mighty well directed, presents this damsel's experience to you in interesting manner.

"Show Girl in Hollywood" is atmospheric and really takes you into the heart of the suburb known throughout the world as the temple of the movies. From a "rubberneck" bus you survey exteriors, and, later, you get plenty of inside stuff on the studios and the folks who make these fascinating beehives hum. You see pictures in the making. You go to a grand opening. You learn from Donna Harris [Blanche Sweet] that "there's a broken heart for every smile in Hollywood." Miss Sweet looks charming and her acting is restrained and in good taste, excepting in one place where in unexpected fashion that is unintentionally ludicrous she bursts into song. Here the direction is NOT good.

The supporting cast headed by Jack Mulhall, impersonating a youthful play producer who loves Dixie and also goes to Hollywood, is excellent; the production features some attractive revue sequences that are unusually beautiful from the color angle, and the action throughout moves along at a lively clip.

See you tomorrow.

Mae Murray in Chicago; Brings Rabbits for Easter

Mae Murray reached Chicago for a week's visit yesterday with two two things on her mind—or, rather, three. They were her two white Easter rabbits which she carried in each arm, and Natacha Rambova's suit against her for $1,594. She seemed much more pleased about the rabbits.

"I always am being sued because I'm too easy," the actress, who is also the wife of Prince David M'Dvani, declared when questioned about Miss Rambova's suit for an alleged unpaid modiste bill. "I don't owe anybody anything. All she wants is publicity."

Miss Murray will appear in a loop theater this week, before returning to New York. Another of Hollywood's favorites, Marjorie White, passed through Chicago yesterday. She said she had just finished a talking picture and was on her way to visit her mother in Toronto.

Einstein Links Electricity and Gravitation

New York Professor Talks of German's Results.

New York, April 18.—(AP)—Einstein's link between gravitation and electricity is called easily understandable in comment by Dr. H. H. Sheldon, professor of physics at New York university, on a first complete copy of Einstein's latest paper received by the Associated Press.

This is the paper recently announced by cable as clearing away doubts about accuracy of Einstein's previous proofs of some direct connection between gravitation and electricity. The text makes 13 printed pages, mostly row on row of mathematical symbols, which are the calculations carried to completion.

After studying the text, Dr. Sheldon said the time has passed when it can be said that only a half dozen persons may understand Einstein. The relativist now belongs to the man in the street as much as does any other scientist.

"There is one thing about this paper deserving of further comment," said Dr. Sheldon. "That is the delightfully simple relation which Einstein has found to exist between the electrical and the gravitational factors in the cases chosen.

"For example, in the case of the isolated charged sphere he finds a relation between factors E and M, the electrical and gravitational factors respectively, involving no other terms except those directly dependant upon the coördinate systems used. Involved though the mathematical steps may be which lead up to this result, the result itself is of great simplicity.

"The time has gone by when it could truthfully be said that not more than six men could understand Einstein. Reading that a man had reached the topmost peak of Mount Everest, it might be difficult for one unfamiliar with mountain climbing to visualize the process of getting there. The layman could not understand the technique of cutting steps in ice cliffs, of constructing rope ladders, etc. Yet the idea of a man on a mountain top is easy enough to grasp.

In the same way the process of following the intricate mathematical reasoning of Einstein may be beyond the great majority of people, yet the conclusions he eventually arrives at are not too difficult for the average man. It is not at all impossible that a very poor mathematician should be capable of grasping the true physical significance of Einstein's results.

"Many laymen, who have kept up with the recent advance in science, have a great understanding and a real appreciation of Einstein's work. It is time that this worn-out statement to the effect that there exists but a chosen half dozen who could understand Einstein were discarded. It is doubtful if it ever contained any real foundation.

"The work of Einstein is as much the property of the man on the street as that of any other scientist."

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

The Answers.

Miss Ethel Walters, 348 North Hamlin avenue, stenographer—Yes, and how. I am devoting a portion of the day to completing my outfit; so let me go; I am in a hurry. Our choir will appear especially attractive Sunday.

William Jenson, 72 West Washington street, real estate—No, because Mrs. Jenson and I expect to attend the service of the St. Bernard commandery of the Knights Templar at St. James' Episcopal church. The Easter service is an important lodge event of the year.

Miss Margaret Howell, Crystal Lake, Ill., stenographer — I sure am. The church will be crowded. It always is on Easter—whether to hear the service or see the new outfits. Probably both factors enter into the case.

Murdock A. McRae, 1544 West 51st street, director Scientific Question institute—I am planning to be in the Easter day parade if weather conditions are reasonable; that is, if there are no hurricanes or blizzards. Easter is a pretty occasion that we have only once a year.

Miss Dorothy Smith, 6861 South State street, stenographer—I am a member of the Drexel Park Presbyterian church. Following the morning service a cantata will be given by the Sunday school children. Our class takes part in the cantata. I will be more interested in our performance than in the Easter parade.

Good Friday's Church Services Recall the Execution of Christ

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Chicago paured yesterday amid the whirl of its pressing affairs to observe Good Friday.

Thousands crowded the churches, to pray, hear sermons, to meditate. Schools were closed; so was the Board of Trade; so were the county building and city hall, except for the courts, the fire and police departments. Business houses and industrial plants gave their employés time to visit places of worship.

The Protestant denominations—seventeen representing 800 churches—centralized their downtown services at the Chicago temple under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation. There the seven last words of Christ from the cross in the last three hours of his agony were the subject of short sermons by Dr. John Thompson, Dr. David Hugh Jones, Dr. Roland W. Schloerb, Dr. E. J. Randall, Dr. J. Allen Leas, Dr. C. W. Longman, and Dr. Ernest Bourner Allen.

Roman Catholics of the near north side gathered at the Holy Name cathedral. There Cardinal Mundelein pontificated in the morning at the singing of the Passion, the Populo Meus, the Veneration of the Cross and the Mass of the Presanctified. This morning at 9 o'clock the cardinal will be present for the blessing of the Paschal Candle to be used in tomorrow's service. The "Te Ore" was followed in many Catholic churches.

At St. James Episcopal cathedral the "Seven Words of the Cross," by Heinrich Schulz, were given last night by the vested choir. Choral services in addition to the three hour services, from noon to 3 o'clock, were given in many of the Episcopal churches. The First Lutheran church, Fullerton avenue and Ballou street, held a union service yesterday morning. Just as services were held in several loop theaters, the united Englewood churches centered at the National theater, 6219 South Halsted street.

The Woodlawn post of the American Legion will hold an annual Easter parade tomorrow morning, marching from the post's headquarters at 63d street and Woodlawn avenue to the Hatfield theater. They will be the guests of the Rev. R. Keene Ryan, who will conduct a nonsectarian service. Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgway, commander, will head the parade of 150 veterans.

The Cook county council of the American Legion will distribute more than 2,000 Easter plants among disabled war veterans in the hospitals, starting this morning with the help of hundreds of legionnaires. The Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital, Maywood, will receive almost 1,000.

Rome Observes Day.

ROME, April 18.—The Holy week ceremonies reached a climax here today with Good Friday, day of grief in commemoration of the Golgotha tragedy.

While thousands of pious, both aristocratic and humble, thronged the city's churches, where clergy in black vestments and before denuded altars celebrated the offices, the city's business was suspended.

On hands and knees hundreds of faithful climbed the stairway, said to be the same climbed by Christ to be judged by Pontius Pilate. This stairway and its enclosure, near St. John Lateran church, was ceded to the Vatican by the Lateran treaty. Poor laborers mingled with the richly dressed nobility in the performance of this act of piety.

For sixteen centuries certain relics, including what are believed to be pieces of the true cross, have reposed in the chapel of Santa Croce. That chapel became decrepit through the ravages of time, so subscriptions by Catholics throughout the world enabled the construction of a new one, which was dedicated today and in which the relics rest, following services conducted by Cardinal Van Rossum.

Ceremony of Holy Fire.

JERUSALEM, April 18.—(AP)—All is in readiness today, Good Friday, for the ceremony of the Holy fire tomorrow morning that will climax the preparations of the eastern churches for the celebration of Easter.

Some hours before noon tomorrow a procession of young peasants will push through the crowd to execute a sword dance in the center of the rotunda of the Holy Sepulchre to the accompaniment of chanting.

The bells, meanwhile, will be clanging to herald the approach of the Orthodox patriarch, who will arrive soon, preceded by his ecclesiastics clad in the most splendid of vestments.

Reaching the door of the tomb, the patriarch will be divested of his cope and miter and will enter the tomb accompanied by an Armenian ecclesiastic.

The usual procedure next is that in the body of the sepulchre every light is extinguished, and the tension for the next few minutes is almost painful. Suddenly a terrific shout goes up from the crowd. Through a small hole on each side of the tomb a brand, held in the shaking hands of the patriarch and an Armenian, appear, lit by a fire which the vast majority of the gathering believe to have come down from heaven.

A desperate struggle now follows in the crowd, every one trying to be the first to light his taper from the brand, thus to insure eternal salvation. In a moment the light is passed from taper to taper.

Special runners bear the fire to Nazareth, Bethlehem, and other parts of Palestine and Syria. Before the world war it even was carried to Russia to purify devout believers who were not themselves able to make the pilgrimage. The Armenians participate with the orthodox in this ceremony.

A more tranquil Easter ceremony is that of the washing of the feet on Thursday, performed by the orthodox, Armenians and Jacobites, each separately, a ceremony based on the thirteenth chapter of St. John's gospel.

The orthodox ceremony is held in the courtyard of the Holy Sepulchre. Twelve orthodox ecclesiastics represent the twelve apostles, and in the center the patriarch. Divested of his miter and vestments, the patriarch kneels before the right foot of each "apostle," which he washes and dries.

The Armenian service, held in the Cathedrals of St. James, is accompanied by hymns sung by a choir of young men and girls.

The Jacobite service is held in their monastery, where the Jacobite bishop of Jerusalem kneels and annoints the feet of twelve of his clergy while a deacon intones the prayers from an ancient manuscript of the thirteenth century.

The Abyssinians [Coptic Christians] celebrate Easter in a tent on the flat roof of St. Helena's chapel in the holy sepulchre. Their abbot, in gorgeous apparel, sits beside the altar, while the monks beat silver tomtoms, rattle sistra, or dance with their curious lurching gait, all the while chanting.

FROM THE CROSS

GRASSINA, Italy, April 18.—(AP)—The "Gesu Morto" [Jesus dead] ceremony, with which the inhabitants of this little village commemorate Good Friday, unfolded picturesquely this evening just after twilight.

Large numbers of visitors from nearby Florence, including many tourists and members of the permanent Anglo-American colony in Dante's city, stood hushed until the tolling of a bell in a little church high up on a hillside amid the vines gave the signal for the procession to begin.

Then down the hillside there came, clad in reproductions of the costumes worn in Christ's own day, the peasant folk of the Tuscan hills and the tradespeople of the village, each acting some rôle in the gospel story of the weary descent from Calvary. Torch bearers led and flanked the column as it proceeded slowly along in the gathering dusk.

In the van were horsemen dressed as Roman centurions, with breastplates and helmets, carrying long lances and with cloaks thrown over their shoulders. Then the village children, the girls in white and the boys in black, all bearing lighted candles, appeared. The married women of the township followed, wearing black gowns and veils. Next were the parish priests in somber vestments, surrounded by a guard of honor of men of the Catholic societies, and the Grassina town choir all in line, chanting the "Miserere."

Surrounded by the participants in the pageant proper there appeared a black canopy, borne by a dozen men. Underneath it was an effigy of Christ, carried on the shoulders of stalwart townsmen.

The breaking up of the procession was followed by the annual blessing of farm animals.

Harvard-Yale Rivalry Active Among Planets

New Haven, Conn., April 18.—(AP)—Dr. Frank Schlesinger, director of Yale observatory, who has expressed doubt that the recently discovered heavenly body beyond Uranus is the planet which Dr. Percival Lowell predicted might be found in that space, today expanded his views and said it was a "unique discovery, a body unlike anything known before in the history of astronomy."

"Now that this new body is being studied by astronomers all over the world," Dr. Schlesinger said, "many doubts have arisen as to its exact nature. It is my own opinion that Dr. Lowell [in his search] may have been led astray in his calculations by errors in observations made by eighteenth century astronomers. It is my own guess that it really is a planet, one that has no relation with the different bodies that have been suggested in discussions of discrepancies in the path of Uranus. Whatever it may be, there is no minimizing its importance.

NEW REVERE RIDE TO RECALL PRESCOTT, AN ADDED STARTER

Boston, Mass., April 18.—(AP)—A third rider will join "Paul Revere" and "William Dawes" tomorrow in spreading the alarm "to every Middlesex village and farm."

Dr. Samuel Prescott had been a-courting late that historic April night in 1775 when the "red coats" were on the march, history relates. Midway between Lexington and Concord he came upon the British, who had temporarily captured Revere and forced Dawes to flee in another direction.

Learning of their mission, Prescott took up the task. Speeding away through moonlit byways towards Concord, he bore the message to the defenders of ammunition stores there of the approach of the enemy.

Previous celebrations have overlooked "Dr. Samuel Prescott." The observance are held in the daytime.

Sergt. Robert D. Rodes, who tomorrow is to impersonate Revere, will start from North square at 10 a. m., while Sergt. Joseph L. Reagan, who will ride as Dawes, leaves John Eliot square in Roxbury at the same time, and Sergt. Andrew G. McKnight in the rôle of Dr. Prescott will speed on to Concord to warn that town of the approach of the British. All three are members of the Massachusetts National Guard.

Claire C. Laflin, W. P. McBride Are Engaged

BY THALIA

Mr. and Mrs. C. Frederick Childs of Lake Forest announce the engagement of their daughter, Claire Childs Laflin, to W. Paul McBride, son of Mrs. Walter J. McBride of 33 Bellevue place.

That information, though it be in few words, is about as interesting as anything that has been divulged in these socially quiet weeks. Both Mrs. Laflin and Mr. McBride are popular members of the younger Lake Forest and Chicago set.

Mr. McBride is a graduate of Princeton, class of 1922, and has been a member of the Bachelors and Benedicts' committee for several years. No date has been announced for the wedding, but it probably will occur in the latter part of May.

Mr. and Mrs. Childs have been in town for the winter months, occupying the F. Hampden Winston apartment at 229 Lake Shore drive, and are now back in their Lake Forest residence. Mrs. Laflin has just returned from a spring trip to Bermuda with Mrs. Philip L. Elting and her daughter, Miss Ruth Elting, and Miss Jane Warner.

A great amount of industry probably will receive its just rewards at the Episcopal Guild sale in Lake Forest today. For weeks Lake Forest matrons have been painting flower pots and doing all sorts of pretty handiwork for the sale. Mrs. Uri B. Grannis, chairman of the guild, is in charge. Mrs. T. Philip Swift has made some Easter baskets, and Mrs. Morrow Krum and Mrs. George Dickson are to preside over a grab bag. Mrs. Hugh Garden and Mrs. Ralph Longstaff have charge of the flower sale, and Mrs. William E. Casselberry Jr. is treasurer. Besides, there will be on sale edibles, such as candy, cookies and cakes, and second hand fiction.

There is a perfect whirl of parties going on for Edwina Litsinger and Wilbur Smith, who are to be married a week from next Wednesday. The groom and his ushers are to have the bachelor dinner this evening at the Saddle and Sirloin club out at the stock yards, where the steaks are so grand. Next week's evening affairs include a dinner and theater party Miss Rosemary Baur is to give on Wednesday evening. After that Harry Drake, one of the ushers, will take the group to dance at the Balloon room of the Congress.

Miss Litsinger is to have her spinster dinner on Thursday evening at the Litsinger residence, and Dr. and Mrs. W. H. G. Logan and their son-in-law and daughter, the Donald La Chances, are to give a theater party and supper dancing at the Drake the following evening. Miss Henrietta Countiss is having the wedding party to dinner at the Whiting residence on Saturday evening, with dancing afterwards, and on Sunday Mrs. Mather-Smith de Bujac is to give a lunch at the Casino. The same afternoon Miss Georgianna Whitcomb is to give a tea and book shower for both the bridesmaids and ushers at the Whitcombs' new apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive. The wedding rehearsal will take place on Monday afternoon, and Mrs. Wilbur White Smith, the groom's mother, and his sister, Miss Theodosia Smith, are to give a dinner dance at the Palmer house.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, will give the bridal dinner on Tuesday evening at the Casino, and the following day is the wedding. Miss Eleanor Litsinger is to arrive next Saturday morning from school, so that she'll be here for some of the parties.

Stock's Orchestra Plays 2d Symphony by Rachmaninoff

BY EDWARD MOORE.

One finds one's self with a feeling of uncommon gratitude toward Mr. Stock for having made the principal part of the Chicago Symphony orchestra's exercises yesterday to consist of Rachmaninoff's Second symphony, and this, though the other items of the program were Rimsky-Korsakoff's overature, "The Russian Easter," and some excerpts from the first and third acts of "Parsifal," which are perhaps more seasonable.

But this Rachmaninoff symphony, in spite of its rather undue length, registers as one of the finest of all modern works of its form. It is something of a symphonic pageant of never failing vitality, constant play of color and motion, and unflagging interest. It has become a fairly constant even in the regular répertoire of the orchestra, and since every time one hears it again it turns out to be a little more entertaining than it was before, there is a good chance that it will continue to be constant.

Mr. Stock and the orchestra were expert men of the theater in its presentation. All the color, all the stir, all the exhilaration that is in the score were reflected in the performance, and the applause that went up at its end resounded and kept on resounding.

Is this a proper time to say that "Parsifal," with all the discussion about its philosophy, its religious, or pseudo-religious nature, its label appended by Wagner of "a stage consecration festival play," is from a musical standpoint beginning to age a trifle? One can admit its scope, its technical excellence, its many merits of other kinds, but it would seem as though the feeling of exultance which would give it its final urge of impressiveness had been left out.

In preparing the excerpts, Mr. Stock has with great acumen omitted all reference to the unending monologues of Gurnemanz, but it would seem that the Gurnemanz influence has pervaded other parts of the work, even the parts that it should not have pervaded.

On the other hand, "The Russian Easter," aiming less high, has accomplished its end and become a fine, stately, and rather impressive piece of music.

Joining the ambitious group of young musicians who give springtime recitals, Frances Glickman, soprano, and Mollie Opper, pianist, appeared in a joint program at Curtiss hall last night. The report of such events becomes almost a formula from the number of similar cases that appear each year. Miss Glickman has a clear voice of pleasant quality and she has learned a number of effective uses to which it can be put.

Girl Scouts to Learn Best Methods of Camping

The latest tips on camping will be given to Chicago Girl Scouts this week-end through their local officers by Miss Louise Price, secretary of the camping department of the Girl Scouts of America. Miss Price was with the camp community service during the world war at Biloxi. Since then she has camped with girls in most of the states. Camps vary with the type of country, but the best camps, she said, always are those which have the best leaders, where thrilling yet safe adventure is offered the girls.

CUT PERSONALTY VALUE IN COUNTY BY $202,598,494

The board of review yesterday announced a reduction of $202,598,494 from the assessors' total valuation of personal property in Cook county for 1928. The assessors' figure was $895,601,178. At the same time the board slashed land values on Michigan avenue between Wacker drive and South Water street by $597,491, and sent notice to owners of 32 north town properties to show cause why their assessments should not be increased by $898,977.

The cut on personal property assessments is nearly 25 per cent of the assessors' total, and will cause the tax spending bodies a revenue loss of $10,000,000. The final figure of the board of review is $693,002,684, which is $79,520,918 under the reviewers' 1927 total of $772,523,602. In 1927 the reduction from the assessors' figures was less than half the 1928 slash.

The greatest part of the reduction is in the city, in which the personal property is now assessed at $634,237,566, as compared with the assessors' figure of $820,004,203. In south town, which includes the loop, the valuation was cut from $407,859,106 to $278,184,468.

The valuations of the two boards for 1928, listed by townships, are as follows:

Land Valuations Cut.

The decrease in land valuations of the property on Michigan avenue was made at the suggestion of the land committee, which cut front foot values from $12,500 to $11,000. On the corners of the block are the London Guarantee and Accident Company building and the Keehn building, owned by Roy D. Keehn. Harry S. Cutmore, director of the reassessment, was indignant at the action. He said that reduction was made without reason and that it impairs the equality maintained in the loop.

"The cut resulted from facts submitted by Edward S. Skindzier, general superintendent of the London Guarantee building, at a meeting a week ago. Members of the board stated that they acted on the recommendation of their land committee after investigating the facts presented at the hearing.

Gives Grounds for Plea.

"The link bridge district is a pioneer area," Mr. Skindzier said yesterday. "There is very little in the glorified values established, because it is still a river district as compared with the loop, which possesses powerful congestion factors and inexhaustible lines of businesses that give it an inherent power of self-sustainment. Not one property owner in the loop could envision the passage of the river through the loop without being brought to the verge of apoplexy, as property values would be decimated, fortunes would vanish, and financial difficulties would be faced."

The sending of notices to north town property owners followed the discovery of alleged irregularities by state tax commission auditors. Chief among the owners is Murray Wolbach, owner and agent of 14 properties scheduled for an increase of $309,133. Other properties, either wholly off the books or underassessed, will be subjected to increases. A hearing will be held on Monday.

U. S. ARMY SURGEON INDICTED IN KANSAS FOR WIFE'S MURDER

Topeka, Kas., April 18.—(AP)—Indicted here today on a charge of first degree murder, Maj. Charles A. Shepard, 59, army surgeon, will be brought to trial for the alleged poison murder of his second wife, probably at the term of federal District court opening in Kansas City, Kas., next Dec. 1. Because the alleged crime occurred on government property he will be tried in federal court.

The federal grand jury returned the indictment after several days of investigation of the government's charge that Maj. Shepard poisoned his wife at Fort Riley, Kas., last June, as the result of an infatuation for a pretty 23 year old stenographer, Miss Grace Brandon of San Antonio, Tex.

Held in jail at Denver since his arrest there last month, the army officer will be returned to Kansas after removal orders are approved by the federal District court of Colorado.

Reiterating his innocence, the army officer declared in his cell at Denver that he was ready to fight the charge in court.

ILLINOIS FACES BITTER FIGHT ON FEDERAL OFFICES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 18.—[Special.]—Controversies over Illinois federal patronage are looming up in coming months as a result of the defeat of Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.] for renomination.

Senators Deneen and Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.] had difficulty in reaching an agreement on patronage matters last year. With the latter scheduled to become the senior Illinois senator next March, it is taken for granted that he may offer objections to the reappointment of some of the Deneen men whose terms will expire before Senator Deneen goes out of office.

The terms of Anthony Czarnecki, collector of customs at Chicago, expires on Aug. 2. Terms of two downstate district attorneys, Walter M. Provine of the southern district and Harold G. Baker of the eastern district, both expire on July 1. The term of Arthur C. Lueder, postmaster at Chicago, expired considerably more than a year ago, but Senator Deneen has made no move, either for his reappointment or the appointment of a successor.

The term of George E. Q. Johnson, district attorney at Chicago, will expire on Feb. 6, 1931, less than a month before Senator Deneen will go out of office.

Henry C. W. Laubenheimer, United States marshal at Chicago, has more than two years yet to serve, his term expiring on May 21, 1932.

The term of Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, collector of internal revenue at Chicago, was for an indefinite period. Inasmuch as Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick opposed the displacement of Mrs. Mabel Reinecke by Mrs. Blackledge, it is supposed that there may be a move to return Mrs. Reinecke to her former post if Mrs. McCormick is elected to the Deneen seat.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 18.—If the champion Cubs don't get another look at Bill Hallahan all season there will be no regrets. They took a good peek at him today and it resulted in an 11 to 1 defeat. They collected a quantity of passes and strikeouts, but failed to solve the problem of base hits. Consequently there was no choice except to fold up and permit the Cardinals to capture the final for an even break in the four day series.

The impressive run total amassed by St. Louis was due to several violent attacks on a trio of Cub hurlers. Chief among these was Guy Bush, who waited only until the second inning to show his ineffectiveness. Three runs in that stand and two in the third put the crippled champs entirely out of the day's consideration, but the Cards made it doubly safe by subsequently assailing Lon Warneke and Sheriff [Line Drive] Nelson for a half dozen tallies in the sixth and seventh.

Two things about Hallahan's labor are entitled to mention before taking up his lack of control, which is synonymic with him. With the high speed hop ball which he shoots from his left arm he registered eleven strikeouts, four of them making Blair a victim and two of them being handed to Hack Wilson. This same fast ball stopped the titleholders on two singles, both delivered in the sixth to avoid a shutout. On the other hand, getting them to bases was no trick for the Chicagoans. Nine walked, but didn't go places.

Hack Fans with Bases Full.

Hallahan's wildness gave the Cubs more than an even chance for something in the third, but the so-called timely base hit was not forthcoming. With one out, Bush, who discovered in the world series that a little dancing around in the batters' box frequently brought favorable results, tried his pet trick and it worked. English also walked. Blair made the mistake of not swinging at a third strike straight through the middle. Then Cuyler strolled, but Hack took three swings and that round ended.

The same fellows who did the heavy work during the assault on Bush in the second inning had a part in the scoring of two in the home third. Bottomley led off with a line drive to right. Hafey slapped one equally hard to left. Fisher drove one past Nelson's ear for a single, Bottomley scoring and Hafey pulling up at third. Gelbert was retired on strikes, but J. Wilson sailed a sacrifice to Hack and Hafey ran home after the catch.

Cubs Hitless Until Sixth.

Whatever hopes Hallahan might have had for a no-hit triumph survived until both Cuyler and Stephenson had flied to right in the sixth. Between these two demises Hack Wilson had survived because of Sparky Adams' muff of a tall popup. Then Tolson shot a single past first base, sending Hack to third. Zack Taylor singled in the same direction and Hack crossed the plate. A pass to Hack filled the bases. At this stage Hornsby limped to the plate to pinch hit for Bush. The Rajah worked the count to 3 and 2 and then neglected to swing at what appeared to be a perfect third strike.

Warneke's failure to escape without a run against him in the home sixth was due to lack of control. The wildness probably can be attributed to

Leads Ante Bellum Past Finish by a Length.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on following page.)

FRED BURTON.

Soundly beaten, but in third place, was Thistle Ann, daughter of Sir John Johnson, who won the Post and Paddock stakes at Arlington in Chicago last season.

Lacks Style of Champion.

But, while Dedicate won the first test of Kentucky trained Derby eligibles, there's no reason for Chicagoans to go out and wager the family jewels on him to capture the $50,000 race at Churchill Downs on May 17.

For Dedicate didn't win his first Derby prep like a true champion. He didn't roll on to victory like Bubbling Over did on the same course a few years ago, or like Reigh Count did in his preliminary efforts a year later, or even like Clyde Van Dusen did last season.

Ante Bellum, which Dedicate found hard to beat, hadn't won a race since last April. Yet the son of Supremus beat Dedicate away from the barrier. Chicagoans will remember how the Burton color bearer tore away from the barrier in his three starts at Arlington last season, and Dedicate didn't beat Ante Bellum until midway in the stretch. To make him do it Jockey D. Dubois had to slash him across the flank.

Dedicate Proves Fractious.

An eighth of a mile from home Dedicate, racing on the outside, came up on even terms with Ante Bellum. For twenty strides the two leaders raced head and head. For an instant it looked like Dedicate was going to bang. Then Dubois drew his whip. It was all Dedicate needed. He went on to win and was galloping at the end, while Ante Bellum and the other Derby eligibles behind him were all driving.

In the paddock Dedicate was nervous and fractious. He was the same way in the starting gate. When he

BASEBALL LESSONS.

At a period when that greatest of all time baseball builders, Ban Johnson, publicly laments in a magazine article that American boys are not learning and playing baseball as they once did, the current lessons by leading league stars, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, furnish a constructive stimulus whose outcome will be watched with interest.

The trouble with most instructions written by experts is that they are too technical. Either they do not start with the A B C's or they fail to explain the reasons for the statements they make. So it often follows that if a chap naturally does a certain thing in his own way better than in the way he is told to do it he follows his own method. Now that may be all right, but usually he is contracting a serious fault which is at first successful but prevents his ever rising above mediocrity. If a reason for following the orthodox method is presented, the beginner can see why it is correct.

Now take these lessons by Tommy Thomas which have been appearing this week. The Wake congratulates Thomas on the clear presentation of instructions, the simple manner in which they are written, the logical and perfectly clear explanation of reasons for certain things.

Following this will be the demonstration at White Sox park this morning at 9 o'clock to which any boy will be admitted without charge simply by presenting the free coupon appearing in this issue.

Perhaps none will say a boy without baseball instinct ever will become great just from reading these lessons, but in nearly all sports we have known of chaps who became expert after overcoming what seemed impossible handicaps. Certainly a boy with baseball instinct will profit thereby.

"Choosin' Up."

When sport fulfilled its mission to the thirty-third degree,
When joy and expectation met in perfect harmony,
With the spice of keen excitement to make the theme complete
That essence of enjoyment was, triple extract, I recall,

Gave his chosen protégé the "first choice" for his side.
Then, presto! As o'er mountains bursts the glory of the dawn

How sunbeams penetrate the clouds of loss and toil and tears—
Some have wandered far and prospered, some have fallen by the way,
Some wild flowers and grasses only keep a vigil o'er their clay.
Years and death, I flaunt your edicts, youth and laughter ban your pall,

He's a Bit Crotchety, but O. K. at That.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 18.—The orneriest man I know is Old Man Stevens, who loves a dime or two so well that he won't let a kid sit down in the aisle at the Polo grounds or the Yankee stadium to watch an inning of a ball game. For sheer cussedness, I never have seen the like of Old Man Stevens when a kid sets down his peanut basket or his soda pop frame and settles himself in the aisle for a quiet look-see.

"Hey! Hey! Hey!" and the old man comes out a-running and up the steps in his shirt sleeves, raising the very devil over a few hypothetical dimes of business.

Didn't Know Which Niles.

The old man just seems to have no human understanding in him, but I suppose you could excuse this somewhat on the ground of his early experiences. He came out to this country from England upwards of forty years ago with his young missus and their two young boys, and, after scratching for a foothold in the hard soil of New York, got wind of a working job in some place by the name of Niles. It was an iron working job in a mill, and when he went down to the railroad station to buy the tickets he could not just say whether it was Niles, Mich., or Niles, O. A fellow standing in the ticket line behind him asked him what he was going to do in Niles.

"I am going to work in an iron mill, not that it's any of your business," said young Mr. Stevens.

"Well, in that case," the fellow said, "it's Niles, O., you'll be wanting, and don't be holding up the ticket line all day."

So the Stevenses went to Niles, O. Between them the old man and the boys own a bank and most of the iron works and the best house in town today. But at that time the old man went to work in the mill. That is, he worked in the mill when the mill was running, but the missus and the kids had a habit of eating, so when the mill shut down, as it did from time to time, the old man went out on the roads doing poll tax work for the county, cutting weeds with a scythe, filling holes in the highways so the farmers could get through in their wagons, and digging culverts and one thing and another.

Points to Post Hole with Pride.

Once he worked for the telephone company setting poles and to this day when he goes to Niles he points out a post hole which he dug some thirty-odd years ago. He claims that this one is something special in the way of post holes, and really seems to think the Metropolitan museum ought to dig it up and put it in a case under some such label as "Remarkable Nineteenth Century Post Hole, Found Near Niles, O., Dug by Harry Stevens."

It may have been these hard experiences which made him so harsh toward boys who want to watch an inning of ball on his time nowadays. He always hustled.

"Hey! Hey! Hey!" he goes a-yelling and up the aisle in his shirtsleeves. As for boys who try to cheat him of a few dimes in cashing in after the ball games, I hear he has been nigh onto killing some of them.

There was a politician by the name Joe Foraker out near Niles in Old Man Stevens' time in the mill and on the roads, who afterward became governor and United States senator. He put Harry to work selling books from house to house around the state. A book agent is what Harry Stevens was in the days when no home was complete without one book, but quite complete with one. In time every home in Ohio had a book, and Old Man

Sox and Browns Will Try to Play That Ball Game Today

BY EDWARD BURNS.

With good weather the White Sox by now would have played four games. But they've played only one—their 8 to 7 ten inning victory over the Cleveland Indians Thursday. The third cancellation came yesterday, cold weather being given as the reason.

The St. Louis Browns were to have been the opposition and will be in the cast for the remainder of the Sox home stay, which ends Monday.

It was so cold yesterday morning that Manager Donie Bush did not have the heart to drive the assembled athletes from the clubhouse for their scheduled batting practice.

Miguel Gonzales, former Cub favorite, now a free agent, was out to have himself dealt a uniform but he didn't want to brave the cold. Mike left Cuba a week ago today and says he enjoyed one of the warmest winters in history. Mike will work out with the Sox this morning.

Two former Chicago managers are in town with the Browns—Bill Killefer, new manager of the St. Louisans, is the same red faced gent who formerly was boss of the Cubs and one of his coaches is no other than Battling Lena Blackburne, the sweet whistler from Jersey, who gained a type of fame as the White Sox manager last season and half of the preceding campaign.

Lena says he did no fighting this winter. He is displaying no scars and his wounded feelings no longer affect him.

If you want to put down a small bet on the future habitat of that able citizen Burleigh Grimes, take Cincinnati against the field. This with the proviso that he does not stay in Boston.

Donie Bush is an ardent fight fan. He plans to have an auto, with motor racing, in front of the Coliseum Monday night. After the Taylor-La Barba encounter he will dash to the station to start the seven city road trip with his ball club. Being an incorrigible Hoosier, Donie plans to cheer lustily for Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind.

If the cold keeps up Red Faber will not start against the Browns this afternoon. Ted Lyons will get the job.

(Sign name here)

This ticket presented at gates of White Sox park will admit one to first lesson of Tribune baseball school today. Bring your gloves, for several boys will be given actual supervision on the field.

Check These with Tommy's Lesson Today

Boys who have been following Tommy Thomas' daily pitching lessons in THE TRIBUNE may want to brush up on a few points before going to Comiskey park this morning for Tommy's personal demonstration. Here are some of the more important suggestions the White Sox pitcher brought out in his articles.

1. Develop a strong arm, but do it by easy stages, stopping work at the first sign of fatigue.
2. Throwing a baseball is the best exercise for a pitcher. General gym work is likely to develop the wrong muscles.
3. Practice special exercises for fingers and wrist.
4. Use only an all wool sweat shirt. Otherwise your muscles will stiffen by cooling too quickly.
5. Never throw at random in practice. Every toss should be a step forward in the development of control.
6. There are 21 sections in the rules which deal exclusively with the pitcher's work. Know them in detail.
7. Study the batter's stance. It often tells what kind of a ball he's expecting.
8. Hold a curve and fast ball with the same grip.
9. Never alter your habitual windup when making a change of pace.
10. Adapt your pitching to wind conditions and the size of the park. If the park is large and the wind blowing toward the plate, throw high, fast balls to make the batter hit flies. If the park is small and the wind blowing from the plate, throw low to make the batter hit grounders.

THOMAS TO TELL BOY PITCHERS HOW IT'S DONE

Shires, Jolley Will Be There, Too.

[Sports Editor.]

Boys, this is the day you have been waiting for. At 9 o'clock this morning THE TRIBUNE'S baseball school opens at Comiskey park with the best staff of professors the White Sox club can provide.

CHARLES COMISKEY.

Every boy is invited to attend. Lads too young to make the trip to 35th street and Shields avenue alone may take their fathers, older brothers, or friends. Adults accompanied by a boy will be admitted.

The only requirement for admission is that each boy must present at the gate a ticket which appears in this morning's TRIBUNE.

This is the first of eight lessons arranged by THE TRIBUNE with the coöperation of Charles Comiskey and William Wrigley, owners of the Sox and Cubs, to teach boys of Chicagoland how baseball is played in the major leagues.

It's Tommy's Day.

Tommy Thomas today will demonstrate the interesting and authoritative lessons which have appeared under his name in THE TRIBUNE all week. He will not clutter your minds with suggestions which he hasn't personally found profitable as a big league pitcher. Only the points he considers essential for success will be demonstrated. Before each delivery he will announce through the loud speaker the kind of a ball he is about to throw and the grip required for its execution.

No boys will be allowed on the field. Gates will be open at 8 o'clock, one hour before class is called, and a detail of police, assisted by 200 Boy Scouts, will help spectators find seats where they can get a good view of the teacher. The benefits to be derived from the lessons will depend in no small measure on the conduct of the students. Maximum results can be obtained only by the coöperation of you boys with the stars who are giving their time to help you learn baseball.

Shires, Jolley Will Be There.

As an added attraction The Great Shires and J. Smead Jolley will see how far it is possible to hit a baseball. They are among the men who are putting a wallop in the Sox attack this spring.

No sport surpasses baseball in the richness of its romantic background and the allure of its luminaries' achievements. No sport builds up heroes who are more widely known. Shires is outstanding in the new crop of diamond leaders.

Crammed into his brief major league career we find the elements that fire the public's imagination. Effective hitting, daring fielding, now a frolic, then a scrap, suspensions and redeeming feats. Shires, like Hornsby and Wilson and other Chicago baseball heroes, has a big following among the boys. When he walks out of the park you usually see a group of youngsters following him.

Shires today will autograph baseballs for boys requesting the favor. So will Thomas and Jolley.

Thomas, director of today's class, has been pitching for 12 years. He came to the White Sox in 1926 after a whirlwind career in the International league with Buffalo and Baltimore. As a member of the Chicago American league club he has established himself as one of the best hurlers in the league. He was given the honor of pitching the opening game for the Sox against Cleveland Thursday.

And It's Free.

Shires joined Comiskey's team near the end of the 1928 campaign. He came from Waco, Tex. In his first appearance as a big leaguer he slammed out a triple and two singles.

Jolley, one of the leading hitters in the Pacific Coast league last season, is playing his first year in a White Sox uniform.

They are giving you a chance to learn baseball without cost. And remember, you are learning it from fellows who know what it's all about.

Police will be detailed at street intersections near the park to care for the boys' safety.

WILDCATS LOSE HURLERS' DUEL TO TEXAS NINE

First Inning Spurt Wins for Southerners.

Austin, Tex., April 18.—[Special.]—The University of Texas today won the first of a two game series from Northwestern when Delaufuente took a 3 to 1 hurlers' duel from Kadison. Both pitchers held their opponents to five hits. Texas bunched two hits with a walk in the initial inning to score two runs. The third came on a hit and a walk. The Purple scored its marker when Kadison's hit was followed by Frange's single to left.

ILLINOIS NINE WINS.

Atlanta, Ga., April 18.—[Special.]—The University of Illinois baseball nine whipped Georgia Tech here this afternoon, 4 to 3, in a game cut short in the sixth inning due to a rainstorm. The Illini had added two runs to their total in the first half of the sixth inning, but Tech did not get to bat, so that half was wiped out.

The victory was the sixth straight triumph for the boys from Illinois. Marvin Labahn of Algonquin started on the hill for the Illini and was sent to the showers when a base hit barrage sent three Tech runners home. Bud Wiese relieved Labahn and halted the rally. In the five innings Lymperopoulos stole three bases.

Yale Fencers Beat Army for Intercollegiate Title

New York, April 18.—(AP)—Capturing the foils crown in a close brush with the Army, the swordsmen of Yale retained their three weapon title at the Intercollegiate Fencing association championships today. Yale finished the team competition with 15 points as a result of a first in foils, a first in epee, and a fourth in sabers.

Irish Polly Shows Heels to Betty Beau

Havre de Grace, Md., April 18.—[Special.]—Since horses cannot talk no one will ever know whether or not there are feuds in the horse family, but the finish of the Adorable purse here today gave every indication of being a battle to the death between two fillies that have faced each other on previous occasions with varying fortunes, Dixtana's Irish Polly beat T. J. Beauchamp's Betty Beau under level weights and about settled the differences between them.

Last year the two met in several filly races and Betty Beau had the best of things. In fact, Betty Beau won four of seven races in 1929 and only once finished out of the money.

Eight Horses Start.

There were eight starters this afternoon, but from the break to the finish of the five and a half furlongs it was a two horse race.

Frank Coltiletti was Irish Polly's jockey and he sent her off to the lead with Betty Beau and Samuel Ross' Poinciana in close pursuit. Before Irish Polly could join battle with Betty Beau she had to beat off Poinciana, as that daughter of High Time ran second for the first half of the race.

Wins by Two Lengths.

With Poinciana raced into defeat, Irish Polly shook out the last reef in the stretch and drew away from Betty Beau to win by two lengths. Red Cross Sister closed very strongly to just nose Poinciana out of the show money, five lengths back of the pair that fought it out for first. The five and a half furlongs were run in 1:08 2-5 over a heavy track. Irish Polly paid $5.50.

OFF TO GOOD START

Dedicate Wins in His First Derby Trial

failed to open up a wide early lead his many backers gasped, for he was the 7 to 10 shot in the betting.

Ante Bellum had things his own way down the back stretch, but on the turn Dedicate pulled up on him and might have been on even terms as the stretch run started but for going wide. Dedicate lost three lengths at this stage and the fact that he made it up is all to his credit, but the Derby eligibles behind him did not amount to much.

May Meet Tannery.

Dedicate's time for the Futurity course, which is 170 feet less than three-quarters of a mile, was 1:11. He ran the quarter in :23 2-5; the half in :47, but his time was two-fifths of a second slower than Patricia Ann, a selling plater, ran the same distance early in the afternoon. And, if anything, the track was faster when Dedicate stepped on it than it was when Patricia Ann turned in her winning gallop. Dedicate must beat Tannery before he becomes the unanimous choice of the Derby followers congregated in this section. He will probably hook up with Tannery next week.

If he should win that battle he will travel on to Churchill Downs to become a formidable Derby candidate. It will be up to Dedicate and High Foot, the latter also owned in Chicago, to turn back the easterners.

Trainer Ward tonight declared he was well satisfied with Dedicate's race, but he admitted he didn't know whether the son of Dodge On Time will be able to go a mile and a quarter in champion stride. But many Kentuckians have faith in Dedicate. They believe he was far short of his best form today.

nervousness over his big league debut. For a starter he passed Hallahan, who was advanced by Douthit's bunt. Adams popped out and Frisch walked. Then Bottomley caromed another single off the right field concrete, Hallahan scoring and Frisch going to third. Hafey flied to left to relieve Warneke of trouble for the time being.

Walks Start Trouble in Seventh.

The cluster of five off Warneke and Nelson in the seventh budded when Fisher and Gelbert walked. J. Wilson flied out and Hallahan strolled, filling the bases. Douthit scored two by doubling to left, leaving Hallahan on third. Nelson hurried forth to fend assistance, and the first thing he discovered was a single by Adams, scoring Hallahan and Douthit. Then Adams tallied on a double by Frisch.

McCarthy took his cripples and able bodied performers to Cincinnati tonight, where they face the Reds in three games before going home to let Chicago have its first glimpse of its 1930 pennant entry.

Starts Baseball Career.

This time he started selling score cards at the main entrance of the old Polo grounds. He wore a red coat but it was his own red coat. "If the customers got by him they were lost and he presently realized that he ought to go around among them when they were settled and more willing to reach for their money. He added a line of peanuts and presently took on an assistant. He has had thousands of assistants since then, at the Polo grounds, the Yankee stadium, the old Garden, all five of the New York race tracks, all four of the Maryland tracks, the Hialeah track in Miami, the Havana track, and the old one in Juarez, Mexico, and of course, the original line of score cards and peanuts has undergone considerable elaboration. He has become a caterer in some places but at the ball yards he remains what he was in the beginning, the score card and peanut butcher.

The most picturesque dealings he ever had were in the old Garden at the six day bicycle races, long before Tex Rickard brought in the strong arm squad to refine the show to death. Tad Dorgan, the cartoonist, drew a picture against the background of the old six day race, presenting the first known public reference to the common boiled frankfurter as the hot dog. Since then, under the subtle sales pressure of old Mr. Stevens' boys, the hot dog has become the official delicatessen of the city of New York. He has sold enough of them to girdle the earth and the original of Tad's cartoon, the picture that loosed the plague of hot dog signs upon the countryside of the Atlantic seaboard, hangs in a frame in his office.

Gave Up Popcorn.

A long time ago he tried to sell popcorn in New York but gave it up. There are not twenty popcorn stands on Manhattan island. Mr. Stevens doesn't know why this must be so and he, if anybody, should.

I met one of his sons, Frank, at the United Hunts meet at the Aqueduct track.

"Nobody," he said, "ever had a better dad."

This was in line with something his own boy, Harry, the second, had said at the Saratoga track last summer. Harry, the second, was then about to begin his sophomore year at Yale, a candidate for the football team. At prep school and in his freshmen year at Yale he had been Albie Booth's roommate. I gathered that as between his Phi Beta Kappa and his Yale Y, Harry, the second, would prefer to bring home the Big Yale Y to be framed on the wall of the old man's office. But, although he worked in his grandpop's coolers in person, in charge of several tons of ice every day all summer long, the gray second team at Yale was as high as he managed to struggle up last fall and his only souvenir was three rousing cheers for the scrubs. The old man couldn't frame that.

He's Rich Now.

The old man is one of the rich men of the town now. He always bought good stocks when he was buying and he has never sold a stock yet except to buy a better one. His own boys have moved into the business, so you hire, say his department heads were all home grown. He knows as many of the so-called best people as Rockefeller did or Gene Tunney ever will, but today he is not any too good to go into one of his white coats and go up and down the aisles at the Polo grounds selling peanuts for dimes. Moreover, although he never lectured at Yale, Old Man Stevens could quote Shakespeare any heavyweight champion that ever lived and give him chapter and verse. As intimated, however, he is plain, downright orthodox toward any of his boys who seek themselves in the aisles to watch the ball games when they ought to be hustling dimes.

"Hey! Hey! Hey!" and the people turn and look, astonished at the crustiness of an old man who won't let a kid peek at a ball game before his very eyes.

But when the kid is out of work in winter, or some one is sick in his family, the old man loads a cab with groceries and delivers the stuff himself, with, perhaps, a fifty dollar bill in an envelope inside the turkey. He has been known to send the ambulance around also and rent a room in a hospital and hire the best doctor in town. Only, when he does these things, nobody ever hears him yelling "Hey! Hey! Hey!"

La Barba Has That Left Hand Ready for Taylor

BY WILFRID SMITH.

JACK DEMPSEY.

Fidel knows that Taylor's best blow is a left hook to the body. Consequently yesterday he carried his right hand in position to stop a left hook, and had Bud been in the ring with him, he might have found it difficult to reach La Barba's body.

While the betting odds still give Bud a shade for Monday night's ten round battle, it is the opinion of those at Fidel's drill yesterday that Bud will have to use his left to slow up the pace early in the fight. Otherwise, these fans point out, the veteran may find the later rounds difficult to negotiate.

La Barba went two rounds with Joey Bosak after a bit of shadow boxing. While Joey did his best, he was a tired boy at the conclusion. Fidel left handed him around the ring and had no difficulty ducking and stepping back from Bosak's fists. Then came two more fast rounds with Billy Deuce. It was the same story, for La Barba showed an accuracy which gave him a high percentage for his efforts.

Bud put in another afternoon of hard work at Barry's gym. He scoffs at Fidel being able to outspeed him. Both Taylor and his manager, Eddie Long, think Bud's solid smashes to the body will cut short La Barba's fast pace.

Dempsey Arrives Today.

Jack Dempsey, promoter of Monday's featherweight battle, arrives today to supervise final arrangements. The ticket sale has encouraged Jack and for the first time in his promotional career in Chicago he believes he has a box office winner.

Two six round fights and four fives provide the supporting card Monday. Solly Schuman of the west side meets Ernie North of Minneapolis in a six rounder which is highly regarded. Two of the 1930 Golden Gloves boxers are on the program. Paul Leberto meets Joey Bosak and Sammy Levine clashes with Frankie Almarez.

Tuffy Griffith, who has been outdooring in Wisconsin preparing for his comeback fight against Jack Gagnon at the Stadium April 30, will be back in the loop tomorrow. Tuffy has sent word he'll start ring drills that afternoon at Kid Howard's.

New Records Expected at Millikin Today

Decatur, Ill., April 18.—[Special.]—A fast track gives hopes of new records as the speediest men of Illinois high schools gather here tomorrow at the tenth annual Millikin relay carnival. Ninety-four schools and 895 athletes will compete.

There are large fields of outstanding men in the dashes, hurdles, mile run, shot and discus and the six relays. Ralph Metcalfe of Tilden Tech of Chicago, running at Millikin for the third time, is a favorite in the dashes.

Greenwood of Streator, Warner of Lawrenceville, and Cravens of Hindsboro are the most serious threats to Metcalf. Malmberg of Waukegan, Lillig of La Grange, Harshbarger and Monroe of Atwood and Walls of Lawrenceville lead a star group in the hurdles.

Deerfield Shields is making the most determined effort to wrest the title from Tilden, entering outstanding men in every individual event and the relays. Atwood and Lawrenceville, who tied for fourth place last year are downstate favorites along with Mattoon, Urbana, Lincoln, Pekin and Streator

8 BIG 10 TEAMS COMPETE TODAY IN KANSAS GAMES

Charles Leads Decathlon Scorers.

Lawrence, Kas., April 18.—(AP)—Wilson [Buster] Charles, Haskell's great all around Indian athlete, tonight stood in a strategic position to win the decathlon event of the eighth annual Kansas relays after two years in the runner-up position. At the end of five events of the first day Charles had a total of 4,185.955 points, 37 more than he had at the end of the first five last year and nearly 500 more than his nearest competitor, a teammate, James Grant, had today.

Boyd Ranks Third.

In third place at the end of five events was W. A. Boyd Jr. of Westminster college. B. Douglas of Grinnell was fourth. Tom Churchill of Oklahoma, who won the event last year, was not entered.

Hundreds of college and university athletes from fifteen states will be on hand for the relays tomorrow. All except two members of the Big Ten conference have entrants. Track and field men from that conference last year won five of the six university class relays and four of the ten individual events. The only Big Ten schools not represented are Purdue and Ohio State.

Leland, Bracey Clash Again.

Entrants in the century dash include Cy Leland of Texas Christian university; Claude Bracey, Rice institute flash and former Olympic team member; Eddie Tolan of the University of Michigan, and Jack Ford of Northwestern.

HAWKS ARRIVE AT COAST FOR RICHFIELD SERIES

Los Angeles, Cal., April 18.—[Special.]—Chicago's Blackhawks arrived here today to stake their hockey prowess against the local champion Richfields in a series starting Monday. The Blackhawks hold a clean sweep over the hockey opposition of the Pacific coast, but this record stands a good chance of ending next week during the Richfield series.

A third game will be played if necessary to decide the series and after that another game in Los Angeles will place the Chicagoans against a picked team.

Our Finest Quality $5 Luxuriously Lined

Today men want real Value for their Money, whether they are buying a house or a handkerchief.

It doesn't make any difference whether they are trading on Wall Street or shopping on Main Street, or looking for a hat on any other street in the U. S. A. where we have a store.

I believe this is one year when a name that represents Value is worth more than a Label that spells Price.

Last year the average man didn't consider the Value of anything, but he knew the Price of everything—and was willing to pay it.

It's different this year. Mr. Average Man isn't going to pay any more than is necessary for the exact "Style Twin" of the best Style shown by the Highest Price Hatter. He is not going to pay a Luxury Tax for an Expensive Label if he can get exactly the same Style, without the Label, at half the price.

Now, it's my business to Reproduce every Style Introduced by the High Price Hatters, and the "Style Twins" in my windows today explode the idea that you can get more Style, if you pay more money.

This year I am going after more business by giving more Value and I know my new Spring "Style Twins" will make this a Truly Warner Year.

Last week the total sales of same stores in entire Truly Warner chain showed an increase of seventy-three per cent over corresponding week a year ago. This is a Truly Warner year.

CANDIDATES IN ILLINOIS ASKED TO SHOW FUNDS

Invited to Give Out Their Expenses.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 18.—[Special.]—Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.] and Ruth Hanna McCormick, who defeated him for the Republican senatorial nomination in Illinois, will be given an opportunity to appear before the senatorial campaign committee or file a statement of expenditures next week. This was indicated today by Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.], chairman of the committee, following its first meeting.

Senator Nye said, however, that there is no intention of holding extensive hearings in Illinois or elsewhere. Senator Deneen already has requested an opportunity to make a statement relative to his own expenditures and Mrs. McCormick has expressed a willingness to do so also.

Before determining a further course with respect to Illinois the committee will examine the statements by the two candidates and also study various complaints received from individual citizens. Most of these complaints, it is understood, are of a general nature, and do not represent formal charges by either of the candidates or their principal backers against the other.

Senator Nye said that the committee may decide to visit Pennsylvania before its primary on May 20.

The first step of the committee will be to direct all senatorial candidates in all states to file a statement of campaign expenditures.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN TO RUN NEW FAST TRAIN

The Chicago Great Western railroad will inaugurate a new fast train, the Minnesotan, tomorrow night, between Chicago, Des Moines, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Rochester, Minn.

The Minnesotan, leaving the Grand Central terminal at 8 p. m., will reach St. Paul at 7:10 a. m., and Minneapolis at 7:40, clipping an hour and ten minutes from the present schedule. Sleepers for Des Moines will be switched to the Minneapolis-Kansas City express at Oelwein, Ia., an arrangement which will lower the present Chicago-Des Moines schedule an hour and a half. Rochester sleepers will be switched to the Rochester express at McIntyre, Ia., reaching Rochester at 7 a. m.

The commercial offices of the railroad were moved last night from the Old Colony building to larger quarters in the Austin building, Clark street and Jackson boulevard.

CHICAGO-LA SALLE AIR LINE TO BE STARTED MONDAY

Airplane passenger service between La Salle and Peru, Ill., and Chicago will be started on Monday by the Peru Airways company, an announcement from the new company said yesterday. The service will be daily, two trips being made each day, in the morning and the afternoon.

The company plans eventually to spend $125,000 for field, equipment and planes. Landings in Chicago will be made at the Municipal airport. Travel Air cabin monoplanes, carrying five passengers, will be used in the service. Planes will leave La Salle-Peru at 7:30 a. m. and 5:30 p. m.

Radio Offers Effective Good Friday Music

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

In declining to present dance music after 8 o'clock, in signing off at 11 o'clock out of respect to Good Friday, and in presenting remarkably choice programs in the interval W-G-N arose to the occasion of Good Friday in a manner worthy of admiration, also of emulation.

A Good Friday concert was given during the 8 to 9 hour by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, Baroness van Westen, contralto, and Robert Phillips, baritone. Appropriate numbers were sung by the soloists, the accompaniment being either by organ or orchestra. The Good Friday Spell music from "Parsifal" (Wagner) and four sections of Verdi's "Requiem" suite were played by the orchestra.

From 9 to 9:30 Pat Barnes gave a manuscript of his own, entitled "Twelve Periods in the Life of the Nazarene," this to incidental music which Humperdinck wrote for the "Miracle" play, shown in Chicago four years ago. This, too, was admirably done.

A classical piano recital was given by Miss Florence Trumbull in the 9:30 to 10 period. Most of her numbers were by Beethoven, Copin, and Liszt. The Chopin Etude in C Minor, unfamiliar, I believe, in radio, proved to be a very interesting, out of the ordinary piece. Miss Trumbull played beautifully last evening, the phrasing and dynamic stresses being brought out with telling effect.

A dramatization entitled "It Is Finished" was presented by the W-G-N staff, 10:10 to 11. This was in the nature of a novelty, the idea back of it being admirable. The purely dramatic events were depicted with dignity and effect.

6 MEN ARE SHOT AS FACTIONS OF MINERS BATTLE

Royalton, Ill., April 18.—(AP)—A constable and five miners were wounded, one seriously, in a shooting affray on the main street between two rival mine factions here today. Approximately 25 shots were fired at random, a man was shoved through a plate glass window, rocks were thrown, and numerous blackjacks and clubs wielded.

The most seriously hurt was Barney Davie, a miner of Zeigler, who was taken to the Zeigler hospital with a bullet wound in the abdomen. The others are Constable John Hicks of Royalton, scalp laid open and a bullet wound in the right leg; Adam Ivanich, miner of Royalton, flesh wound in leg; Roy Groves, miner of West Frankfort, flesh wound; Ray Edmondson, miner of Zeigler, shot through hand; and Tony Bosich, miner of Zeigler, shot in shoulder.

It was expected that Marton M. Hart, Franklin county state's attorney, will apply for warrants in the case, while Adolph Germer of Mount Olive, vice president of the insurgent group of the United Mine Workers of America, declared his attorneys would prefer charges.

Germer, who was beaten up, was scheduled to address a meeting here this afternoon with Alexander Howat, president of the insurgent group.

LOOT IN AIR MAIL ROBBERY SMALL, INSPECTOR SAYS

Chief Postal Inspector K. P. Aldrich said last night that no trace had been obtained of the men who robbed the air mail truck on Thursday night as it was leaving the Municipal airport. The loot of the robbery was small, Mr. Aldrich said, as there were no money shipments and fewer than 15 registered letters in the sacks taken by the robbers.

Postal authorities and police spent all day questioning Adolph Stehno, 3218 South Karlov avenue, driver of the truck, which had taken the mail from an incoming airplane and was en route to the postoffice when the bandits stopped it outside the airport. He was a relief driver on the truck and had forgotten his revolver, he said. Last night he was sent home. No suspicion was attached to him, Inspector Aldrich said.

Patrick McIntosh, for many years personal bodyguard for Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion, Ill., died yesterday at his home in Zion. He was returned home two weeks ago at his own request.

FRANK BUCHANAN, EX-LABOR LEADER, POLITICIAN, DIES

Frank Buchanan, former labor leader and congressman of the Seventh Illinois district from 1911 to 1917, died of a heart attack yesterday at his home, 2607 North Ridgeland avenue. He was 67 years old.

Buchanan had a stormy career both in labor affairs and politics. Born in Chicago, he learned the trade of structural iron worker, and in 1901 was elected international president of the Structural Iron Workers' union. His reëlection in 1902 was bitterly contested by Sam Parks of New York, notorious labor exploiter of that time, who was subsequently convicted of graft and sentenced to Atlanta penitentiary.

Buchanan was defeated in his first campaign for congress in 1908, but two years later, with the support of William Jennings Bryan, he beat Fred Lundin and went to Washington. He was serving his third term when in 1916 he was charged with fomenting strikes in munitions plants and indicted. The jury disagreed.

Surviving him are his daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Olson, and two sons, James and Edwin. The funeral will take place at 2 p. m., Monday, from a chapel at 4559 Milwaukee avenue.

POLICE TO BASE SLAYING CASE ON BULLET TESTS

The state's attorney's office and the police yesterday prepared to rely on ballistics tests in their investigation of the slaying of Andrew Lucas, 28 years old, a barber, who was found shot to death in a field at 83d street and Karlov avenue last Sunday. George Thomas, 25 years old, who lives at 1944 Harrison street, was arrested at the inquest when the police recalled that he had been seized with three guns a few weeks befor.

He was taken to the state's attorney's office for questioning yesterday, but refused to answer any questions after his attorney, R. Jerome Dunne, son of former Gov. Dunne, advised him to stand on his constitutional rights and refuse to make any statements. Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup had planned to have Thomas submit to a test with a new lie detecting machine, but Thomas refused to permit the test.

As a result of his refusal to talk the police will depend on tests made by Lieut. Col. Calvin Goddard, ballistics expert, who said that the bullet which killed Lucas had been fired from one of Thomas' guns. He is to be arraigned today before Judge Joseph McCarthy on gun toting charges

2 MEN JAILED IN MURDER OF GIRL IN CAPITAL

Richmond, Va., April 19 (Saturday). —(AP)—Julien Gallagher, 28, of Warsaw, Va., was arrested in his room at a hotel here early today and held for Arlington county authorities in connection with the death of Mary Baker, navy department employé, whose body was found near Arlington cemetery last Saturday morning. Gallagher was arrested on orders of Commonwealth's Attorney William G. Gloth of Arlington county.

This action was taken after several hours had been spent in questioning Marvin Sisson, who was arrested yesterday in Warsaw, Va., on a warrant charging him with the murder of Miss Baker.

REP. LEE OF TEXAS, PIONEER OF WEST, DIES IN CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., April 18.—(AP)—The death today of Representative R. Q. Lee of Cisco, Tex., marked the passing of one of the prominent early settlers of the west Texas plains country. Stricken by paralysis five weeks ago, the 71 year old Texan died this morning in a local hospital.

Both the senate and house adopted a resolution of sorrow and adjourned out of respect to his memory. President Hoover sent a letter of condolence to Mrs. Lee and her five children.

Atwater, Minn., April 18.—(AP)—One of the two remaining members of the Last Man's club of civil war veterans, Peter O. Hall, of Atwater, 91 years old, died suddenly at his home tonight.

Charles Lockwood of Chamberlain, S. D., 89 years old, now is the only surviving member of a gallant band of veterans of B company, First Minnesota volunteer infantry in the civil war, and to him goes the solemn honor of drinking a bottle of old Burgundy wine as a toast to his dead comrades.

SINCLAIR OIL IS SEEN NUCLEUS OF BIG COMBINE

Report Tells of Expansion Plans.

The Chicago Board of Trade, the live stock and produce markets will be open today, while the stock exchanges and other markets of the country will remain closed.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Recent rumors that the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation may be the nucleus of another big oil consolidation are partially confirmed in Chairman H. F. Sinclair's annual report, made public yesterday. A merger with the Prairie Oil and Gas company has been tentatively discussed, while more vague gossip has concerned the Rio Grande Oil company and the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

"Our progress is satisfactory and doubtless can be maintained and accelerated with our present properties, resources and facilities," Mr. Sinclair says. "It is believed, however, that the path of greatest progress is that of an aggressive policy of expansion. The business in which we are engaged is one that requires larger and larger units for the most effective operation and service and to meet the competition with which all factors in the industry have to deal. That this competition may be intensified rather than diminished is indicated by recent developments.

Plans Steady Growth.

"For these reasons the management contemplates, as a measure of sound business policy, steady expansion and further entrenchment in territories where it already is strong. As one means to this end, negotiations have been under way for some months for the consolidation of other corporations with our own.

"These negotiations are necessarily complicated and prolonged. That such transactions are discussed and considered does not necessarily mean that they will or will not be carried out after all the facts are ascertained and considered. In order to make provision for expansion and possible consolidations, the board of directors has authorized, subject to approval, an increase in the authorized common capital stock from 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 shares."

Net Income $16,599,037.

It is explained that Sinclair Consolidated expended $42,047,000 last year for developments and additions. Its net production of crude oil was 16,181,960 barrels, although a large amount of production was shut in and development work was curtailed. Output in 1928 totaled 13,629,075 barrels. Gasoline sales last year totaled 886,934,153 gallons, compared with 876,841,681 in 1928.

Net income for 1929 was $16,599,037, equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.81 a share on 5,460,008 common shares, compared with net income of $13,447,347, or $2.70 a share, in 1928. Common stock dividends totaling $2.75 a share were paid last year, after which surplus was increased by $434,563 to $41,008,322. On Dec. 31, 1929, current assets and current liabilities were $68,676,383 and $21,107,060 respectively.

Mail Order Negotiations.

Reports of the projected merger of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Montgomery Ward & Co., the Chicago mail order and chain store concerns, drew confirmation and also conflicting statements yesterday. Lessing Rosenwald, vice president of Sears Roebuck & Co., in charge of the Philadelphia, Pa., branch and a son of Chairman Julius Rosenwald, confirmed the report that leading stockholders of both companies were considering a merger.

"The question of a merger has not been brought before the boards of directors but there have been unofficial communications," he said. "The reports, therefore, are substantially correct. But there is nothing to be said at this time because there has been nothing done as yet to talk about."

Gen. R. E. Wood, president of Sears-Roebuck, who was in San Antonio, Tex., inspecting the branch there, opined there must be some mistake. "If such a merger were planned, I certainly would have heard something about it, and I have not," he said. At Julius Rosenwald's home in Chicago, it was said that he was in New York, while at the New York office of Sears-Roebuck, it was said he was in Chicago. Anyway, Lessing Rosenwald, in Philadelphia, said his father was in New York on other business than any pertaining to the company.

Points Out Differences in Waterways

BY SCRUTATOR.

The St. Lawrence seaway, which, if ever built, will furnish an outlet to the sea by way of Montreal for boats up to twenty-seven foot draft, is exceedingly well publicized. There are even reports that itinerant lobbyists are making their way through the middle west selling this particular seaway to chambers of commerce and to editors.

There is a rival project, involving the deepening and general reconstruction of the New York barge canals, which at present are operating with some degree of success with a twelve foot depth. Proponents of the St. Lawrence sternly oppose any talk about building this American canal for large vessels, basing the objections on engineering inexpediency and high costs.

Differences in Service.

Governmental commissions in the past have found that the New York project would cost a great deal more than the one leading to Montreal. Another important point—this one in its favor—has been glossed over to a large extent. It is that the New York deep canals would serve an important domestic population in the east, one that is already accustomed to buying and selling to the other important concentration of Americans about the great lakes and near them.

To put it a little more clearly, the St. Lawrence seaway would be almost exclusively an outlet for exports to Europe. Montreal is an important city, its importance being mainly due to the fact that it is a transfer point for goods produced or consumed by Canadians. The bulk of its exports are Canadian grain. Beyond it lies the arctic wilderness of northeastern Quebec, the only really valuable product of which is paper.

What the St. Lawrence seaway at a twenty-seven foot depth would handle is a matter of controversy. The present fourteen foot channels carried in their biggest year, 1928, something over eight million tons. Estimates for the improved canals run as high as thirty million tons, but Dr. Harold G. Moulton, a noted economist, fixes the traffic at the surprisingly low figure of ten and a half millions in 1940.

Estimates Cost.

Because grain exports seem to be a diminishing factor, so far as the United States is concerned, the same authority holds that this seaway will be of little value to Americans. He estimates the cost for navigation alone at 700 million dollars.

The Erie canal, on the other hand, if it were a real shipway, should carry many times as much freight. L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson railroad, last fall pointed out that the reconstructed Erie was the only canal from sea to lakes worth financing. It would give the great lakes a connection direct with 23,248,000 Americans living within fifty miles of tidewater, between Hampton roads and the Canadian line, and lake boats could handle the business easily if the existing intercoastal canals were deepened and added to.

Favors New York Route.

It is generally agreed that the St. Lawrence route would not be used as a means of getting big oceangoing steamers into the lakes. Rather the plan is to let the biggest lake steamers go down to Montreal. For middle western American goods to reach Americans in the east that way it would be necessary to shift cargo to oceangoing vessels, which is expensive. Lake boats for their depth have greater carrying capacity, but cannot withstand the open seas.

It is more important to Americans to have trade facilities among themselves than to have a route to Europe via Montreal. The objection has been made that the long stretches of New York canals would mean slow transport, but Mr. Loree asserted the trip from Lake Erie to Sandy Hook could be made in 110 hours. A big ship canal connecting New York and the lakes would carry many times as much freight as the St. Lawrence—one guess is a hundred times as much. Thus, if the cost of the St. Lawrence is less, the value of that seaway would appear to be proportionately much smaller.

The two men took charge of the radio firm less than two months ago at the behest of creditors, after the firm had gotten in financial difficulties.

Announcing his resignation, Mr. Tully said: "I have resigned because of conditions which are not such as to justify any further connection with the organization." Mr. Haugh said: "When ways and means to begin Steinite operations on a sound basis were not forthcoming I felt I could no longer be useful in the situation."

Announce Formation of New Investment Trust

The board of directors voted that approximately 94 per cent of the corporation's funds must be kept reserved for investment in the securities of the fifteen leading railroads and sixty leading utilities in this country and Canada.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Stock Averages.

During the last six stock market sessions, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S averages have alternately advanced and declined, and the net change for the period has been exactly .11 of a point in the fifty issues. The alternate sessions of strength and weakness began on April 11, with a decline of .43 of a point. The hesitation has left traders wondering as to the market's next move.

Radio Patents.

Consideration of the new radio alignment in Wall street yesterday elicited the comment that the deal to be acted on by Radio stockholders does more to diminish the pooling of patents than to increase it, inasmuch as the old contracts made after the war will come to a close. General Electric and Westinghouse henceforth will own their own radio patents, of which Radio corporation will be an exclusive licensee, with certain exceptions. It was also said that some of the older radio patents will next year come into the public domain, so that the matured Radio corporation will be more on its own feet than ever.

Foreign Financing.

Whenever a foreign government or corporation contemplates external financing these days, the faces are turned toward Wall street, and just at the moment the local investment market does not appear to be in any too receptive a mood to digest any inordinately large foreign loans. Prospective borrowers abroad, it is stated, must be handled with diplomacy, if the business is to materialize later on. At present several Wall street banking houses have been inclined to tell such applicants that it might be advisable to wait until after the German annuities loan is out of the way.

I. C. C. Favors Wider Control of Holding Co.

Washington, D. C., April 18.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission was placed on record today as unanimously favoring legislation to prevent unifications of railroads through the "overhead" method of pooling holding company stocks without authority for consolidation from the commission.

Chairman McManamy of the commission was recorded as indorsing "in its entirety" a proposal to suspend all railroad consolidations—direct and indirect—until congress has enacted additional legislation to regulate them.

Joseph B. Eastman, chairman of the commission's legislative committee, told the senate interstate commerce committee that the commission desired a personal penalty, "such as fines, and perhaps imprisonment," for unauthorized unifications, but that to ingorse suspension of its own authority to allow mergers which it found "in the public interest" would "amount to an expression of opinion by the commission" that it "doubts its own ability to determine wisely what is in the public good."

Concerned for Employés.

The question of the effect that railroad mergers and other consolidations will have upon employés was raised today by Chairman Couzens of the senate interstate commerce committee at a hearing on his resolution to suspend railroad consolidations until congress enacts further regulatory legislation.

Joseph B. Eastman, interstate commerce commissioner, indicated disapproval of the Couzens resolution. The senator interposed that he was concerned over mergers "which may result in benefit to stockholders, and give promise of lower rates, but places the entire burden on one class, the employés."

Eastman today presented to the commerce committee a commission report unanimously favoring legislation to prohibit consolidation or unification of railroads through pooling of stocks by holding companies. He suggested that congress should provide penalties for violations.

Divided on Merger.

The proposed merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, which has figured prominently in discussion of the Couzens proposal and a similar resolution in the house again was brought into the hearing after Eastman said the commission was divided on it. The commission has approved the proposal with reservations but Eastman presented a dissenting report.

Amendment of the transportation act to provide for the protection of employés in all railroad consolidations was proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Hawes [Dem., Mo.]. The measure would provide that no consolidation be approved unless the railroads agreed to dismiss no employés as a result of the merger, and unles sthey agreed to pay for the cost of transfer of the railroad employés and their possessions resulting from the merger.

One of the purposes of the resolution is an inquiry into the use of federal reserve facilities and national banking facilities in stock speculation. Among provisions of the Glass bill is one to curb the use of these facilities in such transactions.

May Be Made Next Fall.

If ordered by the senate the inquiry probably will be made next fall, it was believed by committee members, with the Glass measure forming the basis of the hearing. A subcommittee of the banking committee which is headed by Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, would conduct the investigation.

Senator Glass, who is a former secretary of the treasury and co-author of the federal reserve act, has been working for months on his proposed legislation. He will introduce the bill when he reports the investigating resolution, probably on Monday, and will ask early consideration of the resolution. There has been no expression from the senate so far on it.

Extent of Investigation.

The resolution provides, in part: "The inquiry thus authorized and directed as to comprehend specifically the administration of these banking systems with respect to the use of their facilities for trading in and carrying speculative securities; the extent of call loans to brokers by member banks for such purposes; the effect on the system of the formation of investment and security trusts; the desirability of chain banking; the development of branch banking as a part of the national system; together with any related problems which the committee may think it important to investigate."

The Glass measure also will be directed at restricting chain banking expanding branch banking, and to allowing greater distribution of earnings to member banks of the federal reserve system. There was no recorded opposition in the senate committee to the resolution.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 18.—(AP)—W. J. Kuhrt, general manager of the Northwest Grain association, has announced that loan privileges of the federal farm board have been extended to all farmers in North Dakota and Montana, whether members of cooperatives or not. Cash advances on wheat at the farm board's loan price will be made hereafter to all producers in those two states, Mr. Kuhrt announced. Farmers availing themselves of the advances, however, must agree to deliver their 1930 crop to the association and must become temporary individual stockholders in the marketing organization.

A handling charge of 4c a bu will be allowed the elevator in which the grain covered by any loan is stored, he said, in addition to all storage charges, whether the grain is in a farmer's elevator, a line, or an independent house.

United Corp. Buys Interest in Consolidated Gas Co.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 18.—Acquisition of a substantial interest in the Consolidated Gas company has been made by the United corporation, holding company of the Morgan-Bonbright interests. This brings a step nearer the project to connect New York City by a vast network of wires with Niagara falls and other sources of power upstate. The Consolidated Gas company controls the New York Edison company. In this state, public utilities cannot obtain more than ten per cent of stock in another public utility without the permission of the public service commission. The holdings of the United corporation in Consolidated Gas are considerably less than ten per cent of the 11,456,981 common shares outstanding.

Texas Corp. to Make, Sell Ethyl Gas

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 18. — The Ethyl Gasoline corporation has reached an agreement with the Texas corporation, under which the latter will be permitted to manufacture ethyl gasoline under the patents of the Ethyl Gasoline corporation, it was learned today from authoritative sources.

Up to the present the Texas corporation has refrained from selling any premium gasoline at its filling stations, but it is understood that ethyl gasoline is now in the process of manufacture by the company and will be placed on sale probably within a month. No confirmation as to the exact date, however, could be obtained today.

The new license will provide the largest outlet for ethyl gasoline yet obtained. The Texas corporation operates the most extensive chain of retail outlets of any gasoline company.

The Ethyl Gasoline corporation is owned jointly and equally by the General Motors corporation and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The company manufactures ethyl fluid controlled under patent, and sells licenses for the manufacture of gasoline through the mixture of the fluid with gasoline of a certain test, established by the Ethyl company.

The Texas corporation has made a policy of selling no premium gasolines. Today officials of the company in New York refused to discuss their plans, but salesmen of the company in Chicago have notified clients that the new gasoline will be placed on the market on or about May 1.

U. S. HIGH COURT STOPS HEARING IN RY. RATE CASE

Washington, D. C., April 18.—(AP)—The Supreme court has indicated that it looked with disfavor on injunctions by federal courts restraining state railroad commissions from placing in effect reduced state rates.

The most important controversy arousing the protest of public service commissions in 37 states, reached the highest court in an appeal brought by the North Dakota board of railroad commissioners to set aside an injunction obtained by the Great Northern and other railroads restraining reduced state rates on freight going into effect in North Dakota.

The reduced rates were ordered by the state commission in 1929 and were immediately enjoined by the railroads, pending a final order by the interstate commerce commission adjusting interstate and intrastate rates over the country.

When the case was reached for oral argument, counsel for the railroad commissioners in opening, after explaining the questions at issue, was stopped by the court. This indicated that it accepted his contention that the interstate commerce commission alone had the right to set aside state rates and then only when it found that the state rates discriminated against interstate commerce.

Chief Justice Hughes said it would not be necessary for counsel representing North Dakota and the public service commissions to present further argument. This was taken to mean, in the practice of the court, that the injunction will be set aside on an early opinion.

AL SMITH'S BANK MAY CONSOLIDATE WITH GIANNINI INTERESTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 18.—The affiliation of the County Trust company with the Bank of America, controlled by Giannini-Blair interests, is a matter of active negotiation, it is learned, and will probably be agreed to within a few days.

AL SMITH

The County Trust company has been headed by ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith since the late James J. Riordan, its president and long time friend of the Democratic leader committed suicide last November.

Just what form this merger of banking interests will take is not yet decided, and it is also not known whether ex-Gov. Smith will continue as an active leader in banking. While he might continue as a director, it is not believed that he will have an active executive position, inasmuch as it has been no secret for some months that Mr. Smith desires to devote more attention to his position as head of Empire State, Inc., builders of the new Waldorf-Astoria.

RESTRAIN CORP. FROM FURTHER SALE OF STOCK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 18.—A temporary injunction restraining the National Assets corporation with offices in the Harriman Bank building at 527 Fifth avenue—a firm which numbers among its officers and directors men prominent in the business, industrial or financial life of the nation—from further sale of the corporation's stock has been granted by Justice John MacCrate of the Brooklyn Supreme court upon application by Deputy Assistant Attorney General Harry M. Garvey.

Mr. Garvey, in requesting the injunction, also named William H. Byington of the Hotel Alamac and Fort Pierce, Fla., as a defendant and charged that Byington had used the well known names of the officers in promoting by fraudulent methods stock sales of the concern. The injunction did not specifically name the officers of the corporation, but enjoined the firm and all officers, directors and employés.

Frank White, president of the corporation, who was treasurer of the United States from 1921 to 1928 and governor of North Dakota from 1901 to 1905, was merely a "figurehead" and not in actual charge of the corporation, Mr. Garvey said, and he was "apparently misled and deluded into allowing his name to be used."

By means of radio advertising and the distribution of booklets bearing the name of Mr. White and that of members of the board of directors, who were apparently similarly misled, Mr. Garvey said, Byington had sold to the public in less than a year more than $650,000 worth of stock, of which the National Assets corporation received in proceeds about $171,000, the balance going to Byington.

Change Name to Bendix-Stromberg Carburetor Co.

The name of the Stromberg Motor Devices company will be changed to Bendix Stromberg Carburetor company, effective May 1, it was announced yesterday. The company is now moving its entire plant from Chicago to South Bend, Ind., where a new office and factory building, equipped with modern facilities for increased production and improved service, has been built for this unit of the Bendix Aviation corporation.

Business Personals

David D. Cooke, for many years active in Chicago advertising circles, has joined the organization of Van Genderhoof & Co., as director of service.

Samuel A. Morrison has assumed his duties as assistant general manager of the North Shore line, with offices at Highwood. Mr. Morrison was formerly assistant general superintendent of the South Shore line.

Samuel Insull Jr. will address the Electric association at its quarterly luncheon in the Palmer house on April 29. His subject will be "Practical Cooperation Within the Electrical Industry."

Through an Error

in the financial advertisement of Bertles, Rawls & Donaldson, Incorporated, in the Chicago Tribune, Friday, April 18th, the price of Detroit and Canada Tunnel Company 6½% Debentures appeared as 95 and interest to yield 6.85%, and the price of the Common Stock appeared as 5¾ per share. The price of the Debentures should have been 100 and interest to yield 6½% and the price of the Common Stock should have been $8.00 per share.

CITE REASONS FOR LET-UP IN STOCK TRADING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 18.—With business suspended for Good Friday on all the principal home and foreign markets, today passed without incident. The dullness was accentuated by the stock exchange's decision to close tomorrow also. Banks were open in this country, but did little business.

The inactivity which has marked this week both in general trade and on the stock exchange was testimony to the fact that the "spring trade period" has passed without an emphatic industrial revival. This usually means, under such circumstances, postponement at least until the autumn; but any predestined change for the better at that time will be indicated well in advance.

New Experience.

It is a somewhat changed experience to the stock market, at any rate, to be watching closely even the minor vicissitudes of trade. Reports of company earnings for the completed March quarter are in most cases showing a considerable decrease from last year; but that was assured by the quarter's known movement of trade and prices. Probably the scope of reduction thus far reported is smaller than had generally been expected. The great steel producers still remain to be heard from.

The labor department's average of commodity prices for March, which was published today, was chiefly noteworthy as placing that average at the lowest figure of any month in more than thirteen years. It is nearly 4 per cent less than the lowest average reached in the 1927 trade reaction, and a small fraction under the lowest of "deflation days," a distinction enjoyed by January, 1922.

All Products Decline.

Naturally, the comparison with the deflation date varies with different groups of articles, farm products being actually higher, whereas metals are lower by nearly 3 per cent and textile products by 17 per cent. But the decline since last October has affected every group of products, the general average having fallen 5¾ per cent from that month's figure and 7 per cent from a year ago.

Trade reports are described by the week-end surveys of the mercantile agencies as "a little more cheerful." Dun, however, indicates 40 out of 51 changes in prices of separate commodities this week as having been downward; yet a steadier price market is predicted by the effort to keep production absolutely adjusted to visible requirements. In general, this still seems to mean curtailment of output for there is not yet any very clear evidence of reviving general demand. Exchanges of bank checks for the week are figured as 10 per cent below 1929 in the country outside of New York and 5⅞ per cent down in this city. The comparison is better than in other recent months, but April of 1929 was a month of greatly reduced business on the stock exchanges.

One month ago	9.50@10.50
Top yesterday, $9.75; average, $9.15.
Estimated receipts at Chicago today: cattle, 7,000 hogs, 5,000 sheep.

The hog market yesterday was a repetition of Thursday's trade, although prices averaged slightly higher. The market opened in line with Thursday's high point and 5@10c above the previous day's close, but lost the gain in mid-session and later.

The extreme top was unchanged at $10.60, while the general average showed a 5c advance at $10.20, comparing with a top of $10.60 and average of $10.25 the previous Friday. Very little activity was noted during the day, but with the supply below normal at the opening, only 2,000 were in the pens at the finish.

Hog Futures Higher.

Although trading was slower on the hog futures market yesterday, prices showed gains of 5@10c. Trading was confined mostly to light weights for April delivery at $10.60, and for September at $10.45@10.50. Prices were highest of the week for the months traded in. On the "to arrive" market, light hogs were offered for April 22 and 23 delivery at $10.70, and bid $10.50.

Yesterday's meager supply of cattle held the previous day's gains, but show sharp losses compared with the close of last week. Choice 1,194 lb steers topped the market at $14.50, although few were good enough to pass $12.00. Yearlings are closing 50@75c under a week ago and in some cases show more loss.

Heavy stock of good quality is almost steady for the week. Butcher stock shows losses of 50@75c and calves are closing $1.00 lower than a week ago. Stockers and feeders have been slow and are 25c lower.

Lamb Prices Higher.

Lamb prices reacted yesterday and finished mostly 15@25c above the previous session. Wool lambs of choice quality and weight sold largely at $9.50@9.75, although a range of $8.50@9.25 took most medium and weighty ahimals, with some exceeding 100 lbs as low as $8.00@8.25.

Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce and unchanged. Feeding and shearing lambs sold slowly on country account, due to the recent sharp break in fat stock. Greeks were on the market in search of young spring lambs and paid up to $25.00 for a few averaging 34 lbs, which is within $2.00 of the record established by this class in 1927.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 500 cattle, 7,000 hogs and 5,000 sheep, against 159 cattle, 5,723 hogs, and 5,700 sheep in the previous Saturday and 542 cattle, 5,413 hogs and 7,782 sheep a year ago.

Seaboard Utilities Shares.

Kindly give me some information about Seaboard Utilities Shares. When was this company organized and is it making money?—F. R. K.

Seaboard Utilities Shares corporation was incorporated March 20, 1929, in Massachusetts and reincorporated in Delaware Jan. 2, 1930, as an investment trust of the general management type, investing its funds chiefly in securities of public utilities east of the Mississippi.

The corporation is restricted by vote to invest not more than 10 per cent of its assets in securities of any one company, to make no investments in companies whose only property is under construction, and not to purchase the control of any operating company.

The corporation late in March reported that total net gain for the twelve months ended March 17, 1930, after federal taxes, amounted to $1,085,738, from which $609,375 has been paid in dividends, including the April 1, 1930 quarterly dividend of 12½ cents per share. A total of $291,331 has been transferred to reserves. For the three months ended March 3, 1930, net gain, after reserve for federal taxes and expenses, was $225,000.

Capital stock outstanding as of Dec. 31, 1929, consisted of 1,600,000 no par common shares, which were carried on the balance sheet at $16,525,000.

Caterpillar Tractor.

Caterpillar Tractor company $10,000,000 5 year convertible 5 per cent notes, dated April 1, 1930, and due April 1, 1935, are issued under an indenture providing that the company shall not issue any secured obligations without equally securing these notes.

The company reported net earnings available for interest of $13,045,023 for 1929. This was more than 26 times the interest charges on these notes. Earnings in the last four years have averaged more than 17 times such interest charges.

The current market value of the equity junior to these notes is more than $135,000,000.

These notes are suitable for one who desires a high grade short term investment.

They are convertible into common stock of the company on the basis of par for the notes and prices for the stock ranging from $85 per share on or before April 1, 1931, to $115 per share between April 1, 1933, and April 1, 1935.

ROOD BUILDING IN EVANSTON TO BE REMODELED

Leases Recorded Show Low Rentals.

BY AL CHASE.

Filing of a pair of fifty year leases, each of them dated Dec. 20, 1894, at the county recorder's office yesterday brought to light an interesting building development proposed for the heart of Evanston's business district. It also disclosed some rentals which probably will make neighboring tenants sigh with envy at their diminutiveness.

The property in question is the irregular shaped three story Rood building at the intersection of Sherman and Orrington avenues and Davis street, overlooking Fountain square. Work will start May 1 remodeling the first and second floors at a reported cost of $75,000. Completion is set for July 1.

There'll be six stores on the first floor, with shops and offices on the second. Plans by Harold Holmes, architect, call for gray marble on the first floor exterior, with the trim of Norwegian granite and chromium plate.

Erected in 1894.

Now for a word about the rental paid by the present lessee, Miss Louise N. Rood, a daughter of James Rood Sr., who leased the property in 1894 and erected the Rood building, which later became the property of his son, James Rood Jr., brother of Miss Rood.

The land, which fronts 40 feet on Davis street, 122½ feet on Orrington, and 115 feet on Sherman, was leased by Mr. Rood Sr. from Northwestern university, by Orrington Lunt, president, for half a century with privilege of renewal for another fifty years on terms to be agreed upon in 1944.

The annual rental paid by Mr. Rood for the first ten years was $720, for the next decade he paid $1,020, then $1,170 annually for ten years; for the next ten years the annual rental was and is now $1,350; it will be $1,800 yearly for the last ten years of the fifty year term.

Several Leases Made.

According to J. F. Fisher of the Evanston office of Baird & Warner, agents and managers of the Rood building, leases already have been closed with several firms for space in the remodeled first floor. The Dutch Mill Candy company has taken the corner store for a fifteen year term. The Women's Dress Shop also has leased space for fifteen years.

The building was occupied on the first floor by the Commercial Trust and Savings bank prior to its merger with the State Bank and Trust company of Evanston. Although Miss Rood is the lessee of the property, her nephew, A. B. Van Deusen, is attorney in fact for her.

WORK UNDER WAY ON 50 FLATS ON SEELEY AVENUE

Gordon S. Gundling has started work on a fifty apartment building at 4427 North Seeley avenue, designed by Harry Dalsey. It will have, 3, 2½ and 2 room suites and will occupy a lot 50x175. Completion is set for Aug. 15. The building has been leased for a ten year term and will be operated as the Westminster Arms Apartment hotel. The total valuation of land and completed building has been placed at $200,000. The Heitman Trust company has underwritten a 6 per cent $100,000 bond issue.
